

NEEDS OF PRINCETON.

New President of University Says His Plans Require $12,500,000.

Proposes to Make the Undergraduate Work All the Time and He Tells Alumni How He Expects to Do It.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson, the new president of Princeton university, at a dinner given in his honor at the Waldorf-Astoria the other night by the alumni, outlined publicly for the first time his hopes for the extension of the university system at Princeton.

Wilson made a masterly speech, to which the 500 old Princeton men present gave the greatest attention.

When President Wilson was introduced he was greeted with three rousing Princeton cheers. He went into the details of his great ambition for Princeton and then said: "Our dream is to transform the thoughtless boy into the thinking man."

"It is not a part of my proposition to make the undergraduate work all the time, but I do propose to make him work to work all of the time, and I think there is a certain infallible way to do this."

"I have rarely heard a great French orator recite. Grey, the president of the republic, was one of the few, and he recited perfection in reciting Voltaire's verses to Emilie Gambetta."

"I do not think it is going to take a great deal of money. I think I have reckoned it all out on a sound business basis and the total that I have reached is $12,500,000."

FRENCH BOYS TO STAY.

Prof. Ingres Tells of the Aim of the Prospective Chicago School.

Prof. Maxime Ingres, head of the Chicago branch of the Alliance Francaise, is authority for the statement that commercial instruction is not the fundamental aim of the French government in sending students to the new school which it will establish in Chicago.

He says that the idea of the French government in sending students to Chicago is not that they should return to the mother country with new "commercial methods," but that they should stay in America and teach the French language correctly.

HAIR AND INTELLECT.

Inferences About the Subsoil from the Top Crop—Artists and Children Prove the Rule.

Some curious statistics relating to hair have been collected by the school authorities at Lille. Thus, the auburn-haired boys are generally at the head of the recitation classes, and the blonde girls learn their lessons best, says London Truth.

I daresay the auburn boys and blonde lasses in the Lille elementary schools are of Flemish, that is to say phlegmatic, race. Their brains do not grow at once congested when they stand up to recite and for that reason they keep the mastery of the vocal organs."

THE JAPANESE WOMAN.

She is Not a Slave, as Some Suppose, But the Autocrat and Idol of the Home.

"No race can rise higher than its mothers." Japanese women are essentially a race of mothers, and the care and rearing of their children occupies so much of their time and thought that they are unable to have that extensive social life their western sisters enjoy, even were it not for the etiquette which makes it actually fashionable for them to find their pleasures in their homes.

"The position of a Japanese woman is a high one. She is addressed as 'Okusama,' the honorable lady of the house, and she is treated with the greatest consideration and respect by her husband and her family."
