GREAT SALE OF TOWN PROPERTY.

ON Monday, the 28th of October next, in the commence at Columbus, Hickman Co Ky, one of the greatest sales of town property which has perhaps ever taken place, will be made by Mr. Jas. Blake, who has seven hundred acres in town for sale in Columbus, one acre, four half acre and smaller lots to upwards of forty acres, of every size and situation to suit all tastes, and purchasers, at a small advance only, on the town of Columbus, but on the Mississippi River. The value of this property is perhaps not to be equaled by that of any similar unimproved property in the Union, and an opportunity of purchasing property should not be offered to one of the most valuable investments of the kind which can probably be ever made.

Columbus is the nearest eligible point for a town to the seat of navigation on the main Mississippi River, being but about 20 miles below the mouth of Ohio; it is the only place in the Mississippi River, that is to occupy one of the finest and handsomest sites in the world for a large town or city. Its landings in most seasons of the year are with those of any other in the world. It has the situation as for ship boat and dock yards. It is surrounded by a country which can compare with any in the west, or in the Union, in point of fertility, and in the depth of its soil. It is now red with inexhaustable quantities of the finest timber for ship and boat building and for near all other purposes.

Add to all this, this place is not only by far the best and most general crossing place on the Mississippi River, below the mouth of the Ohio, having only about a mile and a half at most, and is passable at all seasons, but it is the nearest eligible point to the centre of the Union for the future seat of general government, and most of some days is come the grand question, state point between New Orleans and all the upper parts on the waters of the Mississippi River.—Much more could be said about this place but we deem it unnecessary. Any gentleman who may wish to make a profitable investment of their money, by to call and examine for themselves, confident that they will find what we have said about it to be true.
