The Moder and are Off-pring, by Stephen Tracy, M. D. The object of this excellent vol-me is to give such instruction to mothers as shallossable them, by proper and judicious man-agoment, to secure to themselves and their off-spring the greatest possible exemption from pain and disease, and the possession of the most robust and vigorous health which their re-spective constitutions will admit.

Yusef, a crustode in the East.—By J. Ross-Browse. This is a delightful book, and smacks.

Yusef, a crusande in the Keat.—By J. Ross Browne. This is a delightful book, and smarks of the telest for description, the pellectal strike, and the delicate hannor of the sustance of "Cruson Ltfe," which every one of the hundred thousand subscribent in Harper's Magazine has read.

The Lawer's Strategren, or the Twe Suffers—A well written tiele, translated from the Swodish of Kmily Carlon.

Harper for Mily—Of course a first-rate non-bet. The leading article on the "Landscapes of the South," is profusely embellanded; so is a Kentucklan in the Keat, and Mr. Abbott's chapter on Napisloon. Besides thits, Bleak House, and a favore other amusing tales render this number sparking and varied.
