FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,

HENRY CLAY.

NEW-ORLEANS:
THURSDAY MORNING, AUGUST 10, 1843.

The Globe still continues its furious onslaughts on Mr. TYLER's administration. In its anxiety to cover all possible connection between the locofoco party and the present head of the Government, that delectable journal appears almost to have forgotten the existence of the Whigs. Its arrows are turned from us and aimed solely at the Tyler camp. Its tomahawk warfare upon HANNAH, PORTER and such recreant democrats as may prefer replenishing their coffers to holding fast to their principles, is carried on with a truculency uncommon even for the savage spirit that presides over the columns of the Globe. As for the Madisonian and the unfortunate specimen of humanity whose doom it is to administer daily doses of nauseous flattery to Mr. TYLER, in that journal—they are absolutely annihilated by the stalwart and merciless warrior of the Globe. He brains the poor Madisonian—or rather he cracks its empty skull, for brains it has none—with the most perfect coolness and nonchalance; while the unhappy JOHN JONAS, after every stunning concussion, writhes and wriggles like a cockchafer impaled on a pin by some naughty schoolboy.

What the object of the Globe can be in thus studiously and pertinaciously warring on Mr. TYLER and his Cabinet, almost passes our ingenuity to divine. We should imagine that the sagacious Mr. BLAIR would long since have discovered the game not to be worth the candle. It is a waste of good ammunition to fire Paixhan guns at so diminutive an object as Tylerism. But as the Globe seldom acts without a motive, it is possible either that it actually dreads the increasing influence and power of the administration—a supposition at variance with the keen perspicacity of that journal—or that its devotion to Mr. VAN BUREN leads it to assail Mr. TYLER, because it is generally believed that the patronage of the Government is employed with a view to promote the views of Mr. CALHOUN, in the event of Mr. TYLER's nomination by the Democratic Convention being found impracticable. The latter opinion seems plausible enough. The Globe does not dare openly to assault Mr. CALHOUN; but it strikes at him through Mr. TYLER and his Cabinet.

For our part, although we have nothing to do with the contests between the "harmonious democracy," we really think that the Globe is engaged in a very supererogatory labor. The influence of Tylerism with the employed for its own advancement, or for that of others, is too limited to excite much alarm. We fancy that Mr. CALHOUN will scarcely feel indebted to the administration for its efforts. If the people should once believe the Carolina statesman linked with JOHN TYLER, they would inevitably give him up to his fate. Neither democrats nor whigs would tolerate such an association.

TENNESSEE ELECTIONS—FIRST GUN.

We are indebted to a gentleman just from Memphis for the following returns of the Tennessee election. They are promising—and though not sufficiently complete to enable us to claim a whig victory, they look well.

TENNESSEE ELECTIONS.

SHELBY COUNTY.

Governor.
Whig.		Democrat.
Jones,	1,390	Polk,	975
Congress.
Ashe,	1,293	Stanton,	961
State Senate.
Farrington,	1,316	Williamson,	962
House of Representatives.
Alexander,	1,296	Banks,	966
Floating Member.
Avery,	1,309	Turley,	964
In 1841, whig majority 93.
HARDEMAN.
Jones,	963	Polk,	576
Ashe,	572	Stanton,	576
Farrington,	582	Williamson,	580
Avery,	566	Turley,	575

One precinct to be heard from, which will increase the democratic majority about 30. Increase in democratic vote since 1841, about 70. Remarkably democratic.

FAYETTE COUNTY.

Jones has 26 majority for governor. Stanton, (dem.) has 9 majority for congress. Farrington and Williamson for senate, tie. Avery, (whig) floating representative, 13 majority. Fisher (dem.) beats Long (whig) 35 votes for representative.

The majority of Jones in 1841, 159.

The democratic gain a representative in this county, which is balanced by the election of Avery from the three counties. Farrington, senator, is a clear whig gain. The election of Ashe (whig) to congress is beyond a doubt—the remaining counties in the district will increase his majority.

TIPTON COUNTY.

No detailed returns, but the democratic majority is 111—whig gain 55. Lauderdale votes with this county for representative—and in 1841 gave upwards of 100 whig majority—no returns from it. Representative last year democratic. Contest between Hill (whig) and Glenn (dem.) very close.

OBIN AND DYER COUNTIES.

In three precincts, whig majority 42. The election of Gibbs (whig) a representative considered as certain.—No change from last year.

The above returns exhibit a small whig gain over the vote of 1841, when Jones (w.) was elected by 3,400 majority.

ALABAMA ELECTION.—By the Mobile papers of Tuesday, we have received nearly complete returns from Mobile county. For Governor there was no opposition to Fitzpatrick. For Congress, Gotlebbs WATTS (f.) leads DILLET (w.) a few votes—probably twenty-five—his majority, excluding one precinct, is 47—the vote of the Mount Vernon precinct will reduce it about 20. The vote appears quite large and we learn that the election was characterized by great animation. The Advertiser says that it has no doubt of Mr. DILLET's election in the district.—Nearly all the counties composing it are whig, with the exception of Clarke.

For the Legislature two whigs (Messrs. Erwin and Dunn) and two locofocos (Messrs. Lang and Todd) are chosen. A split in the whig ranks has likewise secured the election of a locofoco Sheriff and Tax Collector.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF THE POST MASTER GENERAL.

The following strange narrative is copied from the Baltimore American of the 2d inst.

We regret to state that a most painful occurrence took place yesterday on board the steamboat Georgia, on the Baltimore and Norfolk Line. It appears that the boat on her passage to Baltimore took on board at Old Point Comfort several passengers, among them the Hon. Mr. WICKLIFFE, Postmaster General, his two daughters and several other persons and a young man named J. McLEAN GARDINER, son of Col. C. K. GARDINER, of Washington City, formerly First Auditor of the Post Office Department.

During his stay at Old Point the conduct of Mr. GARDINER was remarked by the visitors as of a very singular character, and the belief was generally entertained that he was laboring under mental derangement—a belief that was strongly concurred in by Mr. WICKLIFFE himself, with whom he had several times been in conversation. About half past one o'clock yesterday, when the passengers were summoned to dinner, Mr. WICKLIFFE, who was standing on deck, offered his arm to the ladies who were with him, and while in the act of so doing, GARDINER, without any previous intimation, suddenly sprung at Mr. WICKLIFFE, and aimed a powerful blow with a clasp knife at his breast. The blade of the knife struck the right breast bone with much force and traversed the bone without, it is believed, injuring the lungs, or making a deep incision. Lieut. BRADFORD, of the U. S. Navy, standing close by, instantly seized GARDINER in the act of making a second blow at Mr. WICKLIFFE, and prevented his design. The knife was immediately taken possession of by Lieut. B., and GARDINER placed in confinement. Remedies were immediately applied to Mr. WICKLIFFE's wound, and on his arrival at this city, he was attended by Professor SMITH, who, we are happy to learn, entertains the opinion that the wound is not dangerous.

Immediately on the arrival of the boat, GARDINER was committed to jail."

☞ Hon. GEO. R. DAVIS, Speaker of the New York Assembly, has accepted from Capt. Tyler the office of Postmaster of Troy, vice C. H. Read, (whig,) removed. This man Davis signed the address of his party at the close of the session, in which Tyler is treated throughout as a whig, and his iniquities held up as those of a whig administration!

ROPING IN.—A party of honest Norwegians who arrived at New York a few days ago, on their way to Milwaukie, were overreached and swindled out of a considerable sum of money by a scoundrel of a fellow who called himself their countryman, and told them a cock and a bull story about his acting under the orders of the government, by whom he had been charged to make arrangements for their passage, &c.

NEW WORKS.—We are indebted to J. B. STEEL, of Camp street, for No. 3, of Sir John Froissart's Chronicles, and a new novel by FREDERIKA BREMER, entitled the "Twins," together with other Tales.

FIRE.—The alarm of fire last night at 12 o'clock, proceeded from the steamer COTE JOYEUSE, arrived only two hours previous from Red River, with a cargo of 63 bales cotton. She caught fire under the boilers, and from thence it extended aft into the hold. The timely arrival of the engines prevented the flames from breaking out, but the boat had nearly to be filled with water before the fire could be arrested. The loss must be serious, although we could not ascertain the amount. We are unable to say how the fire originated, but it was generally attributed to the heat of the boilers.

A man named MICHAEL SCOTT has been arrested in Brooklyn, on the charge of committing a shocking outrage on the person of a little girl, not more than nine or ten years of age. The evidence against the miscreant appears incontrovertible.

THE ARSON CASE.—Yesterday the investigation into the charge of arson against Messrs. HOFFMAN & ELGERTON was continued and concluded. The testimony throughout was of so meagre, vague and unsatisfactory a character, that the Recorder did not hesitate, at its termination, to discharge both the parties.

IMPEACHMENT OF GOV PORTER.—The Pittsburg Advocate says:—"It seems to be generally understood that a decided effort to impeach Governor Porter will be made next winter, in which all parties will unite. In many places candidates for the legislature are chosen with reference to this matter."

LAUNCH.—The U. S. Brig "LAWRENCE" was launched on Baltimore on the 1st inst., she is described as a vessel of elegant and substantial workmanship. Her length is 111 feet, breadth 26 feet 8 inches, depth 13 feet 3 inches, and tonnage 364 tons. When she left the stocks and met her destined element, she had all the grace and beauty of her sister, but unarmed, Wooden ships are in fine, and the foremast was a flag exhibiting the appropriate and ever memorable words—"Don't give up the Ship."

LATER FROM SPAIN.

We find the following in the New York Courier and Enquirer of the 1st instant:

The ship Alabama, Capt. Lane, arrived yesterday morning from Genoa and Gibraltar, which latter port she left on the 5th July. Capt. Lane informs us that he saw a boat on shore at Malaga, and was informed by the American Consul that the Catalonian troops had just capitulated with the insurgents—the bells were then ringing and cups were being drained with other signal demonstrations of joy. The insurgents took a tender lay for two or three days previous off the town of Malaga, and it was feared at the time would fire on the city, but they had dropped down the Gut about how [illegible] before the capitulation, and joined the Spanish forces, proceeding to join the other forces.

Gen. Espartero was at Valencia at the head of 1,000 troops and was preparing to proceed against the insurgents.

The brig Frances Amy, hence, arrived 6 days before, having on board the Circus Company, which were well received and drawing full houses.

A WEDDING PARTY POISONED.—The Elmira Gazette gives the following account of an occurrence which took place at Southport, to the great peril of nearly twenty-five persons:—

In preparing the cake for the wedding of Mr. Dolsynple, an article called saccharated was procured in the village, for the purpose of putting on the top of the cake. This sand appears to have been made of a new article of point called French green, instead of another green in common use, because advertised "not poisonous," which appears to be much more poisonous. The confectioner knew, that, like all other greens, it contained some poison, but supposed it not sufficient to injure anyone, unless taken too freely. The base of the French green, so called, is supposed to be arsenate of copper, which is highly poisonous. We understand that all who partook of the cake were more or less affected, some very seriously, though we believe all are recovering.

☞ Redwood Fisher, John S. Bowron, James H. Raymond, and the balance of the Tyler party in the city—forty-five in number—have signed their names to a public declaration that they are Tyler men still, notwithstanding Major Noah has denounced the lot which his brother Tylerites in our city are and prepare for electing delegates to the Locofoco National Convention. Go ahead, boys—N. Y. Tribune.

A RAIL SPECULATION.—A Boston paper states that a market woman there, who had sold a large quantity of light lump butter, discovered the cause of the market approaching her stand when she had only one rail left. Thinking that it could not be less than ten ounces short, she squeezed a couple of dollars into the rail to make up the weight. The rail was taken home with the butter, and as it was too light, threw it into the basket and stepped away to the next stand, forgetting to take out the precious make-weight which had been introduced.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM LIGHTNING.—On Tuesday, 4th July, a party of colored people, belonging to Dixon, numbering twenty-seven souls, left the town on an excursion to the Black River, in the parish of Adeline, a small vessel about 25 feet in length and 10 feet beam. They had proceeded as far as Tea Kettle Creek, and the parts variously stowed away, the women and children in the cabin, the men in the forecastle, which footed up against the mast, and were occupied. As the wind was fair and light, the helmsman was alone on deck, and the men generally lying about on deck, and four of them, Woodson, Williams, Cooper and George Hopson, of Savannah, were lying with their heads against the mast, when it was shivered to splinters by a stroke of lightning, splitting it to the block and carrying the cabin roof and all by clean shot. The fluid escaped, nobody knows how or where, but a merciful Providence protected the party. The only injury inflicted was upon a little child, whose clothes took fire and burnt her arms, but not severely. Woodson lost a zigzag streak on his forehead, but was only stunned for a few moments, and on their return to town recuperated the above particulars. The citizens have all visited the wreck, and the people are all at home safe.

THE GREAT FORGER.—Oliver M. Lowndes, Esq. accompanied by the younger Hayes, will go out in the steamer John Boston to crossmen on board of Messrs. Jacob Little & Co., with the English authorities in the prosecution of Clinton, whose true name is John Reed, an old offender. The new treasury notes which Reed, had sent out to this country through an English Bank, on each of which he had committed a forgery, will be taken by Mr. Lowndes. Reed will probably be tried in England for the forgeries committed there, and, if convicted, there will be no necessity for demanding him on the part of the U. S. government. A Treasury Clerk will also accompany Mr. Lowndes.

If Reed should escape the rope's end in England, we shall see how he will again with Monroe Edwards, unless he should be hung for his crimes here. He has done should enable him to escape on a plea of insanity. It seems as if he must have been crazy, after depositing nine treasury notes with a bank in London for collection, to expose himself in attempting to sell the other three. The nine which he deposited seem to have been promptly paid, notwithstanding their payment had been stopped, and all the world advertised accordingly. But the robbery had so long passed by as to be forgotten.

MYSTERIOUS MURDER.

We have been placed in possession of the following facts in relation to the discovery of the body of a young white woman on the bank of the Ouachita below Camden, Arkansas, communicated by David M. Holt, Esq., who held an interest upon the same. The body was found near the spot where the steamer Nashville sunk, on the east side of the river; it was thrown into a grave, or pit rather, something like the Indian mode of burial, with a deerskin placed in the bottom, together with a small bag of salt, tin pan of roasting ears, gourd and spoon; the body had been wrapped in a dress, long old-fashioned and partly covered with dirt. The skull had been broken in by a hatchet or axe: there was also a gash on the left side extending from the backbone to the breast, done by same instrument. The name of the deceased is unknown—she appeared to be about 17 or 18 years old, had very black hair, and from disclosures the jury were led to believe she had been killed by two negroes. The inquest was held on the 24th instant, and it was thought she had been dead three or four days. Three dresses were found in the hole with the body: one of red and black, mingled with a little white, another had a white ground with red ground, about 14 inche wide, which formed something like a diamond, the other was wrapped round the body; near the spot was found a yellow and red checked pocket handkerchief, a white towel, hank of twine, three muckasins, several deerskins and some rope. Were the jury not positive to the contrary, we should be led to think the body that of an Indian, and that the murder was committed by a white man. This is the most probable view that can be taken of the affair.

P. S. Since the above was in type, we
