HEMP STALK FRAGMENTS
FOR PAPER MAKING.

Possibilities of this Waste Material Investigated by Government Specialists.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—That a satisfactory quality of book paper can be made from hemp hards, the waste stalk fragments produced in preparing hemp fiber for market, is a conclusion reached by specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture as a result of commercial tests made in cooperation with a paper manufacturer. The experiments and the economic surroundings of the use of hemp hards as a paper-making material are described in a new professional paper of the department of agriculture, bulletin 404.

HAPPENINGS 69 YEARS AGO.

(By Count de G. —)

The Jefferson and Lake Pontchartrain Railroad.

It is proposed to continue the present railroad in Jackson street directly back to the lake, as nearly parallel, though in the parish of Jefferson, to the canal as practicable, intersecting one or more of the streets of Carrollton. For the use of the road now constructed in Jackson street the Carrollton Railroad and Banking Company shall hold a certain number of shares of stock, if that company is not disposed to become the chief agent in its proposed extension. The length of the extension is seven miles and the estimated cost twenty thousand dollars per mile.

It is fair to suppose that this road, if constructed, would immediately pay a handsome interest upon its cost, so great is the amount of business and travel which it would accommodate. At the present time there are more than fifty thousand inhabitants above Canal street, and the only means of which they avail themselves to reach the lake is the Pontchartrain railroad passing through the third municipality. Those whom pleasure or pursuit of gain induce to pass eastward by way of the lake would travel upon the Jefferson road instead of the present inconvenient route. Besides, the new road opening the communication direct from the lake to the Mississippi river at the very point where produce is landed which often seeks the markets of Alabama, a part of Mississippi, and the Florida parishes, a large amount of freight would be regularly obtained which would yearly increase. Materials for building would also find their way by the same road to Lafayette, Boutigny and Carrollton—places where the demand will constantly increase. The trade between New Orleans and Mobile, coastwise, which has hitherto been subjected to onerous burdens, relieved and facilitated, must largely increase, making this project of great importance to both those cities.

Louisiana Anti-Tuberculosis Campaign Committee.

(Under the auspices of Louisiana Anti-Tuberculosis League.)

Louisiana has entered the ranks of those States, which will earnestly endeavor by concerted action, to stamp out tuberculosis. It is scientifically known that consumption, termed the great white scourge, can be stamped out of the world in twenty years if the knowledge of its prevention and cure is placed in the possession of the people.

If our government was one of compulsion it would be comparatively simple to enforce the laws for its extermination, but as we must depend for laws and their enforcement upon intelligent public opinion, it becomes everyone's duty to join in this health crusade, which, if properly conducted, will mean that consumption in Louisiana can be brought under control within ten years.

Each week, there will appear some little article dealing with consumption, its prevention and its cure.

In this first lesson we beg to call attention to the fact that promiscuous spitting is the greatest source of infection and if we can teach that "No Spitting Means No Consumption," one-half of the battle is gained.

Readers of these articles are requested, when interested and willing to join the health crusade, to take steps to join their parish organization. These are now in process of organization, and where not effected, information can be obtained by addressing Anti-Tuberculosis Headquarters, 417 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

Universal Military Training Is Beneficial to the Public Health.

New York, N. Y. Oct. 19.—Surgeon General Rupert Blue, of the United States Public Health Service, in a letter to the National Security League gives his unqualified endorsement to universal military training, as beneficial to the public health.

"I believe a system," says Dr. Blue's letter, "under which all the young men of this country could receive military training would be of inestimable value. The outdoor life and physical development which such training guarantees could not fail to improve materially the health and vigor of our entire population."

"Such a system would mean that every young man would receive carefully supervised physical training at an age when the upbuilding of bodily strength is most important—and unfortunately, often neglected. As a preliminary to such training, every youth would be given a thorough physical examination, and the value of this one phase of the system would be enormous, for it would result in the discovery of many physical defects or ailments of which the men themselves might be unaware, and which could be remedied by proper measures.

"It should be remembered also that the elementary principles of hygiene and sanitation form a part of the training of every soldier. The public health value of inculcating these principles in the mind of every youth in the land cannot be overestimated."

President John Grier Hibben, of Princeton University, writing to the League on the subject of universal training said:

"I have received your letter and I am very glad to express to you my conviction that we need in this country universal military training. This will not only insure proper protection in time of war, but throughout the years of peace, which we all hope we may enjoy, it will knit together the citizens of our country in a common work, and give them all a feeling of obligation to serve the nation not only in arms, but through the best efforts of citizenship."
