

http://cd3wd.com/cd3wd/Cd3wd_Press_Release_2011119_extreme_makeover.pdf #PressRelease This_is_a_Press_Release

cd3wd is today released as a new version. Salient points are:

- Strategic direction is towards DFDP – dvds for dvd-players – which will expand greatly the numbers of people who can benefit from cd3wd. Also towards schools, colleges, education and vocational education. Also towards language translation. And last towards learning to read (children) and learning to read (adult literacy and foreign language teaching). Note that as well as DVD Players, digital photo-frames are also very useable as low-cost e-book-readers using the jpg standard. They tend not to be portable and are mains operated, but conversion to rechargeable batteries is pretty simple if required. We are talking US$ 70-00 for a high quality (e.g. Kodak 7 inch P725 800x600 resolution color screen 8GB onboard storage) unit. These are a solution for people living in rooms or part-rooms without dvd-player and TV, and would also be ideal for use by school and college students
- The additional content is primarily from Wikipedia-for-schools (600 mb) and from Project Gutenberg (1.6 GB – 3722 titles)
- The product is integrated with cd3wd-for-schools
- The product is released on 6 dvd's for computer (it was previously 5 dvds). There is one additional (7th) DFDP – dvd for dvd player – dvd – this is #10017 – a mature product which has been sold in the domestic Botswana/Gaborone market for some weeks now
- Everything apart from the Gutenberg 3722 titles (which are in html format) is in pdf format. About 20% of those pdfs are in our DFDP-preferred LP (large print) format – which is typically 50 characters wide x 20 lines per landscape page which is in A4, A5 or A6 size and ratio.
- There is a small amount of file duplication, some of which is small print vs. large print (sp vs lp) versions of the same file

- PDFill PDF Tools (free) is bundled with the disks, as is WinXlator translation utility (which handles English, Spanish, French, Portuguese, Brazilian Portuguese, Romanian and some other minority languages)
- Google Desktop is bundled also as an offline search engine
- There is no hierarchy on the disks anymore – all files are in one flat directory
- The files have various tags which help as follows:
 - The categories (and sub-categories)
 - _ag_ agriculture
 - _wa_ water
 - _wi_ wind
 - _sl_ solar
 - _sa_ sanitation
 - _ck_ cooking and recipes
 - _mc_ medical and health
 - _bg_ biogas
 - _lit_ literature
 - _ed_ education
 - _engy_ energy
 - _ind_ industries
 - _ac_ accounting and business management
 - Etc..

- _lp_ for large print, _sp_ for small print, if no tag then assume small print
 - _pc_ _pa_ _gtz_ _skat_ etc for originating organisation
 - _es_ for Spanish, _fr_ French, _po_ Portuguese _cn_ chinese _en_ English etc . If no tag then default is english. About 70% of content is English, with 10% Spanish, 10% French and 10% portuguese
- Each pdf file has a number which will assist identification and navigation for DFDP dvd's (since they only show the first 8 characters of the filename when browsing). These numbers are essentially alphabetically allocated but might as well be random. There is a 10 number increment, which we may use for versioning
 - We are looking to create improved versions of some of the pdf's – this may be done by the originating organisation or by volunteers or by ourselves if we ever get funding – the numbering system will help with that activity
 - The new way of storing and utilising cd3wd makes it very easy for people and organisations to contribute new content and to update existing content – please do so!....
 - You can make your own DFDP products – imgburn free disk burning utility is also bundled with cd3wd. The jpg files can be created directly using pdfill pdf tools (free) from pdf files which have the _lp_ tag; other files will need some reworking first. Some of the portrait-orientation pdf's may be processable to larger-print landscape pdf's by truncating the top and bottom halves to create 2x the number of existing pages as landscape; others will need to be OCR'd to htm and then printed to pdf using pdfill. This technique enables a government or farmers group to disseminate info from their computer to a number of DVD Players, and its importance should not be underestimated.

- There is quite a bit of repetition and duplication within cd3wd – one thing that needs to be done is to select the best titles from each subject area and to convert them into DFDP products for packaging on one or more DFDP dvd's. Outside assistance on that score is very welcome...
- There is tremendous scope for reverse engineering school textbooks and for contributing printed and teachers notes for all subjects
- A future offering will be a dvd with freeware software for windows, linux and android – collaboration is welcomed for that
- Translation to Chinese Arabic, Spanish, Russian, urdu, hindi, tagalog, Indonesian etc etc is very important – we need offline repeat offline translation tools for those and other languages please, and we need volunteers to do online and other translation. The new pdf-based format makes everything like this so easy....
- The stuff will be available for download about 15 december 2011 – forgive our slow processes. Downloads will be 7 x 4.33 GB .iso files from the <http://cd3wd.com/cd3wd/> directory. Airmailed chargeable and free dispatches will start about the same date. Note that we had some paypal.com problems which have disrupted the operations of our USA-based dispatch guy – we are currently checking out USA and UK based alternatives but all other kinds of options are viable, including Germany, France etc – anywhere with a decent and affordable mail system and someone who uses paypal
- If you want to give friends or family cd3wd by airmailed dvd for Christmas then email us – alexweir1949@gmail.com – we will pull all the stops to effect postage for that.....

This_is_a_Press_Release #PressRelease 2011.10.28

Welcome to disk #108 in the <http://cd3wd.com/dvd/> series

Q. What are these disks trying to achieve?

A. We are trying to bring high quality low cost advances to third world education and indeed to education globally. We believe that for a long time, education has been a high cost low quality activity. The technology now exists to radically alter that situation, and it is time for things to change.

Q. Please outline the main disks on offer

A. There are 2 main disks at the moment:

- #108 – which is Wikipedia for schools (about 70% of) plus project Gutenberg (the best 3722 titles out of 17,000/30,000 titles in total), plus material on small business, health, French, and technical subjects (auto mechanics, electrical trades, construction, woodwork and metalwork). #108 is designed to operate on windows, linux, mac or android devices or pc's, smartphones, and maybe even on basic java CIEM's (cheap internet enabled mobiles – but internet connection is not needed – only a browser and/or pdf reader)

- #10017 – which is Wikipedia for schools (the same 70%) plus about 30 titles from Project Gutenberg plus the complete KJV Bible plus 1000 pages of children’s illustrated stories. #10017 is designed to operate on dvd-players with television – even a 21 inch (54 cm) colour set is very useable. The content is high-quality (704x576 resolution – NTSC television standard - with 75% jpg quality) jpg files digitally created as book pages. This opens up the audience for all kinds of educational and training material from a mere 500 million pc users to 3+ billion DVD-player owners globally, and is a very significant move forwards. Please note that we do try to avoid pro-Christian bias - #108 content includes 5 translations of the Koran to English

Q. Will these DVDs replace and supplant traditional paper textbooks?

A. There is no reason why not after some time

Q. How will the availability of such rich low-cost accessible material affect the classroom?

A. There will be pressure to make large-screen TV’s, driven by content on pc/laptop or on DVD-player, present in every classroom in every school in the world. Teachers will largely teach from these screens, using a laser pen. There will also be a place for whiteboard/blackboard and for free-ranging teacher lecture and interactive discussions. And conventional video will also have a place, including high quality free public domain video’d lectures a la Khan Academy

Q. Do your products have any impact on educational relevance?

A. Yes and No. For many years many people have suspected and/or known that Western Educational Syllabi are unsuited to the majority of Third World students. Now we have it officially that these same syllabi are also unsuited to the majority of Western students. Our products and other similar products may make any and all switches easier. Whether school and ministry staff and teachers will see the writing on the wall is another matter

Q. How will your product affect the gap between private and state schools, in the Third World and in the West?

A. The low-cost accessible availability of high quality content to all will enable children at state school to compete very effectively with the privileged at private schools. Private schools may therefore at first see these educational products as a threat. But they will have no choice but to accept and adapt. Private schools throughout the Third World in general supply high cost low quality education for the privileged elite. Time for some change

Q. How will these products fit into the existing educational mix?

A. They will be of particular relevance to the new phenomenon of 'backyard schools' which one now finds in Zimbabwe (after the supposedly progressive MDC Education Minister David Coltart set the state school fees at prohibitive levels). These backyard schools with some small investment can now offer a high quality education based on high quality freeware public domain content. Those who cannot afford any school whatsoever can now do home schooling based on one or several DVDs costing US$ 0.30 which run on their DVD player and TV.

Q. The economics? And the logistics?

A. An average school child consumes on average maybe 10 textbooks per year of average size 150 pages (climbing by year of course), and costing typically US$ 100/year. This is approximately 18,000 pages and US$ 1200 over a 12 year school career. A DFDP DVD contains about 75,000 pages and costs US$ 0.30 to make. A computer DVD contains about 1,000,000 pages and costs the same US$ 0.30 to make. The economics are quite compelling. Even in remote villages and/or remote growth points without electricity, a combination of TV, DVD-player and generator (or solar array) will provide the necessary infrastructure for the bookless school to operate. The same video parlour or hall which hosts education during the day can host entertainment in the evening

Q. What about the audience who have no English?

A. We include with disk #108 the freeware utility WinXlator09 – which enables offline translation between English, Spanish, French, Portuguese, Brazilian Portuguese, Romanian and a few other minority languages. This extends the potential audience from 1 billion to 2 billion people globally. We are also actively seeking additional freeware offline translation utilities for other major languages such as Chinese, Arabic, Russian, Hindi, Urdu, etc etc.. We hope and anticipate that other players will produce DFDP content in their language – either a translation of our content, original stuff, or a mix

Q. Are any more products in the pipeline?

A. Yes – cd3wd.com itself is undergoing an extreme makeover at the moment, which should be complete and available for download and for free and chargeable airmail well before Christmas 2011 (it will make an excellent Christmas present – for Christians and for everyone else also!). Everything will be in pdf content. Files will be fully named and be name-searchable. A major part of the re-mastering is oriented towards issuing DFDP products (DVD for DVD-Player – as per #10017 above), but there will also be very real benefits in general due to the standardisation and the simplification of subject and sector indexing and search

Additionally, cd3wd will be working on some Learn to Read and Count products, which utilise DVD-player slideshow with voiceover. These will be for English at junior and adult education level, and also for many foreign languages from other language basis. A very exciting area, which will probably need some professional collaboration (regrettably unpaid)

Q. How can people without computer at home gain the same advantage from your products as those with computer?

A. They can buy both the DFDP and the conventional dvd-for-computer (DFC) disks. They can mainly read from the DFDP product at home and sometimes refer to the DFC product in a cybercafé, friend's house, or school computer. If desirable, then they can even make their own DFDP products from DFC content using the freeware tools which we provide on-disk. If appropriate and economic then they can of course print pages from both the DFDP and the DFC disks.

Q. Do you welcome third-party contributions of teaching material?

A. Very much – we hope that schools, teachers, retired teachers, colleges and others will contribute high quality public domain material for us to distribute. Email content to alexweir1949@gmail.com please

Q. Can teachers use your technology to create their own PC and DFDP DVD's?

A. Absolutely yes – we provide on disk #108 the necessary software tools and detailed documentation. They can also use these tools to break down, re-work and reconstitute our content supplied on the disk

Q. Your overall strategies?

A.

- integrate cd3wd-for-schools with the original cd3wd product (which covers agriculture, forestry, fisheries, small industries, technical trades, water and sanitation, construction, food processing etc etc)

- everything oriented towards 4+ platforms:

- windows, linux, mac, android

- dvd player

- smartphone

- CIEM

- distribute and disseminate through a combination of free and vended products and supply chains

Q. What exactly are you doing for the dumber devices? (windows CE, android etc)

A. Two things:

- we are putting as much as possible on pdf in preference over html, and also we are putting the index file as a pdf – since these dumber devices do not like to show pdf files inside an html frame and do not like to jump from an html index to a pdf file

- we have put on disk #108 several batch files which enable the user to divide the 4.33 GB DVD contents into 4 packages of average 1.1 GB each – which can be copied for example onto 2 GB sd cards on smartphones and maybe CIEMs. These packages can also be easily loaded onto 2, 4, 8, 16 and 32 GB USB flash drives for use on netbooks which have no internal hard drive and which cannot utilise external hard drives but which can access external USB flash drives up to 4, 8 or 16 GB capacity. The indexes we have not yet altered, therefore the file selection experience may be slightly frustrating, but we are heading in the right direction

Q. How will the extreme makeover new cd3wd look when you release it before Christmas 2011?

A. The exact configuration is still in flux, but there will probably be 5-6 DFC DVD's which will be split approximately as follows:

- agriculture - one disk

- accounting, business admin, medical, health, windpower – one disk

- biogas, appropriate technology, energy, solar, cook stoves, micro-hydro, ecology – one disk

- water, sanitation, transport, wood working, metal working, electrical, automotive trades – one disk

- encyclopedia, textbooks and great literary works – Wikipedia-for-Schools plus Project Gutenberg - disk #108 or its close cousin

They will run as standalone disks or can be easily consolidated on internal or external hard drives or USB flash drives using on-disk batch files and robocopy utility

There will also be some DFDP's – DVD's for DVD Players! – we estimate that the complete 5 disk DFC cd3wd will fit on probably 10 DFDP DVD's – that is a very exciting prospect. It is only the sizeable work of re-mastering of many of the pdf files to enable large and bold typeface which is holding us back from getting these DFDP's out onto the streets right now

There is also space for 1-2 disks of practical and useful freeware for linux, windows, windows CE/mobile and for android smartphones and tablets – similar to what we have been doing on disk #5 of the present cd3wd, but more of it and more up-to-date. Collaboration on this mini-project would be greatly welcomed.

Watch pages <http://cd3wd.com/cd3wd/> and <http://www.facebook.com/pages/cd3wdcom/108251079258502> for availability of downloads and free and chargeable airmailed product!

Q. Who funds these activities?

A. No-one at the moment. We are currently in a subsist-on-nothing mode. All donations welcome (<http://cd3wd.com/donation/>)

Q. How do we get this stuff?

A. These products and more will be available for free download globally from <http://cd3wd.com/> in the near future (probably 1 December 2011). The downloads will each be a single .iso file of 4.33 GB and/or a 4.33 GB torrent. Free airmail dispatches to any and every third world location will be on offer - for as long as we can fund that (!). Chargeable airmail dispatches will be available from our USA mailing center at US$ 20 for a 5x dvd set and approximately pro-rata (charges to be set closer to 1 December 2011).

Q. Do these products have relevance in the West?

A. Very much! – education sectors globally are moving to privatised models, state sectors are declining. Education is not reacting and since it is a producer-driven industry it is not thinking about the consumers and the quality of their education. Cd3wd products for the Third World are completely relevant also for UK, USA and other Nations in Decline and Nations in Ascent. Moreover, even in UK and USA there is an underclass of people who do not have computer at home, but who do have DVD Player. Our DFDP products will be perfect for them. Finally, there is a move even in the UK to get education back to basics, with a stronger emphasis on vocational studies and less on the bullshit subjects (which will be reserved for the less-intelligent children of the elites)

Q. How do these products retail on the street?

A. In the Third World, at typically US$ 0.30 – US$ 3.00 per DVD, depending on the vendor and the purchaser

http://cd3wd.com/dvd/104_cd3wd_Overview_of_DVD_20111004.pdf

Welcome to cd3wd.com/dvd/104/

This DVD is 4.22 GB of high quality third world development information in PDF format, encompassing:

- School education, secondary, primary and pre-school – the majority of the content originates from the Wikipedia-for-schools project
- Technical Vocational Education by IBE, GTZ and Crystal – <http://giz.de> :
 - o Auto mechanics and electrics
 - o Electrical engineering and electronics
 - o Metalwork
 - o Woodwork
 - o Construction
 - o Water
 - o Sanitation
 - o Farm Buildings
 - o And much much more!

It does NOT include any <http://gutenberg.org> material – that is found on dvd's 102 and 103

There is a small amount of duplication, much of which arises from the business of creating master DFDPs – DVD for DVD-Player – you will find that there are 2 versions of some titles – one with much larger print than the other....

Who is the disk for? Anyone with a computer or with access to a computer (e.g. at work or in a cybercafé) – school students, college students, adults, churches, schools, colleges, universities – there is something for everyone. The disk can be loaded onto one or a million PC's and will operate perfectly with no installation process required. It can operate on a web server also with no setup – cybercafés can operate the content locally without it or the users consuming any external bandwidth....

The content is 101% legitimate – and 0% pirate – you are safe using this stuff.

Enjoy!

This_is_a_Press_Release #PressRelease – http://cd3wd.com/dvd/cd3wd_dvd_PressRelease_20111003.pdf

Gaborone, Botswana, Monday 3 October 2011 (2011.10.03)

Subject: A Quiet but Important Revolution in Training and Information Technology for the Third World

Executive Summary: Existing available DFDP (DVD for DVD-Player) technology will revolutionise the Third World by putting high quality low- or zero-cost content into 60+% of Third World Homes. The necessary content is there, the technology is there, the DVD-Players and TV's are there. All that is required is a re-mastering – and in some cases machine translation - of existing material and the dissemination of that re-mastered material throughout the Third World.

Text: Imagine having a computer in 60% of Third World Homes – imagine what could be done in terms of education and training. Imagine how the existing poor quality and expensive schooling could be augmented or even circumvented. Well – we have that number of computers already in Third World Homes. No – we are not this time talking about mobile phones, smartphones etc – we are talking about the humble DVD Player and the 21 inch colour Television (or larger).

OK – the result is a passive experience. But – we can get 6,000 pages of high quality colour content, in text plus photos, diagrams, and – when required – even sound, on to one standard 4.33 GB DVD costing $0.25, and which can be retailed for in the region of $0.50 through $3. If you consider that the average school-kid consumes about 1,000 text book pages per year, then we have 6 years teaching material for $0.50. The implications are enormous and extremely promising. High Quality Vocational Education content and material in agriculture, construction, health, water & sanitation etc are all already available – but sitting on shelves and waiting for computers to arrive in the Third World home.

How will this revolution spread? This will go by itself – no help from governments, media, donors etc is required – but the pace of dissemination will be faster if any or all of those 3 organisations are on board.

This_is_a_Press_Release #PressRelease 2011.09.24 - http://cd3wd.com/dvd/cd3wd_com_PR_20110924.pdf

cd3wd.com are pleased to announce the following product releases and also a statement of present and future strategic direction:

- As of approximately 2011.10.10 there will be 7 new dvd's available for free download and for dvd mailing dispatch (free for third world destinations and $4/dvd for other destinations). This is in addition to the existing 5 dvd's which form the core of the cd3wd project
- 3 of these new dvd's have as major sources:
 - o Wikipedia for schools (#101)
 - o Project Gutenberg (RIP Michael Stern Hart, visionary founder of Project Gutenberg, who died aged 64 in September 2011) (#102 and #103). <http://gutenberg.org>

And these run on computer, with htm, txt and pdf files

- The other 4 new dvd's run on dvd-player, using existing technology, to produce a high quality readable output. This enables the very-low-cost dissemination of digital content into 60%+ of third world homes (including shacks and traditional mud dwellings), and is in fact a major revolution, which should be equivalent or superior to the positive impact of the mobile phone on Third World Development
- #10004 is a Technical dvd – with automotive engineering (500 pages), electrical engineering and electronics (2,000 pages), construction (2,500 pages), metalworking (4,500 pages). There are also woodworking content (1,100 pages) on a revised and reissued dvd #5 from the core cd3wd collection. The content is in English language created by the German GIZ/GTZ/Crystal Project with the Berlin Institute fur Befurliche Entwicklung – it is top quality material which is applicable across school, college and university, and is equivalent or superior to top-level textbooks.

- #10001 is effectively Wikipedia for Schools – a 10,000 page encyclopedia – it contains about 60% of that project (we may release the other 40% as DFDP – dvd for dvd-player – at some time in the near future)
- #10002 is 30 classic novels, plays and poems from Project Gutenberg, along with reviews of those 30 publications from Wikipedia for Schools – 10,000 pages of content
- #10003 is a Religion dvd, with Christianity, Islam, Buddhism, Hinduism, Judaism, Sikhism etc etc.. – full text KJV Bible from Gutenberg, 5 translations of the the Koran from Gutenberg, and reviews of religions from Wikipedia for Schools – 10,000 pages of content

Strategic Direction

- We will issue DFDP (DVD for DVD-Player) dvd's on core areas of existing cd3wd and on totally new content – this work will be a top priority – taking cd3wd to Where There Is No Computer. We are encouraging the copying and sale of these DFDPs (and indeed of the complete cd3wd product line) for US$1.50 - $3 each (which compares favorably with a typical Third World price for movie dvd's of $3 each)
- We are starting to digitalise our bulky non-OCR'd pdf files from cd3wd products #1, 2, 3, and 4. News on when we expect to complete and reissue as the project commences... We are using Abbyy Finereader 11 – already procured. The advantages will be for internet and for desktop / offline searching, and also as a precursor to translation (user-translation and also centralised translation).

There will also of course be a reduction in distribution costs and number of dvd's and size of downloads. Expected completion and issues as the project develops.

- We are putting free high quality offline translation utility WinXLator09 on the reissued cd3wd #5 disk and download, and encourage cd3wd users to translate as they need. They may also feed back to us raw or manually-edited translated content in any and all languages for us to incorporate in future cd3wd releases. This package however only translates to Spanish, French, Portuguese and Romanian (and thereby potentially expands the English-language base of 1 billion people to 2 billion). We actively solicit * freeware high quality OFFLINE translation tools to Chinese, Arabic, Urdu, Hindi, Tagalog, Indonesian, Russian and many other important languages
- We are considering doing machine translation on the complete cd3wd or on only a core of cd3wd in the future. We will probably use Babylon or Power Translator. Advice * on this would be appreciated and welcomed.
- We will change our primary presentation and storage from htm to pdf. And we will issue secondary or auxiliary pdf's which are suited to mass printing, probably to small print (2,4,6,9, 15 per A4 page, double sided) and which can be read using magnifying screens. This will we hope reduce costs and facilitate logistics for people with this requirement set.
- Donation appeals * so far have been largely ineffective (but thanks to all those who DID contribute!). cd3wd will be actively pursuing all kinds of funding options (including self-funding), but the core principles and practice of free downloads and free third-world dvd distribution will remain in perpetuity. I guess I should detail and webpage soon all the contributions made so far (with fuzzy email addresses), so that our finances are transparent....
- We welcome Subject Matter Experts (SMEs) to write short critiques of cd3wd, to write overviews of their subject area, and maybe even to produce indexes of sub-zones of cd3wd. There can easily be more than one SME per subject area. Unfortunately the posts are unpaid. And the contract can be terminated at any time by either party.... Submissions * by email please...

- There is a need for sub-indexes (as mentioned briefly above), to make it easier for the user to find material on what she is looking for (note political correctness). This need will diminish once cd3wd is fully digitalised and desktop search can be done, but it will still exist. Please submit * your sub-index by email – there can be several sub-indexes for every subject area..... – thanks!

The END

This_Is_A_Press_Release

Global news, advertising, yellow pages and company directory project for DVD-Players – an exciting use of DFDP (DVD's for DVD-Players) Technology!

There is demand in the Third World for advertising which is widely accessible for low cost – low-cost or zero-cost for the advertisers and also low-cost or zero-cost for the prospects/ searchers

Despite everyone's very best wishes, a widespread universal and affordable internet and presence of sufficient computers and /or smartphones in the Third World is still a few years away. Until that is reached there is a need for alternatives.

One very promising technology is the humble DVD Player. It is possible using existing technology to put digital content on DVD or USB Flash Drive to be read on a simple DVD Player. Sure, it is not technically very efficient, taking typically 60 times as much space as traditional conventional computer data, but it is very effective in terms of universality, and compared to printed magazines, newspapers and the like, it is greatly more cost-effective.

We at Cd3wd have recently been experimenting with this technology with a view to creating content for schools, school students and even adult literacy and adult education. This has been successful, and the ideas and techniques generated lend themselves also to projects like this one.

Modus Operandi:

The advertiser emails a one-page or multi-page PDF file, done in Landscape A4, with a font Calibri and ideally size 12 bold at least (maybe as large as 14 or 16 if wording permits). At the start of the project, all adverts are free, although a sponsor may be used for the entire DVD, whose name, catchy motto, and internet link/ phone number etc appear on the footer and/or header on every page throughout the DVD. As the project progresses, the larger advertisers may be charged, but the small business advertisers should remain free.

In some occasions, if there is too much content, the first page only of every multipage PDF file will be used. But otherwise the advertiser can put photos, diagrams, parts lists, pricelists etc on the PDF. Note that PDF's which are digital will be superior to PDF's which are scanned - since the content of digital PDF's will be picked up by search engines.

File naming is critical – two sequences are used – product and company name. Thus a PDF file can and should be copied by the advertiser and given two names: e.g, P_Hardware_Industrial_Apex_Corporation and also C_Apex_Corporation. – P_ signifies Product and C_ signifies company name. Use underscore _ and not – or space to separate words. Upper or lower case does not really matter.

The PDF files are assembled and combined into large PDF files of up to 500 pages in size. An internal index is created and put on pdf as the first 1-2 pages of the 500-page PDF. Those 500-page PDF files are then processed into photo slideshows, which are also named as P_xxxxxx and as C_xxxxxxx slideshows. For example:

- P_architects_hairdressers
- P_hardware_tinsmiths
- P_travel_agents_zoologists
- C_Apex_property_Glaxo_smith_kline
- C_Greatermans_Naik
- C_Normans_Zootrope

A 500-page (3 MB) PDF converts usually into a 200 MB slideshow, so there would typically be 10 such company-sequence plus 10 such product-sequence slideshows on a full 4.33GB DVD.

Thinking about the logistics of handling such large downloads, it would actually make a lot of sense to have people driving, cycling or running around with USB Flash Drives to distribute the material from the Central Operator to the Agents, who in turn pass it by DVD or USB Flash Drive to the actual Vendors. Even up-country distribution could be by bus or plane. The Agents would be responsible for collecting from the Central Operator and would bear that cost. In a case where the central operator is external to the country concerned, then one SuperAgent will download the content from the internet and the other Agents will get the content from him or her.

Processing from PDF to Photo Slideshow takes typically 40 computer-hours per 4 GB content. Therefore for a weekly publication (advertising or news) a 2-3 PC work-station should be OK. For a daily publication (news) the content should be much smaller, and again maybe a 3-PC rig would work out OK. One operator can easily handle the button pressing on those 3 PC's.

The PDF files are also placed on the Project website with an HTML index, so that they can be searched using Google and other search engines. The same PDF Masters will effectively be used for internet and for DVD-for-DVD-player (DFDP).

These slideshows are then flash-drive-collected by agents – e.g. cybercafés might operate as agents – and they then disseminate the material through burning DVDs and through copying onto USB Flash Drives. End users can also download these slideshows themselves at work or at home – there is no login or restriction. The agents and their vendors make money through charging for DVDs (maybe $1 each, with a blank cost of $0.25) or for copying onto flash drives (10 minutes USB2.0 to copy a completely full DVD – 4GB – the charge may be around $0.25?).

4 GB will store about 10,000 pages of A4 material with a font of Calibri 12 bold.

Roadside vendors can copy onto flash ram using a netbook with 3 USB ports – one for the source USB and the other 2 for target USBs - they can copy 12 x 4GB per hour or 48 x 1GB per hour. They may charge typically $0.25 per copy. The netbook may cost them $150. There are primitive devices also like the Belkin USB anywhere (for $20), but their copy speed is very slow at 0.25MB/second, vs. 6 MB/second per port for a normal USB2 laptop, netbook or desktop. Such primitive and slow devices might be ok for small towns with limited business and where people are not always in a hurry..... With a netbook copy process, robocopy incremental copy or a linux equivalent can be used – so that time is not wasted re-copying content which is already on the client's USB Flash Drive. Some simple directory and date naming convention will be required to be set up to effect this incremental copying. For example:

./20110911/UK_Telegraph

./20110910/UK_Independent

./20110909/USA_NYT

./20110907/DE_Spiegel

./20110907/UK_Economist

./20110907/UK_New_Statesman

./20110906/RSA_MailAndGuardian

./20110905/BW_Mmegi

./20111225/AllAfricaDotCom

./20110911/ZW_Zimbabwean

Since the volume is so much smaller, the service could also copy at the same time the PDF files of the same content as the Photo Slideshows.....

./20110908/UK_Guardian/PSS

./20110908/UK_Guardian/PDF

It would be the job of the end-user/reader periodically at work or at cybercafé to empty his or her flash drive of excess content which could stop the flash drive receiving more files.... Or the vendor could do that maybe if business is quiet enough to permit....

Alternatively the directory structure could be PDF/PSS then Newspaper Name then Date.... – but one standard must be adopted.... Probably on balance PDF/PSS then date then newspaper name is best.... When the files are created and uploaded or top-level-distributed then they will already be in the correct directory naming structure....

It should be possible to combine adverts, yellow pages, company directory, telephone directory and even news on one product. And/or each newspaper may issue its own file / photo slideshow daily to the vendors, who then copy say 2-5 newspapers simultaneously to the customer. Newspapers make their money from their advertisers – the advertisements appear on the PDF's inside and among the stories, and also on their own pages. And electronic material which is public domain (e.g. probably international and domestic news from websites) may well be captured processed and also supplied.

If the advertiser is a one-man business with a low income, then he or she can get the necessary expertise to produce the PDF at the local cybercafé, who can charge for the privilege. When submitting by email to the Central Operator, one can also indicate that it is a one-off or a repeat advert or entry (most will be repeats).

I hereby officially and formally offer to commence such an operation for any or every country – email PDF files as specified above to alexweir1949@gmail.com - if I should get flooded and have to put some of this project on ice and/or pass it on to an in-country resource then you will get notification through <http://cd3wd.com/dvd/adverts/> and through <http://www.facebook.com/pages/cd3wdcom/108251079258502>

As material starts to come in I will put stats on website and facebook as above.... Only when we have a critical mass of info can we issue the first DVD or slideshow for that country, region or economic grouping....

Note obviously that we can handle copy/ content in any and every language – including Chinese, Arabic, Urdu, Hindi, Tagalog, Russian and so many more.....

Cd3wd – helping the Third World to help itself....

Press release

Cd3wd.com has exciting new directions and exciting new products!

 All Rights Reserved Alex Weir 2011 ***

Cd3wd have since about 2003 been busy gathering, collating and issuing free of charge high quality technical development information for Third World Development –

- Agriculture, forestry and fisheries
- Food processing and storage
- Small industries
- Appropriate technology of all kinds
- Economics
- Education
- Health
- Water and sanitation
- Vocational education – metalwork, woodwork and electrical trades
- Etc

22 June 2011 cd3wd issued a major new release of their material, which is now on a 5xDVD set (i.e. 20 GB+). We have been selling this set at $20 to western destinations and giving it away free to Third World destinations. We also provide a free download service, using bit-torrent, for the complete material. Our volume is about 2000 complete downloads per year, plus 100 DVD-set sales per year, plus 100 DVD-set free-issues per year. Since each DVD set contains about 8,000 books, then we are moving around 17 million books per year. This is on par with Project Gutenberg (<http://www.gutenberg.org>), which gets 100,000 books downloaded per day, i.e. 37 million books per year.

We particularly encourage all recipients and downloaders to spread the material as far and wide as possible. Our main intention is to saturate the Third World with our material, but in fact it has proved very popular throughout developed countries also, particularly, but not solely, with survivalists.

This press release is concerned primarily with an additional but complementary direction for cd3wd – formal and informal education and schools in the Third World. It came to our attention that there is some excellent suitable free public domain material out there which is simply not being exploited. We note in particular 2 projects – Wikipedia-for-Schools (which uses Wikipedia material), and Project Gutenberg, which scans, OCR's and disseminates about 30,000 classic fiction and non-fiction book titles which are out of copyright. There is also a very interesting website and project – <http://www.khanacademy.com> – to which we intend to have a look in the near future – their speciality is free downloadable video lectures on a variety of academic and vocational topics.

Cd3wd have also been busy investigating ways to reach Where There Is No Computer – and we have developed some interesting techniques using already-available technology to make digital content available to the masses using the humble DVD-Player. There are probably 3 Billion DVD Players worldwide, as against 500m computers and approximately 1 billion cell-phones (of which maybe 200m are smartphones). Putting digital content onto DVDs and USB Flash Drives for use in DVD Players is not technically very efficient (it takes typically 60x the space as conventional computer formats), but economically, financially and marketing-wise it is highly effective and makes great sense.

So – we are releasing today 3 new DVDs for computers, one of which - #101 - is effectively the Wikipedia-for-schools project plus a few significant bells and whistles. The other 2 - #102 and #103 - are an unlocked and user-friendly version of the first 17,500 books in the Gutenberg Project, again plus a few significant bells and whistles.

We are also releasing an additional 3 new DVD's for DVD-Players. One of these - #10001 - is effectively the Wikipedia-for-schools project re-mastered. It has 10,000 text-book pages and includes Geography, History, Economics, Religion, English Literature, Science and Technology, Mathematics, Agriculture and Art. The second - #10002 - is 20 classic Novels, 3 poems and 7 plays in their entirety, plus also articles from Wikipedia which review and explain these 30 works. This is obviously aimed at English Literature (and contains much more on the subject than the Schools DVD). The Third - #10003 - is a DVD on religion, which contains Wikipedia content on Islam, Christianity, Buddhism, Judaism, Hinduism, Sikhism and others. It also contains the complete King James Version Bible and 5 translations of the Koran, plus a number of writings about the Christian Bible. Thus all three are of great interest for schools, for teachers, for students, and even for children and adults who cannot afford to go to school and who must teach themselves what they can when they can using whatever resources are available and affordable. The first DVD of these three is also effectively a complete encyclopaedia.

There is some chance that readability on smaller televisions will be an issue particularly for the DVD #10001 – the Wikipedia-for-schools re-mastered. We may - repeat may - around 2011/12 re-master and re-issue that material in larger fonts as 2x DVDs to supersede the existing single DVD.

There is one small sub-project tucked in the rear of the Schools DVD-Player DVD – #10001 - it is a 30-minute 312-frame photo slideshow with audio voiceover which assists in the teaching of alphabet, simple words and numbers to young children. This concept and technique also has tremendous scope for Adult Literacy and for TEFL and in fact for teaching any Foreign Language (including Chinese, Arabic, Urdu etc). Depending on the reception of this module and feedback, we may be doing a lot more of this kind of stuff...

What about DVD compatibility? We have mastered all content to the NTSC standard, which plays on NTSC, PAL and SECAM DVD-players and Televisions. So we have global coverage with a single product.

How will we disseminate these 6 DVDs and what will they cost? We are making all 6 downloadable free of charge (apart from your connection or data costs!) through the internet using bit-torrent internet downloads. We will also dispatch from our USA mailing dispatch center anywhere globally for $4 per DVD, payment by Paypal. We also hope to dispatch by airmail totally free of charge to all Third World Destinations – as we have been doing 2011/03 through 2011/09 for the 5 original cd3wd DVD set - this will be dependent on our Western sales cross-funding those give-aways. We are encouraging downloaders and Third World DVD recipients to copy and resell or give away their DVDs. If selling, we are recommending maximum $3 for each of the 3 computer DVDs and $1-50 for each of the 3 DVD-Player DVDs. Our compiled DVDs are quite carefully organised so that selling does not breach any of the terms and conditions set in particular by the Gutenberg Project.

How are the economics? A DVD with this photo slideshow technology typically holds 10,000 A4 pages (5,000 A4 pages if we move to larger fonts for the smaller TV screens). The retail price of 10,000 pages of textbooks is typically $500 (10 outsize 1,000-page textbooks). The cost of paper alone for those 10,000 pages would be about $80. We are suggesting a retail price per DVD of $1-50. And the basic cost of the blank DVD is about $0.25 excluding burning cost. Using USB Flash Drive, there is no consumable cost. The capital cost of a 4 GB flash drive is about $10, and it can be re-used indefinitely. It is the economics and the simplicity and convenience of duplication which appeal so much. Plus the fact that the equipment for viewing is pervasive everywhere where there is mains electricity (and also some places where there isn't – using generator).

Who funds cd3wd? Me, usually with zero resources. I have appealed on many occasions to Donors and NGOs to get interested in using, disseminating or funding cd3wd, but with no success. Possibly my projects are too effective to be interesting to the Development Cooperation Industry. Alex Weir and cd3wd are always open to donations, especially now that ideas are flowing like milk and honey.

Additional impending activities: there are 3 projects which spin-off from the projects detailed here:

- Weekly or daily newspapers by DVD/USB Flash Ram, especially in politically-hostile and conflict-zone environments
- Advertising newspapers, yellow pages and business directories by DVD/USB Flash Ram (they will be duplicated also by internet content and by internet-downloadable PDF files)
- We will possibly re-master the complete existing cd3wd content for DVD-player – that will produce (from 30GB) 1000 GB (1 TB) of files, which we will sell on an external hard drive. Those distributed repositories will be used to copy material-as-required to USB Flash Drives and to DVDs for use by farmers, artisans and others. This mini-project will take about 10,000 hours of computer time. Maybe in fact the complete content will not be processed – maybe we will try to identify the more practical and less academic stuff which is more usable at extension and vocational education level.

Additional cd3wd mini-projects not related to the activities discussed here include digitalisation of the 35% of existing cd3wd content which is in large graphic PDF files (using ABBYY Finewriter we hope). That will assist web and desktop searching, reduce product bulk, and also prepare for machine translation. And also machine translation of the complete cd3wd content to Chinese, Arabic, Spanish, Russian, French, Portuguese and some other languages.

Introduction & Overview to this DVD Set

- Use the PAUSE button on your DVD Player to read this and most of the content!
- Nothing - repeat nothing - on these DVDs is pirated – everything is legitimate, freeware, non-copyright, licensed, public domain, creative commons etc..
- These DVDs may be copied openly ad infinitum and may be sold if the selling price is reasonable – we recommend a MAXIMUM price of US$ 4 per DVD in cases where it has to be airmailed or surface mailed to the recipient, and US$ 3 per DVD for vendor sales. The cost of the blank DVD plus the copying process can be reckoned to be about US$ 0.26 plus maybe US$ 0.14 = US$ 0.40 total, so anything above that is profit or labour cost for the vendor
- Note that there is a (very sensible and correct) prohibition on selling any DVD which has purely Project Gutenberg material on it. For this reason any DVD which we issue which has PG material also has other material (e.g. Wikipedia-for-schools, cd3wd etc) – and any charge for that DVD is applicable only to that non-Gutenberg content. We advise any and all persons who make DIY (do-it-yourself) DVDs to observe also those conditions

- These DVDs are made possible by a combination of factors –

- Inexpensive DVD Players which use the DivX standard and which are pervasive globally (there are probably 3 billion DVD players vs. only 0.5 billion PCs in the world. DVD players cost about US$ 30, computers are still around $400 at 2011 prices)
- Larger screen televisions at decreasing and now almost-affordable prices
- Great software, most of it free, including Slideshow XL, PDFill etc..
- The tremendous projects Wikipedia, Wikipedia-for-schools and Project Gutenberg

- What is the purpose and usage of these DVDs?
 - They are for the formal and informal education of children and adults
 - They can fit into the school system in state and in private schools globally, and they can also be used Where There Is No Teacher
 - They can be used in the classroom on a single large-screen television (probably with a $7 laser pointer). And they can also be used at home by the student (and by the parents)
 - They are books-on-dvd – about 30 conventional 300-page books or textbooks can fit onto one DVD in a format which can be easily read without strain on a conventional, flat-screen and/or large-screen television
 - They are a means to automate or semi-automate education and to greatly decrease the cost of that education and to make it available for more people globally

- What DVDs are available now in this series?
 - There are 3 DVDs for use with computers:
 - DVD #101 - The Wikipedia-for-schools installation/ run dvd, which can only be used on windows PCs, bundled with some other additional material. The WFS content is about 5500 titles of about average 5 pages per title
 - DVD #102 and #103 - 2 DVDs which contain the majority of the Project Gutenberg material (17500 titles x average 200 pages per title), mainly in .txt textfile format. This is extracted from the PG 2006 DVD download. #102 has the 'excellent quality' content, and #103 has the 'very good quality' content. The #102 has about 6,500 titles plus 1.3 GB of goodies, the #103 has about 11,000 titles plus 0.3 GB goodies
 - There are 3 DVDs for use with DVD Player (they will also run on normal PC)

- #10001 is the main schools DVD – which contains material on:
 - Geography – 3000 pages
 - English Literature – 2300 pages
 - History – 1500 pages
 - Religion – 760 pages
 - Economics & business – 650 pages
 - Science & technology – 550 pages
 - Agriculture – 250 pages
 - Maths – 125 pages
 - Famous people – 50 pages
 - Art – 25 pages
 - It also contains pdf files for every page, enabling someone with a computer to print out any or all of the content

- #10002 contains additional material on English Literature – there are 20 major classic novels, 3 poems and 7 plays – the complete text, along with the reviews of those 30 works. These are oriented towards the UK exam syllabus, which is used as-is or in adapted form throughout many (but by no means all) Third World Countries
 - #10003 contains additional material on Religion – and covers Christianity, Islam, Buddhism, Hinduism and several others. There are 5 English translations of the Koran and the complete KJV Bible
- Will there be more DVDs issued in the future or near future?
- This depends of course on the reaction to these ones. The work so far has captured probably 90% of the really useful Wikipedia-for-schools material but only about 30 titles out of the 17500 or 29000 titles from Project Gutenberg. Thus there is some small work possible on the WFS material and potentially a great number of releases on the PG material

- We plan to input some appreciable effort into DVDs for learning-to-read letters, numbers words phrases and sentences. This will use the same photo slideshow technology but with added audio / voiceover. This will be aimed at 5-year-olds but also at illiterate adults and at TEFL (teaching English as a foreign language). It will also go into teaching any and every language, including Arabic (for arab speaker and for foreigners), Farsi, Urdu, Bangla, Chinese etc etc... This is potentially a massive project, and we would like collaboration/ outsourcing please... Maybe David Cameron can assist financially and logistically with his wish to integrate all kinds of foreigners into British Society (Margaret Thatcher of course insists there is no such thing as Society...)
- There is tremendous scope for all kinds of vocational education material – for a Global audience
- <http://Khanacademy.org> has a very interesting range of free video lectures on all kinds of practical and technological subjects. We may want to utilise some of that...

- The main gaps remaining on the WFS material are:
 - Some history, especially British History (which is not particularly relevant to this global project!)
 - Music
 - Art
 - The more advanced mathematics
 - Science
 - Note that the existing output from Wikipedia-for-schools is weak in the area of mathematics and also in agriculture. Our cd3wd content should be useable to beef up that agriculture content for schools – that will form part or whole of a near-future DVD. The maths can be upped by reverse engineering existing maths textbooks – again a nice project for someone (probably myself!?)

- Some possible areas on the PG material are:

- Special language DVDs – there are about 2500 non-english-language titles. Therefore there is great scope for in particular (with Third World relevance in mind):
 - French language DVD (Alliance Francaise?) – 300 m audience, much in French-speaking Africa and West Indies
 - Spanish language DVD – 500m audience, much in South America
 - Portuguese language DVD – 200m audience Brazil and Africa
 - Tagalog language DVD – 90m audience Philippines
 - Chinese language DVD (but note that the Chinese script on these cd3wd dvd's was never properly handled – we need to go back to the PG website for them) – 1 bn+ audience?

 - There is too much content in each of the above languages to fit on one DVD, therefore an expert-advised selection process has to take place, which will consider school and grown-up audiences including adult literacy as well as good old-fashioned reading-for-pleasure

- There is also scope for special language editions which are not third-world oriented, but are still aimed at the DVD Player market, rather than the computer market. These will be aimed at the lower income segments in mainly Western societies. We can look at German (Goethe Institute?), Italian, Finnish, Swedish, Danish, Norwegian, Dutch and some others.
- Dual/triple-language DVDs – where there are titles which for example exist both in French and in English then one can master documents which place the two languages side by side on the same screen. This makes language learning and teaching more effective, productive and even fun. This can be an integral part of these special language DVDs as above. Where no translation exists one can even do a PC machine translation (with all its imperfections and unreadability)
- There are potentials to tap directly into Wikipedia itself, without going through the Wikipedia-for-schools and/or Project Gutenberg route.

- There is also potential to marry PG content with Wikipedia (not WFS) content

 - There is some great potential to exploit the traditional http://cd3wd.com/cd3wd_40/cd3wd/ material – 8000 titles on practical Third World Development on 5 computer/pc DVDs. Note that as a general rule, transforming content from pc to dvd player involves a volume multiplication by x60. Thus the 5 cd3wd dvd's would become 300.
 - Thus one should probably only consider DVD Player DVDs for specialised topics and projects within the cd3wd content – e.g. one is running a specific project in a country or a specific region and one wants to get the relevant material out there without spending a fortune on printing. But again existence of electricity supply is a major (but not over-riding) determinant – dvd players and televisions can run from small generators – it just costs more...
- Why has no-one done this kind of project already?

- No large but affordable televisions
 - Under-appreciation of the on-screen print quality realizable by some of the available technologies
 - DVD player technology and in particular DivX DVD Player technology is comparatively recent (2003+)
 - No real way of making/recouping money from creating the necessary masters
 - Lack of thinking out of the box
 - Lack of motivation by the devcoop people (development cooperation/ aid and development industry)
- Other applications for this technology?
- Weekly newspapers/ magazines – on dvd or USB flash ram, with text, video, audio, multiple languages, spoken books/ spoken newspapers content (ideal for illiterate or semi-literate populations)
 - Daily newspapers

- Weekly advertising newspapers, with B2C, C2C and also B2B emphasis
- Phone and business directories and Yellow Pages

- Logistics/ economics?
 - Mastering a complete DVD (4.33 GB, 10000 pages) seems to take about 40 computer-hours using an i5 processor pc, from existing digital content. One DTP-type person could do the job in about 13 hours if he/she had 3 simultaneous computers working for him or her (they can be standalone and don't have to be networked)

 - If the material has to be scanned, then with automatic sheet-feed scanner the man-hours would be little changed. But if manual document feeding had to be done then the labour content would rise to about 200 man-hours per DVD, regardless of how many computers the operator had. Automatic sheet-feed scanner of course requires that the book is unbound for the scanning process, and is therefore unusable or semi-unusable after processing unless rebound

- Impact on global society?

- Potentially appreciable impact in Western economies for all lower income groups without computer at present, otherwise minimal impact

- Potentially huge positive impact in Third World
 - Note that the quality of Wikipedia and of Wikipedia-for-schools is such that it equals or exceeds the quality of existing school textbooks which are used in the West and in the Third World

 - The impact in each country will be partially accelerated or slowed down by the Ministry of Education, but the marketplace will also have a momentum of its own

- What about the playability on various DVD players in the various global geographic regions?
 - We mastered everything to the NTSC standard which is used in North America and Japan – surprisingly, that means that the content should play trouble-free and to high quality on just about every DVD player in the world.... Download a small file from <http://cd3wd.com/dvd/ntsc.zip> to check out whether your dvd player and television can play our normal NTSC dvd's or will require a PAL version. We haven't mastered any PAL products yet and hope not to have to – our aim is strictly global and not parochial – but we will do so if it is necessary

- How do we get our hands on these DVD's?
 - Every dvd and every title on every dvd is/ will be downloadable free of charge from <http://cd3wd.com/dvd/> . You can pick and mix your own USB Flash Ram or DVD from our titles

- We also do DVD airmail dispatches from our center in USA. Our charge is US$ 4 per dvd to anywhere globally, payment by Paypal (or by other means in USA, UK, Botswana and Zimbabwe). We will consider free-of-charge dispatches to all Third World Locations (including Middle East) on a case-by-case basis (if we are – hopefully – overrun with requests we simply will not be able to fund those without donations). Please specify which DVD's you want, using the #10001 etc codes as above

- How can we help the Project?
 - We need money to devote our time 100% to these kind of projects instead of having to grub for a living. Paypal is best at the moment, plus we also have other possibilities in UK, USA, Botswana and Zimbabwe – email on alexweir1949@gmail.com to check. If we have regular or even irregular donation income then we can dream up more good schemes like this one!

- How can we give requests and feedback?

- Comment please at our facebook cd3wd.com page
- Email to alexweir1949@gmail.com
- How can we master our own DVD's?
 - Your investment will be about $41 for the license for Slideshow XL software from <http://www.in-mediakg.de/> or <http://mediakg.com> - you buy that directly, not through us. Otherwise you will be limited to creating slideshows with maximum 10 screens. We have tried other slideshow software, some of which is freeware, but the quality and features are simply not there – don't even waste your time checking. A high quality for readability is absolutely central to this project
 - Complete and detailed instruction plus all the necessary software downloads are on every single dvd

- You will need quite modern (i.e. high-powered) pc not to be waiting forever for output – don't consider it on old tackle

- Can we feed those DIY products back into your central repository?
 - Best is to airmail a free copy to us. Check please by email – alexweir1949@gmail.com – for our current best mailing address

- What about computer viruses?
 - The content is all .avi (video), pdf, htm and txt formats. There are some installation packages on every dvd to enable people to master their own DVDs (they also include ImgBurn, which has to be the best DVD copying and burning tool ever – and it is freeware!). This is an area where malicious people may try to insert viruses. But if you don't install any of those packages you have no worries whatsoever. If you do want to install, then virus check those packages very carefully before and after installing. Download again from the main websites if you have any doubts.

These install files are all contained inside ProcessingTools.zip. Because they are inside that zip file then it is not easy to accidentally install any of those applications by clicking on the wrong file

- Long-term aims?
 - A lot of free CBT (computer-based-training) material for global use for education

- There is no copyright on the technology nor on the use of that technology. Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. Anyone and everyone who imitates and who prospers from that imitation please feed back some of your gains to me and to my projects..... And similarly please donate to Project Gutenberg and to Wikipedia and to Wikipedia-for-schools

Addendum 6 September 2011

There are some possible concerns about readability, quality and acceptability of the text on-screen:

- Some DVD players seem to give better quality than others
- Smaller televisions may of course also give a quality and/or readability problem

This problem if it does occur will probably be less for the novels, plays and poems which have been mastered in Microsoft Word and set to font calibri bold 12. The other main source of material of course is the Wikipedia-for-schools application, from which we printed to pdf using PDFill utility. That did NOT allow at the time seem to allow any tweaking for font size or boldness (but that possibility should be checked)

If it is necessary to modify the content for better readability, the following is possible:

- For the Gutenberg material, go back to the word .docx masters and simply increase the font size from 12 to probably 14. Keep the font to calibri and/or courier new and also of course keep at bold... Then rework all the jpg creation using PDFill and then the slideshow XL creation – quite a big job but by no means impossible

- For the WFS content, there are 3 approaches:
 - Collaborate with the Wikipedia-for-schools project to get access to the original HTML material – that will make everything easier, and is the best option....

 - Use printing from screen using picpick application – after increasing the font size using the CTRL+ buttons probably 2 – 3 times. But that will be very labour-intensive...

- Take the existing pdf masters and convert them to htm using a utility such as PDF2HTM (there are several of these, maybe even a good free one – I am unsure). Then modify the htm to set the font a larger size (and probably also bold), and then print back to pdf, convert to jpg and do the photo slideshow XL processing. Once again a lot of work but can be done...

The impact will be of course on how much material can we get into each DVD – improving the readability will reduce the content-per-DVD – there is a trade-off. But the whole project is still very very cost effective when compared with paper books...

2008/9 Wikipedia Selection for schools

Subject Index

Title Word Index

Welcome to this Wikipedia Selection. This 2008/9 Wikipedia DVD Selection is a free, hand-checked, non-commercial selection from Wikipedia, targeted around the UK National Curriculum and useful for much of the English speaking world. It has about 5500 articles (as much as can be fitted on a DVD with good size images) and is about the size of a twenty volume encyclopaedia (34,000 images and 20 million words). Articles were chosen from a list ranked by importance and quality generated by project members. This list of articles was then manually sorted for relevance to children, and adult topics were removed. Compared to the 2007 version some six hundred articles were removed and two thousand more relevant articles (of now adequate quality) were added. SOS Children volunteers then checked and tidied up the contents, first by selecting historical versions of articles free from vandalism and then by removing unsuitable sections. External links and references are also not included since it was infeasible to check all of these.

Wikipedia is the free encyclopaedia anyone can edit, and develops accurate content but suffers vandalism. Wikipedia is not necessarily a childsafe environment, has "adult" content. This selection of topics have been carefully chosen, tidied up, and checked for vandalism and suitability (by SOS Children volunteers, whom we gratefully acknowledge). We also gratefully acknowledge the Wikimedia Foundation for their support and their agreement to our use of the Wikipedia logo, and tens of thousands of contributors to Wikipedia who have written and researched the content in the first place, including this year adding content where gaps in the school curriculum were not covered.

Topics were chosen for interest to children, by relevance to the National Curriculum and including much of the very best of Wikipedia. The selection is vast, and covers core subjects but does not try to be uniformly detailed: for example it has more depth on Llandudno, which is featured in the curriculum, than other similar places.

WIKIPEDIA
The Free Encyclopedia

Content can be navigated using a pictorial subject index, or a title word index of all topics. The subject index is to help you find relevant articles, not define them, so it deliberately includes topics which people may search for under the subject. For example, we know Pluto is no longer officially a planet but include it in the planets anyway because people may look for it there. Equally countries are put in both Asia and Europe if we think people may look for them in either. The title word index includes alternate article titles (so the article on Pyrite turns up under Fool's Gold etc.) including misspellings.

The content comes in two forms: with just thumbnail images for free download from the SOS Children website or as a 3.5GB free DVD with larger image pictures. Both forms include a shortened copy of the SOS Children website with details of projects in 123 countries. This selection is also browsable online at <http://schools-wikipedia.org/> . The content is covered by various disclaimers and licences.

This Selection includes thirty "Portal Pages", which give a brief overview of a topic and list some key articles within it. For example: Portal for Ancient Greece, Portal for Physics, Portal for Medieval Britain, the Food Portal or the Bangladesh Portal. You can use the indexes to find your way around but the best way is perhaps to pick an article and follow the links to other topics embedded in the text. For example, good starting places are Africa, The Solar System, Tsunami or Apple.

This selection is a part of a larger collection at Wikipedia, which we commend especially for older children. We have tried to tidy up all links to material not included (such as images where we perceived a copyright problem) but occasional "dead-ends" may remain, particularly in "part of a series" content boxes. Please let us know of any other faults, at the present time apart from a deliberate "Easter Egg", all known faults have been fixed. If you find pieces of foreign text appear as "?????" or similar, however, this is likely to be because you don't have a font installed for that language: please check the same article on Wikipedia itself before you complain. Also early versions of Internet Explorer give big gaps on some pages: again, check with a later browser version before letting us know.

Please note that Wikipedia's policies are that content has to be verifiable and based on recognised reliable sources. We have not included references and sources in this selection, but you can check them at Wikipedia online if you have any questions.
