The Broken Bracelet and other Poems, by Mrs.

Esing, formerly Miss Waterman. We have correct it zealously, and I me also ance of that project with the supported acts, has become here a number of fugitive poems collected to if our hearty and entire gether. They are generally of the fair aver age standard, displaying facility of versifica to hame of the "adjustment," I have been better pleased to on, accuracy of ear, some sprightliness t incy, and occasional poets inspirations of higher order. The pieces smack of the light and graceful style of Mrs. Welby, without, we think, attaining the exuberant imagery and exed tout tiking that "adjust e it confents us and we be of the South.
