JENNY LIND.

The people of New York are just now affected with the Lind craze, a species of epidemic which does not [illegible] extravagant devotion and enthusiastic worship to sacrifice common sense at the shrine of absurdity. Every [illegible] opera in Europe from the Emperor down, and [illegible] Ten Thousand to the [illegible] metropolis. It is, however, [illegible] the fun that spacious [illegible] metropolis. It is, however, [illegible] the enthusiasm which [illegible] the citizens which [illegible] seems to be without danger or [illegible] by its excesses.

The press of mighty Gotham, which mirrors the tone of public sentiment, is deeply infected with the prevailing disorder. In chronicles [illegible] Jenny Lind has no thought for anything but the Swedish Nightingale, it records [illegible] but her sayings, and singings and doings. She gave a concert on the night of the 11th, and New York was at once in a fever. She gave a second concert on the 16th, and the excitement augmented, accompanied by every exception of delirium. We present some [illegible] the return of sanity and [illegible] the enchantress removes her spell, by [illegible] from the city.

Every [illegible] to arrive at a just appreciation of the vocal merits of Miss Lind [illegible] the extraordinary furore excited by her presence and performances. Not even the New York [illegible] furnishes any [illegible] to Jenny Lind's vocal powers [illegible] the most reader might be disposed to credit [illegible]. With one exception, [illegible] are so vague, general and [illegible] that, but expressive terms Superb, Divine, Angelic [illegible] adequate conception of the [illegible] of Jenny Lind's voice. We [illegible] her precise capability as a songstress [illegible] the Courier des Etats Unis [illegible] exception, and the Editor [illegible] leaving his readers what he [illegible] Miss Lind, contents himself with a [illegible] in other respects.
