RASPAIL'S MODE OF TREATING DISEASES.

FOR sometime past, Doct G BOUTERRE has been solicited by a large number of respectable individuals to treat diseases on the system of Doctor Raspail. At first he refused, either because he was unwilling to separate from his medical brethren, or because he was unacquainted with the system, and would be obliged to study it profoundly, before he commenced so difficult a task. Unwilling, however, that he should be supposed to entertain a systematic repugnance to the ideas of Raspail, he tried his mode of treatment, and was quickly forced to yield to evidence. In a short time he obtained extraordinary success, and now, that experience has shewn that the system is as prompt as its outcomes purchased at it to be, he no longer hesitates to announce to the public that he will treat in that way, all persons who may desire it.

Dr. Bouterre engages to treat patients according to this system only, without any mixture of other medicines; and at the same time, he will be ready to use the method which he has hitherto followed, upon patients who may not desire to be treated by the method of Dr. Raspail.

Doctor Bouterre may be consulted every day, from 10 till 12 o'clock in the forenoon, and from 3 till 4 in the afternoon. On Sundays and holidays he cannot be consulted in the afternoon.

Dr B will visit patients who may send for him.

Dr B resides in Main street, between Bourbon and Dauphine streets.

The price of a consultation is invariably fixed at from 2 to 5 dollars, according to the nature and duration of the malady. These sums are to be paid in advance, in order to avoid all disagreeable discussions.

Advice given to the poor gratis. n11

ANNUAL DIARY OF HEALTH, or family Physician and Druggist—Containing the necessary theoretical and practical manner of preparing medicine and preserving and curing yourself of disease, at small cost and with promptitude of all curable evils, and of giving relief to those who labor under chronic or incurable diseases, by P V RASPAIL, translated by A Fourier.

The above work which has been extensively circulated in French, is now for sale at the principal Bookstores of this city. n11
