Editorial...

Before I even begin, I'd like to apologise for this issue being a week late. With the multiple dramas going on around Kelly, myself and Exposure Magazine, it was getting like 'Days of our Lives' - so we pulled the pin for some time out...and the plot thickens!

Now I'll get to the point of contention...One Nation. Many have praised and some have despised us for publishing the last feature on Pauline Hanson...and yes we do regret it too. Some have even accused me of "having an agenda", because I did not mention that I was a candidate for One Nation in the last issue. The reason for this is simple...because I wasn't, nor was I intending to be when the last issue went to print. Mind you, I had been asked on a number of occasions to stand for the Seat of Noosa. Because of the encouragement from 'out-there', I decided to go for it...because I (like many of you) am sick to death of the lies in politics. One Nation opened the door for me to look inside...and my God, I'm glad I did before I went any further with them.

Now, I've been exposing politicians for most of my life. I thought I'd be fair and give One Nation a go. Bottom line...they're no different than the rest...full of treachery, riddled with lies, laced in deceit, and basically the 'honesty' bit is a quality long lost down the 'septic'. Now that being said, you may be asking what happened? Well I smelt rats for quite a while...not with Pauline herself, but with the two David's at the top (although in my mind now the three of them fit into this category). I believe I gave them a 'fair go' (gee...those words sound familiar) and found out that they do not even give their insiders one, let alone outsiders. One Nation is a sordid tale of power, egos and (lets wait and see as the writing is on the wall) corruption!

The three at the top would not see a conspiracy if they had it spelt out for them. Mind you, there are covert deals being made with other parties; companies set up; money shifting; none or few receipts given; nepotism is rife and anyone with a brain has either been disendorsed or sacked, (be them candidates, branch officials or just branch members who ask too many of the right questions). And the policies have changed. They are not what everybody was being lead to believe a few months ago.

Now as to the allegations by the Sydney Morning Herald, the ABC and quite a few of the media that I am 'anti-semitic' and 'anti-Catholic', these are just propaganda lies. These types of tactics make me sad and I admit that I just cannot wait to see these organisations get caught out for dishonesty...and slander! It got me really angry when Senator Graham Richardson bagged Exposure on the ABC, and more importantly you the readers as "left wing NAZI scum"...I still can't work that one out! Also I am becoming more agitated with the way the Australia/Israel Review along with their 'Journalistic' henchmen, who constantly bag as 'anti-semites', anybody and anything they cannot use in their agenda. I know the readers of all the alternative magazines are to intelligent to regurgitate propaganda like that. I ask all of the above...what is it that they are afraid of? My only answer is...truth!

Anyway, enough space has been wasted on that, as I am nearly at the end of my page. I hope you enjoy this issue. The articles on the 'Ark of the Covenant' and the short piece on the 'Indian Salt Workers' are two of my favourites. Again thank you all for your continuing support. Patet Omnibus Veritas (may the truth be available to everybody) and lots of love!

Editor.

Re: HYPNOSIS & THE PROTOCOLS

Dear David,

Hello ...I just read the Protocols of Zion book I bought from you. Personally I found the protocols to be descriptive, of many world events this century, although the book's comments about them and the cover were rather racist and misleading. The hypnotic presupposition of looking at the cover is, that old Jewish religious men etc. are to blame. Most Jewish religious people I know wouldn't know a conspiracy if it hit them in the face!

Whoever wrote them does not represent the majority of Jews. Not even close. I'm personally from a Jewish family but objectively, reject the religion for me. And I'm not a member of the Illuminati, either. I am, however, discerning regarding researching information vs focussing on the people responsible. Where blaming the Protocols on the Jews is wrong, doesn't mean no Jewish people had an influence on them. But so what? If the over-whelming majority of Jews today have no idea about anything like the NWO etc, it's pretty important to get the message across more clearly without prejudice, don't you think? I think you are doing a good job for the most part.

As a hypnotherapist myself, I'm used to peoples ignorance and paranoia, even by people who consider themselves to be "investigating the NWO and conspiracies". Some people will actually try and relate practising hypnotherapy with things like MK-Ultra! That's fine for a member of the CIA. But as a treatment for depression and other "stuck" states some people get conditioned into, hypnosis can be extremely positive.

And if I may make a suggestion...that the difference between the message you intend to deliver and what is actually received can be very, very different. And at the end of the day, what is more important? So why not consider questioning using adverts like the "Protocols" book with a cover like that. I mean, if you want to help people free themselves, you need to package information in a way which fits their reality first, not yours. Otherwise its a waste of time.

You know, I wouldn't walk up to a Catholic Priest (for example) whose had 40 years of brainwashing and tell him blatantly about manipulation of the Vatican etc. Instead I would pace his reality, then fit information into his reality through useful metaphors so he could understand it. And that's not manipulative; it's common sense. If someone only understands Chinese and you speak English to them expecting them to understand, my guess is they won't.

I know it can be frustrating and I've spoken to lots of people, family included. It's very easy to get labelled something for how you present information. But if you're not getting the response you want from some people why not change how you inform them? Anyway, whatever you do I support your cause and hope you reach more people in a way that's more beneficial for the world. Thanks and take care!

Sincerely, Adam Szmerling,
Carnegie, Victoria,

Thanks for your comments Adam and I do appreciate where you're coming from. It is very hard (from our perspective) to present all the sides relevant to researching a particular subject, without coming across as bias etc. Kelly and I believe that for anyone to research a subject properly, they need all sides of the story, even if some views are distasteful to us or the reader. Regarding the book you refer to...all we can get is the version with the commentary.

I am glad that you have told us how you feel, because we can only try and do what's right according to the understanding and information we have.

We have published in the last year, the 'for's and against's' of the Protocols. The articles have blamed nobody. They have looked at the issues from all sides.

People who blame the Jews, Christians or the Muslims for the woes of the earth are just as narrow as those who blame people for the colour of their skin. The problems (I believe) lay within our attitudes, prejudices, fears and knowledge. Again thanks for bringing your view to light and best wishes, Ed.

Re: Middle East Politics

Dear Editor,

I have been half asleep most of my life. A lot of things slowly changed for me 34 years ago after a near death experience (it was beautiful) but because I had 5 children, the feeling that they might need me, tipped the scales, and I was allowed back.

I could never get anything in the Middle East worked out until I wrote for the 'Green Book'. I thought it would be about greening Australia. What a delightful shock to read Muammar Qaddafi's 'Green Book'. I've read several more about him, and got the video "The Other Side of Libya".

I have been a slow learner and I'm praying more and more will awaken and know they have the numbers to make changes and make our planet a much happier place. Love is the greatest power!

Sincerely, Hazel Darker,
Fairfield Qld.

Thanks Hazel. Love says all in parenthesis! Ed

Re: Correction; Papus & Native Title

Dear Editor,

Since your Aug-Sept 1996 edition I have pondered the significance of the Masonic Third Tracing Board illustrating a comment on The Masonic Order of the Skull and Bones on p 53 - what is the connection?

The April-May 98 edition however contains two particular factual errors which I feel I cannot let pass without comment. At p.30 Papus is named as past Grand Master of the Ordo Templi Orientis. This is not true as a comparison of the history of Martinism with the history of the OTO would reveal.

Papus (a French Doctor, Gerard Encausse) was Grand Master and founder of many organisations including the Ordre des Supieurs Inconnus. He was a Gnostic Bishop and a participator in the famous magical war between Stanislas de Guaita and Jules Bois. Papus organised an International Masonic Conference in Paris in 1908. During this time Papus received a patent from Theodore Reuss to establish a Supreme Grand Council General Reuss conferred upon Papus the X^o (tenth degree) of OTO, and in return Papus assisted Theodore Reuss with the formation of the OTO Gnostic Catholic Church. There is a record of Papus providing Reuss with a Charter in 1901, designating him Special Inspector for the Martinist Order in Germany. Reuss also received letters, patents and a warrant from John Yarker in England.

Reuss and Carl Kellner prepared the manifesto for the OTO in 1903. Kellner died in 1905 and leadership of the Academia Masonica of OTO went to Reuss. Reuss was succeeded by Alistair Crowley, who in turn was succeeded by Karl Germer.

The second error is on p 35. Father Brendan Walters assures us (3rd hand he admits) that native title rights are vested only in the male person. Well maybe, just maybe, in the Top End. This is not true elsewhere. The first successful claim at Crescent Head, NSW, was made by women. The claim in Byron Bay is being made by women. I direct your attention to Self J & Thomas C, 'Aboriginal Women and the law' Conference paper-Aboriginal Justice Issues (23-25 June 1992) Cairns: Australian Institute of Criminology at p 8 "We had our own magic. We had our own rituals. We had our own ceremonies and corroborees. All to which men had no access."

Sincerely, Fenella Lavender, fenella@midcoast.com.au, Australia

Thanks Fenella, for bring theses points to our attention! Ed.

Letters to the Editor...

Re: Aboriginal States

Dear David,

Thanks for the latest issue of Exposure, it is very good. My query is twofold, firstly is it true you stood for the One Nation Party in the Qld elections. If you did I hope you went well. Secondly and more importantly, who is the person that has been feeding Pauline Hanson these latest stories about a separate Aboriginal State. I know about this myself, but I am sure Pauline did not know this just by herself. All I hope is that whoever is giving her this information cover themselves carefully. Could you please advise me where I can get a draft copy of this 'UN document' on a separate State.

On another issue, you'll notice the Aussie dollar is being driven down. It will most probably reach 58 cents. One big seller was...you guessed it George Soros (sound familiar). This is being forcibly imposed by the international bankers. NZ has just had their credit rating reduced by Moodys, and their dollar has dropped to 52 cents. Just a coincidence? I don't think so.

Also David could you tell me if Peter Sawyer is still speaking out? Keep up the good work, and I agree with your wife that Exposure Magazine's cover price is not expensive compared to others. I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind Regards,
Lindsay Rossendell,
Mt Nelson, Tasmania,

Thanks Lindsay for the above. In reply...I'm have not heard anything about Peter Sawyer for a long time, I really don't have any idea. I would also suggest to you to read the article from Jan van Helsing about George Soros in the issue. It will explain quite a few things for you.

As to One Nation...yes, I did stand for them up until one week before the Queensland election. I was disendorsed over the telephone, because of an article which appeared in Exposure a while ago. It was too hot for the trio at the top to handle, let alone understand. I was very much relieved when it happened. Mind you, I have found quite a bit of Exposure-type information come out of Pauline's mouth...although she now denies this.

As to the 'Aboriginal States': We received via fax (approximately six weeks before Pauline talked about them in Parliament) the documents in question. I read the first page and asked Kelly to have a look at them. I felt that they were far fetched, and did not trust them. Kelly spent one hour and made seven calls, only to find out the entities mentioned were bogus. One did not have to be a Rhodes scholar to find the truth. We did not pass them onto anybody. But I must say...her researcher should have stayed a plumber! Ed

Re: Privatisation

Dear David and Kelly,

I can't tell you how thrilled I was to read my Privatisation piece in the pages of my most respected magazine! I started to read the page and thought "Hang on, this is familiar", and looked back at the top, saw my name, and nearly choked on my drink!

I'm really glad that you were impressed with it, and really thrilled that you printed it as an article in itself rather than an editor's letter (which you did with another letter in the same issue as well!)

Hopefully it will make people think a bit about voting for governments who are going to sell our well being to institutions whose interests are their own rather than ours. I had an interesting argument with a family member who said that running the government 'like a corporation' was positive because it made for greater productivity in government services. I couldn't agree more with him, because the government services have always been - as most people know - shockingly staffed and under-productive. What he didn't seem to understand was that there is a difference between running the government in a corporate style and corporation(s) running the government.

The average media-brainwashed and unthinking citizen doesn't seem to grasp the fact that the government is (theoretically) put there by us to look after our interests, and a corporation is a self-justifying entity there to further it's own ends.

Who do they think will pay for it when the economic crunch comes? - and it will come.

Thanks again for your encouragement and the continued production of one of Australia's only truly independent and apolitical viewpoints.

Best Wishes,
Drew Turney, Sydney NSW.

Drew's piece was published in the June/July of Exposure Magazine on page 56. Ed!

Re: Filthy Politics

Dear David,

I have just finished writing a letter to the Adelaide Advertiser blasting them about their treatment of you in their recent articles in which they try to discredit you as a kook and right wing extremist.

They must have been getting nervous about the prospect of you winning the seat of Noosa to try something like this. I have just heard, from author Rob Roma that the One Nation party has had a panic attack and has tried to dump you to distance themselves from the bad publicity. Don't let them push you out, keep fighting for the truth.

Sincerely, Tim Carman,
Hindmarsh, SA

Thanks Tim, yes I was dumped by them, which is no skin off my nose, in fact I'm relieved. One thing I can tell you now, whereas I was not certain before, is that there are no truth seekers at the top of One Nation, only public deception. Not just in my mind, but in those of probably thousands of others! Ed.

Re: Damned by the Media

Dear People,

I am not sure if you're the ones who were 'damned' by the media for daring to print that you believed the Martin Bryant murders were a set-up, and that the Pope was involved in the 2nd World War. I didn't hear 'from the horse's mouth' why you were disenfranchised by One Nation, but I'm very disappointed that you were. It seems to me that you were only doing what Pauline was doing when she was kicked out of the Liberal Party.

Yours faithfully,
D.A.McIntosh, Glebe, NSW.

Thanks for the support. Yes I'm am the naughty one...mind you, as I've said before, I did not issue any statement, nor do I even believe what was stated. I do believe that if those 'statements' which are being banded around the gopher press are true...we must investigate the same.

Not one of the press has contacted us to find out what we really believe, or to clarify the facts. I really think that many of today's journalists are a sorry examples of despicable tabloid trash being sold under the name of 'news'. The 'journalist' who wrote the lies has an agenda and Pauline Hanson and her henchmen follow a different one, yet they work side by side...the truth has set us free of them all. Ed.

Re: Exposure Magazine

Dear Sir,

This is really unbelievable that such a magazine as yours is available in this country. Our politicians do not like her - they are trying so hard to think how they can degrade her. They treat us the ordinary people like doormats. 'Lucky Country' for whom? For them! They sit in air conditioned rooms and are highly paid for caring for rich friends and themselves. Clever country! Yes for the politicians, for the rich, specially foreigners and those that can think and plan how to cheat and pretend.

It was a wonderful country, the best in the world, and is now slowly being destroyed. I am going to buy this publication in the future, but I am still recovering from the 'shock' that there are publications like this! I sincerely feel so sorry that things have not changed for the better, while people in top positions are so blind. It is so easy to destroy, but not easy to make it good again.

Sincerely, E.P., Australia.

Letters to the Editor...

Re: Necessary Evil?

Dear David,

I have heard many great reports in relation to your publication. Upon reading in the article entitled "Pauline Hanson - The Truth Behind the Lies" (Exposure Vol 5 No 2 1998), I was bewildered by various quotes given by Ms Hanson and published by you, especially in regard to multi-culturalism.

Ms. Hanson "Multi-culturalism doesn't work!" "People are being treated differently because of their cultural or religious background, and this is wrong." I respect Ms Hanson's right to air her opinions, yet I am perplexed as to your decision to publish this information as means of enlightening the Australian public by sharing these "amazing insights" to uncover the real Pauline Hanson.

You cannot and never will be able to separate an individual's cultural and religious idiosyncrasies from their identity; nor should you attempt to. Every individual has need and values that must be addressed on a person to person basis.

Our Nation's cultural diversity adds richness and depth to our life experience, firstly as Human Beings and secondly as Australians. An unprecedented Revolution in Human Consciousness is presently manifesting on this beautiful Planet Earth. Is your intention and purpose to assist in the expansion of the Brotherhood of Peace? "...so as to assist humanity in thinking for themselves", or are you assisting the hands that keep Humanity enslaved? In your words "... media is often a necessary evil".

My questions to you are; what exactly is your agenda? And are you a part of the problem? With love and respect,

Sincerely, Darren Sharp,
North Caulfield Vic.

Thanks Darren. In reply, I agree with what you've said about multi-culturalism in connection to people's religious beliefs and traditions. These are a large part of what makes us who we are. I published Pauline Hanson's comments, because they were what she said.

As to my 'agenda'...it is quite simple. I want truth, honesty, integrity and justice in our society. So I do my best to make people aware by publishing on subjects our society does not want people to know about. So I hope I am helping by doing this and not compounding the problem! Sincerely Ed.

Re: Australia's Desperate Situation

Dear David & Kelly,

Having read your reply to the letter on making prices cheaper etc., it reminds me so much of Peter and Marilyn Sawyer and one or two stalwarts that worked so hard in the 80's to try and expose corruption in high places in Australian Government Departments etc, on a shoe string budget; in an effort to alert too often an apathetic public.

So many find it hard to believe it exists to the extent it does. I've worked hard for justice from 1984 onwards. The whole system is a dreadful blight on Australian justice.

They all opt out of accountability, they stop at nothing. It is good to come across folk you can talk to who see these things. It just shows how bad things are here.

The Westfarmers, offer additional interest of 1/4% on $1600 and 1 1/4% on $5000 with 3 1/2% on fixed deposit... suppose I should be thankful they're not taking it off. I feel this is sheer extortion. I don't trust any of them these days. The sheer audacity of them is that they use our money for big gains and charge plenty of interest on loans for themselves.

Westfarmers own Bunnings as well, and I see four main stockbrokers here, the first one being Rothchild. They have tentacles all over the place and are up to no good. No way would I put my money into their so called schemes, or should I say scams.

Margaret Buegge,
Dudinin, WA.

Re: One Nation or One Denigration?

Greetings David and friends,

I was sorry to hear you were disendorsed by the One Nation Party as a candidate. I hope the real reason comes out sooner rather than later. The mass media story I heard was the usual kind of frenzied beat up, attacking you personally. I just suspect the pressure put on One Nation made them buckle out of fear. I never miss a copy of Exposure, and I mention it in my travels. I am also active at the grass roots level for One Nation.

I try to keep an open mind, but as things seem to me, our best chance to save our nation is 'One Nation'. Time will tell, and I feel sure it will not be many years before we either have a secure nation united, or the New World Order, big business, privatisation slave state. If peace means surrender of rights, property, freedom, then I don't want any part of it.

Best Regards, Graeme,
Muswellbrook NSW.

Thanks Graeme for your sentiments. I agree that Exposure is too hot for One Nation to handle...but in fact they have done me a favour. I was asked many times to join as a candidate...which I declined. I finally swung around because of much encouragement from out there. I stood because I want truth, justice and integrity in government...but of course, only to be booted out after being used like many others across the country. I am glad now, because I have, along with many others, been able to discover the lies and dishonesty which is being perpetrated upon the Aussie public...dishonesty on a scale which many won't or would prefer not to believe. The public, branches and candidates are being lied to, deceived and ripped-off at the highest level. I gave One Nation the chance as I felt I should. Yes we need change in this country, but as long as Oldfield, Ettridge and Hanson manipulate the show, we will not have it! What change we do get from O.E.H, I believe will be to Australia's detriment. Just watch the promises get put into the trash can. 'Sour-grapes'...I don't think so! Ed.

Re: More Lies of the Press

Dear Sir,

It was recently reported in the Sydney Morning Herald, that you had issued a statement saying that the "Catholic Church had paid for 'gas' to kill Jews in concentration camps".

Well, I too believed for many years the stories about 'gas chambers', until recently I was fortunate to get my hands on two enclosed documents.

As a fellow journalist of over 30 years standing, I trust you will take a few minutes to examine same, which contain many facts which are deliberately ignored by journalists and the newspapers in this country, and even the majority overseas. Keep up the good work.

Regards, J. Hans,
Noosa Heads Qld.

Dear Mr. Hans, Thanks for your note. Firstly I did not issue any statement of the sort, and the Sydney 'Moaning' Herald has perpetrated these untruths via their 'Journalist' Greg Roberts, (a propaganda expert and NWO slave with an agenda to destroy what does not suit him).

I have spoken to him about it and had only lies and despicable excuses in reply. If he worked for us...I would have sacked him. In some ways I must smile, as it shows that the media as we know it is sinking! Ed.

Editorial...

It seemed like this edition would never come together, especially with all the upheaval going on around this place. Since April, the political dramas continue...if it is not one thing, then it's another. And yes, I will explain the situation to you all...as soon as the Supreme Court makes it's decision regarding the very big 'set-up' involving myself. Now, as I am not at liberty to state the details of the case, I can say this..(to those who have been ridiculing and sending in nasty letters) concerning 'my alleged involvement' in stopping the One Nation Party from getting paid nearly a half million dollars. It is simple...I didn't do it! But, my name was used illegally (without my consent) to freeze the funds and by the time I realised what had happened,...well the damage was done. So far, I am in the middle of the case and if there is no next issue of Exposure, then you'll understand that the 'set-up' paid off. For those who despise the truth...they'll be able to gloat, and for those who are true truth seekers, I admire your faith and appreciate your support. The truth will come out! Whether that be via this magazine or other media. Kelly and I have a few good friends in the media who are prepared to help expose the truth.

Now onto a brighter and happier note, we have some excellent pieces for your enjoyment. The article on 'Carpenter Genes' by Lloyd Pye is a brilliant read. I had the privilege to meet Lloyd while in Nevada last month. He is a person who has really sat and thought things out when it comes to the 'theory' of evolution. While in the USA, I was able to make several contacts and we are hoping to start up an office there, provided that what goes around, comes around (regarding the people trying to keep Exposure off the press). This should make things a lot more convenient for our North American readers. Interest has also been shown for the South African region...so we'll keep you posted on both of these situations. I must say that I thoroughly enjoyed the hospitality shown to me in the USA.

Before I forget, I would like to take the opportunity to thank all the writers who contributed their hard efforts to this edition, especially to Electronics Australia magazine and Tom Moffat, for their kind permission to reprint the article on the HAARP project. I must admit, I am not very electronically minded and the closest I ever got to the subject was the piles of EA magazines my dear brother used to have scattered all over his bedroom floor back in the 70's. I sincerely think that Tom Moffat is on the right road. Do not miss the video 'Holes in Heaven', a meticulous and most controversial film exposing the potentials of HAARP!

I am getting short on space, so a few points to remember. The first is that for the last three issues someone had a classified advert placed in the back of Exposure. The advert was for a 'Christian Intelligence Report'. One could send $5.00 to a PO Box in Thornbury, Victoria and receive the paperwork. But Unfortunately, no paperwork was being sent and cheques were being cashed. The moral of the story is, do not send any more money to that address. Quite a few readers had written and received no reply. It is now in the hands of the Department of Fair Trading. If you have a complaint, then please call them on (03) 9627 6176. We try to control (to the best of our ability) who and what is advertised in Exposure, but alas, sometimes a goon gets through. We also have a new email address: exposure@spiderweb.com.au. You can direct all electronic mail there from now on. Finally, my good friend David Icke is coming back to Brisbane in November, (see back page) so try and make it. David always has a lot to impart. That's it, take care and lots of love!

Editor.

Re: New World Order

Dear David & Kelly,

Some time ago I was given a copy of 'Exposure'. It is certainly a very interesting paper. You mention the New World Order. I have known about it for at least 70 years. (I am 89 years old). You could go back to 1215AD and you would find it operating then, so it has been working behind the scenes for a long time.

The works of the Masons have come to our notice over the past few years and does not make for very good reading. Like a lot of things, the people at the bottom of the tree don't know what is going on at the top.

It is a shame we are so old, we won't live long enough to know if the ordinary people wake up to what is going on around us. However, we may be able to wake up a few more people to what is going on right under our noses. We have a grandson who is 6th generation Aussie and I would like to feel that we have done something to help make a better country for all Australians.

Yours Sincerely,
Mrs Kathleen Griffin, Pinalba, Qld.

Dear Mrs. Griffin, thanks for your letter. I think that many of us won't be around to see the collapse of society as we know it, whether that be because of age or an early death because of the opponents. But in any case, we must educate before the next generation loses all knowledge and becomes enslaved. Ed.

Re: A World That Was

Dear Mr. Summers,

Recently a copy of Exposure Magazine, June-July 1998 issue, came my way. I skimmed through "A World That Was!" by Kelly Cahill, and quickly realised that one valuable source of ancient history had not been consulted. The admittedly broad sweep of the historical narrative in the Bible nevertheless yields some surprisingly detailed and relevant information, which in no way contradicts the rest of the evidence presented in this article. Rather it is complementary.

Some examples: The building of the first city is recorded in Genesis 4:17, along with the name of the builder; the first artisan & metallurgist & the first master musician are identified by name in Genesis 4:21-22; the source of the vast inland areas and deserts containing fossils of shells and sea creatures is the much derided worldwide Noah's flood of Genesis 7. The history of mankind is equally interesting including the setting for the origin of different races and languages as we know them today (Genesis 11:4-9). Probably this is when our cave-men ancestors, arrived on the world scene.

Those really interested could find out much more from 'Answers in Genesis' PO Box 6302, Acacia Ridge, Qld 4110, tel: (07) 3273 7650, internet homepage address: <http://www.AnswersInGenesis.org>.

Re: Australia's Tax Revenue Loss

Dear Sir,

Since an agreement was made between British and Australian governments in 1953, multinational corporations have escaped paying tax in Australia. First Assistant Commissioner for Taxation Mr Jim Kilally stated in 1996 "Multinational companies operating in Australia have evaded tax on $200 billion annual profit exported offshore."

In 1986 an embargo was put on the A.B.S, to stop release of figures on proportion of government and private sector foreign debt. Many Australians would like to know to whom the debt is owed, particularly after the World Bank advised Australia does not owe it anything.

The 1997 nett $222 billion debt is obscured by $326 billion gross foreign liability. On the basis of company tax at 32%, the 200 billion loss equals $64 billion tax revenue lost annually. That figure divided amongst the 5 million payee taxpayers, shows they're paying the shortfall each person over taxed an annual $8,533.33, equating to $666.40 per month or $164.10 weekly.

Over 7.700 multi-nationals operate in Australia and own over 83% of all business, including the majority of banks, finance and insurance companies and the top 100 pay no tax. For 45 years Australian Taxpayers have been ripped off by their 'alleged' political 'leaders'. Now the Liberal/Labour coalition want to tax them more by a regressive G.S.T- "greedy stealing tax".

Examining foreign ownership further, shows revenue loss is the result of foreign-international competition, shrinking small business, less manufacturing and rising unemployment. The O.E.C.D. and UN economic rationalism policy and global corporatisation is the cause of the problem. Now the O.E.C.D and the I.M.F insist on a GST. There are superior tax models like the Debit Tax System - equable to every one and so efficient 32 other countries are examining the Australian model. It is time for the people to have a referendum on tax.

Yours sincerely,
Peter J. Mulheron,
Loch Sport, Vic.

Thanks Peter...I think the GST is a key point in the next election...if they bring it in...expect to pay more for Exposure Magazine. Books and magazines are not taxed at present.

Re: 'Brainwashing Seminar'

Dear Exposure,

Firstly I love your magazine. My daughter and I had a most stressful experience recently. We both attended a Self Empowering Course in Sydney and were then recommended to another course. This course is where our experience began, or should I say 'brainwashing'. The timetable was intense with few breaks and 14 very strict rules (big trouble if you broke them), and we were given a named position for our drinking glasses.

I believe that "seminar" is the wrong name, "cult" would be more appropriate. They had quite a few members and wanted more recruits. They used all the 7 golden rules that any other cult uses to sucker people in. They also drugged us with some sort of 'upper' in our glass of water. I will list here the reasons we believe we were drugged:

We had much difficulty eating or sleeping; Other attendees mentioned feeling the same; We had to fill out a medical questionnaire relating to any problems we may have with blood pressure, heart trouble, or if we were pregnant; The named glass positions; People jumping and dancing, although they explained they would never normally be able to do so without a few drinks; One rule explaining that we were not allowed any mind altering substances, incl. alcohol; They wanted a list list of medications you were currently on.

We both 'twigged' to what was going on half way through, and left early after I was physically restrained. This ended with a two hour confrontation outside. We had our money refunded when I threatened to go public on talk back radio.

I reported it to the Department of Fair Trading and the police who are looking into it now, but am surprised that no one seems really interested. The whole experience was very traumatic and very difficult to get out of our minds..literally!

Yours truly,
M. Mooney, Qld.

Re: One Nation

Dear David,

Allow me to congratulate you on your separation from 'One Nation'. Believe me, I am the most open minded person around, but I sensed something was not right within the party.

You showed great courage in your editorial by admitting you were wrong and I commend you for that.

Thanks, Carmiel Batty,

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR...

Re: Party 'Bagging'

the Editor,

I like your magazine, but I love 'One Nation'. No one will change my mind about them. We live on the land and the lies and cheating from the Labour and the Liberals are all for the 'U.N.' that is evil and corrupt. The government is all for the criminals and all the bad things. We have to change. We have waited years for a 'One Nation' party to come, and now people are trying to stop them. We don't want 'Communism', that is what we have been getting. People deserve good things.

Thanking you,
V. Jackson,
Bourke, NSW.

I agree with your comments about the problems with other parties...I am not trying to stop One Nation...but if I find a problem with a group, who may have seemed fine at one stage and later prove to be something different, then I'll let you know. I have done this with One Nation. I make no apologies! Ed.

Dear Editor,

My first two issues of Exposure leave me in a quandary. First it's Go-Go Pauline, followed by No-No Pauline. Perhaps the editor could nudge on the allegations made in the Aug-Sept. issue and give some details. There we were getting lined up to vote against the conglomerate of scoundrels running and ruining this country - now doubts are sown. Almost certainly Graeme Campbell is a safe bet, but the media knows that he knows, and so ignore him.

Sincerely,
John Howlett.
Albany, W.A.

The reason I have not expanded upon the allegations is that at the moment I have been in the Supreme Court and cannot make any statement yet. Once all the cases are complete, then I'll be at liberty to let you know the details, whatever they may be. Ed.

To the Editor,

Sir, Regarding the thorough slating you gave One Nation in your editorial, (Vol 5 Num. 3) I think it says more about you than about One Nation. Your scathing attack covered every conceivable aspect, yet you didn't attempt to back up what you say in any way.

Attempts have been made in some branches to disendorse their candidates. It is made clear by One Nation's Campaign Managers that candidates cannot and will not be disendorsed without very good reason, and they cited very heavy examples such as that the candidate proves to be extremely unethical, immoral or espousing policy that is contrary to One Nation Policy.

Readers and viewers have been dealt a relentless barrage of unsubstantiated lies about One Nation so it won't be difficult for many of your readers to see right through this one.

We, who have discussed your editorial, can smell very sour grapes.

Joy Griffin,
Millaa Millaa Qld.

Thanks Joy for your 'encourage ment'...you certainly have left yourself open. Now point by point...I would say that you are not very knowledgeable about how One Nation operates. Nor have you (unlike hundreds of others) had first hand experience of the non-existent democracy which comes from the top down. As far as backing up my statements is concerned, there are more than 300 pages of testimonies, P.I. reports, company documents and the like...documents from 9 different companies and bodies in fact. This paperwork has been collected by hundreds of people. We have dedicated enough space to One Nation and spent tens of thousands of dollars on publishing and a campaign and then left with a massive debt, not including the thousands of hours worked...how much have you spent Joy?

As far as not being disendorsed 'without very good reason' is concerned...I was disendorsed for absolutely nothing, over the phone, no branch meeting, no vote. I was disendorsed for a quote being attributed to me, which was not mine...a lie from the press who were busy bagging One Nation. Peter James ('State Director' at the time), Mr. Oldfield and Pauline Hanson all knew that I had done nothing wrong...in fact I spoke to Pauline two hours beforehand on the phone about the media article. But I obviously did not fit into the agenda. I am not a sucker for a party, nor will I be a member of a One Nation cult. One which Pauline doesn't run anyway. We had already paid thousands of dollars of bills for advertising, fundraising, catering and the tickets for an event the next day at which Pauline was to speak, had to be paid back. Pauline has often cancelled events last minute and left many people in problems both financially and professionally. This shows me a sub-standard existing.

I was/am not 'unethical, immoral or espousing policy that is contrary to One Nation Policy' as you imply. One Nation takes policy and research from others, eg: Graham Campbell, John Cumming, Tony Pitt, Exposure Magazine and many other authors; and when it is presented publicly, 9 times out of 10 it's stuffed up and is presented as coming from their own hard labours. Regarding 'unsubstantiated lies'... well I suggest you and your 'informed' and 'wise' branch committee do your homework and be honest to yourselves. I have tried to do that and you don't like it...! I want truth above all else. 'Sour-grapes', well those are Mr. Oldfield's words...please think of something original. Without prejudice and regards, Ed!

Re: Exposure not Politically Correct!

Dear David,

May you and yours be blest abundantly with good health so that your courageous pioneering work shall be recognised as a trailblazer into many unaware and closed minds.

We are lucky to be Australians being at liberty to convey and receive information. In Germany in 1996-97, 14,000 people were incarcerated for not thinking "politically Correct".

Congratulations on your editorial of the last Exposure. Your some what provocative encounters of late should make your skin thicker so that neither politicians or media can penetrate you with their lies and slander. I conclude by sending my respect to you, Kelly and staff.

Sincerely, 'Pax et Bonum'
John M. Salewski, Vic.

If I've been wrong on an issue, I like to admit it and move on...regards Ed.

Re: Email Encryption

Hi David,

I was just thinking that maybe you should start using some sort of encryption for your email and sensitive files, considering what happened before in Wollongong. The link below is to the international 'Pretty Good Privacy' homepage, where you can pick up PGP for IBM and Macintosh. You can download a manual for it as well. It is easy to use and if something happened again, no mongrel could read your files unless they had 12 yrs to spare while 300 computers tried to crack your encryption key.

This is the link to the home page - <http://www.pgpi.com/>. Or <http://www.pgpi.com/docs/> is the link to the documents. I really do think you should consider this!

Re: One Nation Sacking

Dear David,

For what it is worth, my observation on the evolution of the One Nation Party is that from the moment David Oldfield became Chief Adviser to Pauline Hanson, he was determined to mould the party in the image of the Liberals, complete with their doctrines wherever possible.

It appears to me that Pauline has been taken captive by Oldfield and when she has served her purpose, she will be tossed out on her ear, and we will have another Liberal Party with minor differences.

I believe the reason you were sacked is because you are too highly principled to ever be a 'loyal sycophantic ventriloquist's dummy'. I suspect that Oldfield sees you and others giving their loyalty to the nation and its people rather than to the party, which would in time constitute a threat to his leadership.

Sincerely, Norm Segal,
Nambour, Qld.

Thanks Norm, playing marionette never was a forte of mine! Ed.

CLOSE ENCOUNTER

Toronto - A Canadian golfer has the claim to fame for having had a close encounter with a meteorite; so close that it whizzed by his ear.

Orville Delong, 57, was playing golf on July 12 when he heard the "eerie sound" of a meteorite the size of a baseball as it shot past his left ear. It was estimated by scientists to be moving at about 200 kmph.

NEW HIGHLY VENOMOUS SNAKE DISCOVERED

The latest issue of Australia's major herpetological (reptile) journal MONITOR, has announced the discovery of a new species of highly venomous snake.

Until recently the species had been confused with the King Brown Snake (Pseudechis australis), but research by several prominent herpetologists has confirmed that the snake is not only different to the King Brown Snake, but substantially so. The species, now known as the 'False King Brown Snake' (Pailsus pailsei) is currently only known from the Mount Isa area in Queensland, although anecdotal evidence suggests that it may in fact be widespread throughout tropical Australia.

The scientific description of this species by Melbourne-based zoologist Raymond Hoser is significant, as these snakes are highly venomous and medically significant. To date there have been no venom tests on the species even though it is regarded as a 'dangerous' species. This could mean that lives are at risk in the event that people in remote areas get bitten. Fortunately the snake is not aggressive and will usually flee when approached. (The False King Brown Snake can be separated from other 'Brown' and 'King Brown' snakes in the same area by the fact that its underneath tail scales are all 'single' as opposed to 'paired' in 'Brown' snakes or 'mixed' in 'King Brown' snakes).

Hoser has called on Australian wildlife authorities to revise current laws and policies in light of the formal discovery of the new species and to allow capture of wild specimens to allow research on the species to proceed without impediment. Currently there is believed to be only one specimen in captivity (which is now at least 16 years old and blind), and only one confirmed specimen lodged in a museum. Further specimens both live and dead are urgently required for ongoing research. This includes the need for detailed venom tests and manufacture of anti-venom should the venom differ significantly from that of its nearest known relatives.

In all states people are currently allowed to kill snakes without any fear of being fined, while anyone seeking to take specimens from the wild for research purposes runs the very real risk of fines and/or jail. Currently there is an effective prohibition, nation-wide, on issuing take permits from the wild for these snakes. Hoser says this not only threatens current research, but also the long-term conservation of these snakes as they become rarer due to ongoing habitat degradation.

It is hoped that the announcement of this new species of 'Brown Snake' is widely publicised to heighten public awareness of these snakes and the fact that they are entitled to the same legal protection as more cuddly species such as Koalas.

CALIFORNIA DECRIMINALISES CAESAR SALAD

California decriminalised the sale of Caesar salad recently - and it's not a moment too soon, the U.S. Libertarian Party said. "When you outlaw Caesar salad, only outlaws will eat Caesar salad," noted the party's Director of Communications, Bill Winter. "That's why, on the issue of Caesar salad, we Libertarians have always been prolegalisation."

Selling Caesar salad became a crime last year when Californian legislators passed a new health law banning the sale of food that used raw eggs as an ingredient. Unexpectedly, the law included Caesar salad, which uses uncooked eggs in its unique dressing.

Restaurant owners and fans of the popular salad - were outraged. The outcry convinced state legislators to file a new bill to cancel the criminal status of Caesar salad and, presumably, end what might have become a flourishing black market in contraband romaine lettuce, raw eggs, and Parmesan cheese.

The bill, signed into law by Governor Pete Wilson on Monday, has Libertarians cheering - but a little surprised.

"We have to compliment California legislators for their rare display of good sense," acknowledged Winter. "Although we're a bit surprised that they were courageous enough to toss the Caesar salad law entirely."

"We support the Constitutional right of every American to keep and bear a Caesar salad -- or, rather, to eat and buy a Caesar salad," said Winter. "All joking aside, it's a setback for those political eggheads who think they have the right to micromanage every aspect of our lives, down to the type of salad we buy in a restaurant. Hopefully, politicians will learn... to just lettuce alone."

Re: Freezing of Funds

ar David,

What justification do you have for your unfortunate involvement in delaying payment of legitimate reimbursement of election costs to One Nation successful candidates? There are some good people involved, who see no option other than One Nation, in opposing the rotten Liberal/Labour coalition, (Fabian Society, Mont Pelerin Society conspiracy of globalist, economic rationalism).

I see it as simple bastardry, and also since the liberals betted this action, your stature has diminished in my estimation. This action has worked against the efforts of many good patriotic people. Is there a legitimate alternative explanation?

B. Boulton,
Connonvale Qld.

Thanks for your concerns...I had nothing to do with the freezing of One Nation funds...no matter what you hear or what people say they know. My name was used illegally by lawyers associated with the Liberal Party. My name was used without my consent, behind my back. A duel purpose? Yes, to destroy One Nation and Exposure Magazine! I won't help One Nation, as they never stood up for me when they (they heirachy) knew that I was guilty of nothing, but I certainly did not help the Liberal Party.

My costs to clear my name have reached $18,500...and I have had three offers to pay me out, which were not acceptable. Because the offers did not cover my costs, I did not accept, hence it may still go to trial. On top of this, I have a law suit against me from One Nation, (because my name was used behind my back on a writ to freeze their funds)...a lawsuit which can be around $70,000, which I will not pay..as I had nothing to do with the case.

This is a conspiracy involving the Liberal Party. At this stage I cannot print more than this (as it is in the Supreme Court), but the story will come out and the truth will prevail. If One Nation wants help from me...a public apology would not go astray from Hanson for her actions and fictitious statements about me and Exposure at the time I was disendorsed last june. I do not want an apology from Mr. Oldfield as I would not accept it! So I hope that the above will be considered a legitimate alternative explanation! Ed.

DEAD IF YOU DO OR DON'T

Working either very many or very few hours a day increases a persons risk of a heart attack, a new study revealed recently. The scientists suspected a link between work-induced tension and blood pressure for the association with long hours.

Why a short working day should be risky was less certain. One possibility was that those who worked few hours were unhealthy to begin with. Another was that fewer work hours might lead to a deterioration in lifestyle. The Japanese study focused on 195 men aged 30-69 admitted to hospital after having a heart attack.

"BIG BROTHER" U.S. FDA TO BAN BOOKS

Not satisfied with merely controlling/banning nutritional supplements, the FDA recently decided to get into the book-banning business. US Food and Drug Administration officials threatened legal action against Stevita Co., for distributing books and literature about their product.

A Texas district officer of the US Food and Drug Administration ordered the destruction of three books; Cooking with Stevia: The Naturally Sweet and Calorie-free Herb; Stevia Rebaudiana: Nature's Sweet Secret; and the Stevia Story; A tale of incredible sweetness and intrigue.

James Laher of the Dallas district office of the FDA informed the company... "a current inventory must be taken by an investigator of this office, who will also be available to witness the destruction of the cookbooks, literature and other publications for the purpose of verifying compliance".

And the reason for this extraordinary campaign similar to book burning Nazi Germany? Each of the offending tracts refers to the natural sweetening properties of the herb Stevia Rebaudiana Bertoni, better known as 'honey leaf'.

Why all the fuss? Stevia which is 30 times sweeter than sugar, contains no calories, and, most important, cannot be patented. Major multinational food companies like Coca Cola and Beatrice foods, convinced of its safety, use it to sweeten food for sale in Japan, Brazil and other countries where it is approved.

In response to mounting public pressure over this illegal action, the FDA has since contacted the company and advised them..."not to destroy the books at this time". Small comfort for those interested in freedom of information.

CALL FOR SELECTIVE HUMAN BREEDING

A survey of Chinese scientists working in the field of genetics suggests they overwhelmingly support eugenics to improve public health. The theory of eugenics-which is considered highly controversial in the West - suggests that the human race can be improved by selective breeding. The survey which was conducted in 1993 among 255 geneticists throughout China, was reported in the British magazine New Scientist.

Almost unanimously by 91%, the scientists said that couples who carried the same disease-causing genetic mutation should not be allowed to have children. More than three-quarters believed that governments should require pre-marital tests to detect carriers of hereditary disease. They also supported the routine genetic testing of job applicants by employers. There was also strong backing for the genetic testing of children to see if they are susceptible to problems such as alcoholism.

The survey was carried out by Xin Mao, a scientist from the West China University of Medical Services in Chengdu. Xin Mao, who now works at the Institute of Cancer research in London defended the Chinese attitudes, saying cultural differences should be taken into account.

"The Chinese culture is quite different and things are focused on the good for society, not the good of the individual. It would shock people in the West, but my survey reflects cultural common sense," the researcher said.

The year after the survey, China introduced the controversial Maternal and Infant Health Care Law, which makes pre-marital check-ups compulsory and allows doctors to order abortions of fetuses with serious defects.

CLONING HUMANS TO BE UNDERTAKEN IN JAPAN

Chicago-based physicist Richard Seed, says he will "participate in a Japan-based project to develop genetic technology" that he hopes "will eventually make human cloning possible."

Seed made headlines last year when he vowed to defy U.S. government prohibitions against human cloning research, following the international uproar over the announcement that a sheep named Dolly had been cloned from another adult sheep by Scottish scientists.

The Japanese are now in the forefront of cloning research on 'higher' animals such as livestock. While some Japanese researchers apparently do not share the
