INSECT TENT.

A NEWLY invented article called an insect tent is now exhibited to the public at No. 46 St. Charles street, opposite the Exchange Hotel, of which the cheapness and novel form and construction, and so light portable and comfortable, that it must meet with universal approbation.

As a complete protection against mosquitoes from all insects, it is unknown, without exaggeration, that in a room, this tent is all that the most fond to please could possibly desire. It will give to the inhabitants of warm climates a comfort and luxury never before approached by any other mosquito bar, but be suspended from the ceiling of the room, from a tree, or any other thing to which it may be desirable to fix it, and may be raised or lowered at pleasure. It is a fact to be noticed that it may be instantly folded up into a bundle not larger than an umbrella and rig up to the ceiling and be as much out of the way as a suspended lamp or chandelier would be, and it may be as quickly unfolded and prepared for use. The time required to form the tent or to fold it up out of the way will not require more than one minute. It will be an ornament to a room instead of an incumbrance, and so simple in its construction that it can be put out of order. It is intended to be used for sitting, reading, writing, dining and sleeping under, and to be used in dwellings, counting houses and ships, and may be used by the most gentlemanly parties of pleasure, as well as in the woods. People will never know the comforts that may be had in sleeping in this warm mosquito country until they try one of these newly invented tents. They may be made of any required dimensions and of any desired fineness in ornament.—These now made are the cheapest, or 6 square and 8 feet 8 inches in diameter, 10 feet 6 inches high, when fold up will make a bulk of 6 feet 6 inches long and 9 inches in diameter. The cost of one is only $20.

The tent should examine this new tent, especially as it will afford them an opportunity of judging for themselves, on account of the incomprehensible of the ordinary mode of protection against insects. The new insect tent is really one of the most useful and comfortable contrivances of the day and must soon be used by every family either in the cities or in the country.

The above description of the insect tent may appear extravagant and calculated to give a false estimate and colouring to the character as it is known by the generality of advertisements of new things, but the public may be assured that no such attempt has been made in this article, of which people will be convinced by calling at 46 St. Charles street. j12 2m

LIFE INSURANCE.

OCEAN INSURANCE COMPANY.—The absence of any institution in this city for insuring lives, and the ravages against rates of premium demanded by the north for a 2 to 3 per cent premium for granting life insurance to persons residing in Louisiana, have determined the undersigned directors of the Company, to avail themselves of the clause in their charter which authorizes insurance upon lives, on a scale of premiums which will enable every one who is in receipt of a moderate annual income, to secure for those who are dependent on them a comfortable provision in case of their death.

The scale determined on, is nearly impossible, the average of those adopted by the London offices for insuring lives in England, in addition which to the difference of climate, and by this scale an annual premium of twenty dollars paid by a person 25 years old will secure the payment of one thousand dollars to his heirs, should he die within the year—the annual premium of one hundred dollars will secure five thousand dollars—and so on in proportion for any larger amount.

The Company will issue policies for any term from one to seven years and the premium can be paid quarterly, half yearly or yearly.

Any further information that may be required will be furnished on application to the office Notre Camp street, corner of Gravier street.

By order of the Board.

CHS BRIGGS Secretary.
