NEW-ORLEANS:
SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 20, 1844.

It is, we think, with some appearance of reason, that the whig party are apprehensive that James K. Polk will, ere the ides of November, find himself in favor of a National Bank and Distribution. He has already committed grand larceny on two of the distinctive principles of the whig party, and there can be little doubt that, if he thinks it will enure to his benefit, he will remorselessly appropriate the remainder. This system of purloining is a new feature in the locofoco policy, and we hasten to expose the delinquents, lest time give impunity to misdemeanor, and the culprits turn round and boldly declare that they are the original owners of the stolen property.

We charge, therefore, upon JAMES K. POLK, the abstraction and felonious and surreptitious embezzlement the "ONE TERM" principle from the whigs. In his letter of acceptance Mr. POLK thus announces his adhesion to this portion of the whig creed:

"I deem the present to be the proper occasion to declare, that it the nomination made by the Convention shall be confirmed by the people and result in my election, I shall enter upon the discharge of the high and solemn duties of the office with the settled purpose of not being a candidate for re-election. In the event of my election, it shall be my constant aim, by a strict adherence to the old Republican landmarks, to maintain and preserve the public prosperity, and at the end of four years I am resolved to retire to private life."

Now this is too bad. The whigs established the roundness of the "One Term" principle in 1840, by unanswerable arguments, and made it one of the main issues upon which they elected Gen'l. HARRISON; and now behold Col. POLK hooking it, with as little scruple and if had been invariably identified with the democratic doctrine. We call upon the whigs to note, one and all, that our thunder, our "one Term" principle has been adopted by Col. POLK, and that he has thus flagitiously and with malice aforethought pilfered a fundamental article of the whig political creed, and used it as his own.

We again charge upon JAMES K. POLK, that to defiance of his own well known opinions, votes and speeches, in utter contempt of his violent and ultra Free Trade notions broached forth from every stump during the canvass in Tennessee last summer, he is now attempting, by a coaxing, sidling and coquettish sort of approach, to make up to and tamper with that other great principle of the whig party—a Tariff for Revenue with discriminating duties for protection. In his letter to Mr. KANE of Pennsylvania, Mr. POLK has the effrontery to tell the benighted locofocos of that State, that he has always recognized the principle of protection, and that he thinks reasonable protection should be given to the great interests of the Union. This appropriation of whig principles is far less excusable than the purloining of the One Term doctrine, for whereas the latter does not necessarily constitute a political sense, but was made such through locofoco opposition, the doctrine of protection is whig and whig exclusively, and can by no possible ratiocination, or cousing sophistry, be tortured into a locofoco principle. Yet Mr. POLK has abstracted it bodily and soul from the whigs, claiming it as his own, and preaching a mere repetition of half way sermon against Free Trade, specially for the benefit of Pennsylvania, where he knows the Tariff to be so popular that opposition to it is death to his prospects.

We submit to the whigs whether such outrageous efforts at political pilfering should be tolerated—whether Mr. POLK should be suffered to assume whig principles and strut about among the Pennsylvania democrats as a Tariff advocate of the first water, whilst at home and in the South, he represents himself as the very bloom ideal of a Free Trader—a man after Mr. Calhoun's own heart. We hope that the whigs of the Key Stone State are awake and watching. They must take care of their property lest there are hawks abroad. Mr. POLK and his partisans will sweep down among them and unless they are vigilant, will filch from them every particle of credit and honor they have gathered from the restoration of the prosperity of the country by a protective Tariff. In conclusion, we call upon the friends of a sound currency and destruction to look well to their doctrines, lest they wake up some fine morning, and discover that Mr. Polk has been among them cleaning every whig principle as exclusively his own.

DALLAS AND A NATIONAL BANK.—The locofocos are much less noisy than usual in their denunciations of a National Bank since their nomination for Vice President of the man whose political career was never distinguished for any thing else than his remarkable support of a Bank of the United States, even after the war had determination had been commenced against it by General Jackson. In January, 1832, while the crusade was in full progress, Mr Dallas made a long and eloquent reply to an attack upon the Bank by Mr Benton. He closed as follows:

"Tome, the Bank of the United States is nothing but a Bank—mere Bank—reacted under the influence of the purest motives, for the most admirable purposes—It stands in the contests of political party, a mere bone, in the hands of both weak, an implacable and powerful opponent; but if, as I understandingly avow my expectation it shall prove, speedily, and impartially, and efficiently to have subserved its great public duties, and to promise still further usefulness to the country, I know and will wish it to have justice, stability and success.

The investigation was made, and Mr Dallas was satisfied by its result that the Bank was not liable to the charges brought against it, and he accordingly reported a bill to recharter this National "monster."—In the course of a long and able speech upon the subject he thus spoke of the petitions for its recharter and of the charges brought against its management:

"It would seem as if our fellow-citizens, in all parts of our country, individually and collectively, have listened to the appeal of the Chief Magistrate, by whom they were wisely invited to the consideration of the subject more than two years ago; and have, now in the hour of their deliberation arrived, come forward to express the results of that deliberation, with unequivocal prayers for the re-enactment of the charter. To a prayer so perfectly legitimate in its character and distinct and respectful in its tone, Congress cannot be insensible."

For my own part, I have been too long conversant with the general course of opinion in this institution, and have enjoyed too many opportunities of correctly estimating the worth and intelligence of its principal managers, to listen to any imputations, without a conviction of their injustice, and the most sincere regret."

And on the vote to pass the bill we find the name of Dallas among the 28 votes in its favor.

As to his opinion of Gen. Jackson's veto, we find the following anecdote in the Detroit Adderiser:

"Hon. Corwin made a speech before the Dayton Clay Club on the 25th ult. It so happened that he alluded to the agency of Geo. M. Dallas in carrying through the bill for the recharter of the United States Bank in 1832, when he was in Congress himself. It passed both houses, and was sent to President Jackson for his signature. After it had been some days in the President's hands, Gov. Corwin said he met Mr Dallas late one night, for the House was then frequently in session to a late hour, and expressed to him his fears that Gen. Jackson intended to veto the bank bill. Mr Dallas replied—General Jackson DARE not veto it!"—[N. Y. Courier.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Inquirer of the 11th says:—All quiet in the city and county throughout yesterday. A large body of military is still in the city, dispersed at various points.—The excitement is subsiding. The people of the city express themselves convinced that no further riot will take place in that district, and contend therefore, that it will be entirely unnecessary for the military to make their appearance there. Improbable but exciting rumors continue to be circulated, but these, we are glad to find, are now discounted by every good citizen.—The end and object of all should be, to render the present peaceable aspect of affairs permanent, and to avoid for the future, all causes of disturbance. Let the authorities be respected and supported, and the moment it can be done, let us have a thorough reorganization of our police. The police of the Mayor and Sheriff are in full strength; great vigilance and caution are observed, and we cherish a hope that we will not be called on again for years, to notice any further disreputable outbreaks.

A HERESE TO THE LOCOFOCOS.—GARRETSOUT MELVILLE lately addressed a locofoco meeting in Sussex county, New Jersey, and thus rebuked the infamous personal abuse which so many of his political friends employ as their only argument against HENRY CLAY. According to the Newark Daily Advertiser—

"Mr. Melville must have made some of his hearers blush when he said Mr. CLAY was a man—not a mere man, and the whigs had now presented their principles, and that they were to be met by manly argument and not by the use of slang; it was not fair to go to a man's fireside for party slander, they should be met by open and honest argument."

ANOTHER LOCOFOCO FALSEHOOD EXPOSED.—The statement that ex-Governor RITNER, of Pennsylvania, had abandoned Mr CLAY is declared to be a "lie" by the Philadelphia Forum. No doubt of it, and so are nine-tenths of the reports of whig changes. The locos are trying to bring Mr. Polk into the Presidency.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

CRIMINAL COURT.—Lois Dominique, f. m. c., was yesterday tried upon a charge of assault and battery and found guilty.

Arthur McLellan, charged with swindling, was put upon trial and acquitted on the grounds of insanity.

John Burden, indicted for perjury, was arraigned and pleaded not guilty.

☞ James Simms, William Egan, John Guing, Wm Black, John Powers, James Quinn and James Flinn, all of them loaders of the first water, were yesterday operated upon by acting Recorder Caldwell, who most charitably ordered them to be furnished with board and lodging, free of charge, for the ensuing thirty days, in the commodious mansion, situate at the foot of Hevia street, vulgarly called the Workhouse.

☞ A man by the name of James Wilkey, was yesterday arrested by Captain Youmes, charged with killing a man some three weeks since at Carrollton; we did not learn the name of the murdered man. Wilkey was lodged in the parish prison, subject to the order of the authorities of the parish of Jefferson.

☞ A man by the name of G. Stockley, was yesterday brought before Recorder Genois, on a charge of swindling. He was remanded for further examination.

THE COUNTERFEIT PLATES.—Through the polite noise of his Honor the Mayor, we yesterday had an opportunity of examining the counterfeit plates, the surrender of which by Vincent Clark, was one of the conditions whereby that notorious counterfeiter obtained his discharge from custody by order of the Attorney General. The following is a description of them:—

Five dollars State Bank of Indiana, letter B, payable at Indianapolis; centre vignette, a harvest scene, with the figure of a female in the fore ground, with the portraits of Washington and Franklin on either side.

Five dollars Northern Bank of Kentucky, letter E, payable at Lexington, centre vignette, a train of Railroad cars, (both of these, are on these same plate, which is of copper.)

One dollar Bank of Louisiana, letter E, centre vignette, the British coat of arms, a lion and an unicorn on either side of a shield, surmounted with a crown with the motto of honi soit qui mal y pensé, on the rim of the shield.

One dollar, same bank, and similar vignette.

Two dollars, same bank, similar vignette.

The notes from these plates were doubtless intended for circulation in the Canadian Provinces, as the vignette would at once stamp them as spurious, if offered in the United States. They are all engraved on the same plates, which is of copper.

Two dollars First Municipality, New Orleans, letter C, with the name of Thomas Duplessis, Treasurer, engraved—plate of steel.

One dollar Bank of Louisville, Kentucky, letter A centre vignette, a train of Railroad cars, and a steamboat, with the name of H. CLAY, on the wheelhouse; spurious—plate of steel.

In referring to the description of the notes contained in the bank which was discovered by Captain Youmes, at the time of his seizure of Vincent Clark, we find only, the two dollar notes of the First Municipality, and the one dollar notes of the Bank of Louisville and the Lafayette Bank of Cincinnati to agree with the notes contained in the trunk. The first have gone out of circulation, and the latter are spurious. The plates from which the notes on the following banks, which were also found in the trunk, still remain to be accounted for. One dollar City Bank of Orleans; $5 State Bank of Indiana, letter H; $10 State Bank of Indiana, letter A, $10 Northern Bank of Kentucky, $10 State Bank of Missouri, $2 Hamilton county Bank, Ohio, $20 Commercial Bank of Orleans and $20 Merchants and Traders Bank of Albany.

The Attorney General at the time he ordered Clark to be discharged from custody, we have no doubt, felt assured, all of the plates had been surrendered by him.—That he has been most grossly deceived by the "persecuted man," is made apparent by the following extract from the letter of the Attorney General, which appeared in our columns of the 18 ult instant:—

"I have in my hands full spurious paper was discovered and secured by Captain Youmes in close quarters of information given by Clark himself

"Thus the officer, in consideration thereof, and that Clark would cause the plates with which the notes were made to be delivered up, and make a full disclosure of his acts and accomplices, promised to intercede with the prosecuting officer in his behalf.

"Clark after remaining in prison four months, caused the plates to be delivered up—seven in number, of the identical paper found in his trunk. They are now deposited at the Mayor's office."

INQUEST.—The Coroner was yesterday called upon to hold an inquest at the house of Mr. H F. Weise, in an west leading from Bienville street, between Dauphine and Burgundy streets, upon the body of a negro child between 12 and 15 months of age, who died suddenly during the morning. After a minute investigation, the Jury came to the conclusion that the deceased came to its death in a natural manner. Considerable care was taken in making the investigation in consequence of the singular manner in which the child became one of the occupants of the house in which it died. On the 3d inst. Weise called upon Recorder Genois and informed him that some three weeks previous, a negro woman had come to his house and left a negro child, and that he wished to be informed by his Honor of his disposition he should make of it. On the 15th inst. a woman by the name of Mary Ann Wright also called upon the Recorder in relation to the same affair. She stated that some two months since she had seen a negro woman at Weise's house, who, after remaining there during the night, disappeared the next morning, leaving her infant child. During the ensuing day Mrs Weise informed her that the negress was a runaway, and had given her the sum of $15 to take care of her child. The Recorder immediately ordered Weise to be arrested, and held him to bail to answer to the charge of harboring a runaway slave. Weise has as yet not been examined—the fact of the negress being a runaway not being established.

FOR THE WATERING PLACES.—The steamer Patrick Henry leaves the Lake end of the New Canal this after noon, upon the arrival of the 5 o'clock Passenger Barge, and the Railroad upon the arrival of the 5 o'clock train of cars for all of the Watering Places on the Lake shore.

The steamer Creole, will also leave the Railroad upon the arrival of the 5 o'clock, P. M. cars for the same delightful retreats.

The steamer James L. Day leaves for Mobile this morning upon the arrival of the half past 5 o'clock cars, touching at all of the Watering Places going and returning.

☞ The commodious and fast running steamer Bourbon, Capt. Hoffman, leaves the Lake end of the Railroad, for Mandeville, Louisburg and Madisonville, upon the arrival of the 4 o'clock, P. M. cars.

☞ With respect to Mr. Huno, the Courier is assuredly mistaken. That gentleman was formerly a locofoco and is now a whig. For this assertion we have the authority of a neighbor and friend of Mr. Duns, whose veracity is unimpeach
