AMERICAN THEATRE.

There has been much calling the attention of the public, to the attractions offered by individuals at this establishment for their benefits of late: there has also been much detracting stuff, which, if it be not interested, has marvellously the air of those critical engines, the source of whose power is-current coin. Considering that the interested detraction, and the ov relarged culoxies are a good balance—the one for the other-the field still remains open for the only opini as which should ever be laid before the public-those whose flattery and malice are equally unbought and impartial.

On Tuesday evening, among other attractions presented for the benefit of Messrs. Fie'd and Hernizon, two very meritorious and indefatigable young gentlemen in their profession-will be produced for the first and only time, a new petit comedy written by a gentleman of this city, in which there are three characters expressly composed for himself. We have seen the piece, and have much confidence in the power of the author, to eminaly the widely different sketches of character which he has drawn. They are such as the world affords-and such as culiven th. basking decariness of life wherever they are met. The one is what is much needed on onstage-a Preachman exhibiting those hulicrotraits which are common to every nationable which are peculiarly amusing when clother the ragged dialect and gisconnding manner is certain class of our fidends of old the Among his other excellencies, Monsieur in forget his name, but it is long enough the clock all his ancestors as far back as Charlemagae, piques himself upon his accurate promine ratio. of Eaglish and his ability in Tragelly. Of these the public must judge, when they see him. They will have a specimen—in deciding upon the which is whong that it us. We have newhich I shall not asticipate their judgment.

Another is an Irishmen (played also by the author, and which, we are told, he is one arrayed ally spotent of it delimpenees," but not half so to attempt from a residence of some datation in the Dristal wave will be medical adopt in the Dristal wave will be ma: his wary will likewise be produced—on the truth, lest they give offence to some high officer at the state of government. But to the facts of government. But to the facts whole plot of the piece is lively and consecut, in the court in our paper, a few days ago, we and, so fat us reading a piece of that kind got, in enabling us to form a judgment of the success on the stage—we do not be share to say that it will be one of the most amusing and so got that it has made inquiry at the office, and ascert mail that the office, which will be one of the most amusing and so got that it

Extract of a letter from Mr. Gnillot, to one of his friends in this city, dated Paris, February 9, 1531. You must have learned from the papers, that the presentation of the Tricolor Flug had, last, taken place; but you could not have beinformed, by the same source, that the pre-(Odillon-Barrot) had invited us to a giver, to the following Thursday, including in the invitation all Louisianians at the time in Paris, requesting as full and as correct a list of the names as I possibly could obtain. A depotation just arrived from New York, were equally invited to the dinner, which was attended by the principal characters of Paris, the superior o.h. cers of the national guard, a number of deputies, the secretary of the American Legation the consul general of the United States, and among other Americans, Mr. J. Fennimore Cooper. Several toasts were drink; two of them by Mr. Odilion arrot, to the City of New-York and that of New-Orleans: I an swered this last toast ex tempore : I had no foreseen it. I do not exactly remember what I said, but I do recollect that I was a manage after astoon led with applicase, and upon leaving table, I received the individual congratulations of each of the mests.

This, as far as I can remember, is the sub stance of my answer:

GENTLEMEN-The inhabitants of New-Orleans have not forgoiten that they owe to France, not o ly their existence, but also the happiness and freedom which they enjoy; they know that without the victories of the French a mi s, it had bever been in the power of the First Consul to conclude that treaty, so ho our ble to that crushed its prosperity. I shall not attempt case containing half a dozen of brass arrow to convey to you an idea of the joy and enthu- heads. The whole was enveloped in mats of sey, Gentlemen, that, on learning the details of main strong and flexible. your memorable days, the Louisianians, in spite of the freedom and prosperity which they en joy, regretted perhaps that they no longer form a constituent part of the French nation.

From the New-York Evening Post.

No News-We do not remember a time when the papers from every part of the country were so barren of interesting intellence as the present. There is no news, either foreign or domestic, political, civil, literary, agricultural, or of any description. Even the old and ever ready topic, the weather, seems to be exhausted. Editors have become sired of acolding at easterly winds and evergest skies. and treem disposed at leat to the resignations no longer furnish mafter for comment or vituperation, the nulliflers for dec-Amation, nor Indian rights for maudlin sympathy. The National Journal lacks an object for its scurrility, and the National Gazette for its plerophories. A dilligent search through some The leaded articles of our cotemporaries in the neighboring cities are sa heavy as their name imports, and their subjects are as old and must, however, make two exceptions to this remark.) The Baltimore Patriot and our grave neighbor the Journal of Commerce have found something to amuse their readers with better than railings at the administration, or long and steepy letters from Washington, "full of sound and fury, signifying nothing;" and the lates: numbers of those journals contain paragraphs on subjects which are usually approached with much more gust than we fear is often created by the lucubrations of editors. Our neighbor, the Journal of Commerce, describes "the abundant and delicious flavor" of certain slices of ham, which a generous up-town grocer had placed upon its editorial table, with a degree of relish that adicates the paragraph to have been indited while the gravy yet glistened on the writer's lip.

The Baltimore Patriot employs its pen on a congenial theme, and proclaims in a leading article he excellence of "a parcel of full grown peas and very fine large strawberries," likewise presemed by some kind friend. The Unitadelphia journalists, as we have mentioned in another aragraph, are likewise discussing the in rits of ertain knals of edibles, which, indeed, seem o furnish the subjects most in vogue at present a mong newspaper writers. Not to be out of I shoon, we direct the attention of our, readers ats samplied.

New-Orleans Mail. - The Editor of the Des ton Gazette, who has for some true past, mad fested a strong desire to find fault with the Genoral Post Gillice, informed his renders on Phorseley, that "pifficen mails from New-Orle as were then due at the Hoseon Odlice." "Our expressmen arrived from L'Ance Kewgwenon in the 27th of last month. By them we learn that the Indians (Chippewas) inhabit ng the boriers of Lake Superior, were in wretched state of starvation. Many of them, we are informed, are reduced to such a state of wretchedness as to crawl on all fours.

From the Fall River (Mass.) Mirror. INDIAN CHIEF -On Wednesday last, there was found washed out of a sand bank, in the southeast cart of this village, the remains of a suman being, supposed to be an Judian Chief. The chest, which was surrounded by a belt composed of brass tubes, was in a state of re-France, and so advantageous to Louisiana, which markable preservation. There were also found wrung that fair country from the leader, ham, with him several pieces of brass plate, and a siasm manifested by the Louisianians at the finely braided bark, and enclosed in a case of news of your glorious revolution. The place whence these remains were taken is within the Pocassent purchase, near its nothern boundary, and within a field that has been cultivated nearly a century. It is probable they were interred a century and a half ago, perhaps longer. That the preservation was owing to the presence of the metal, there cannot be much question, as only those parts were preserved which were found in connexion with and near o it, the rest having disappeared. Queries: What tribe of Indians were ever nown to use brass arrow-heads or metalic trappings? In what manner did the metal preserve d parts in connexion with it-by its galvanic influence or otherwise? This subject is well let the spring advance his own guit; without notifying their readers of every change in the air, and condoling with them on every cloud that the remains will be put in a case and placed in the remains will be put in a case and placed in darkens the heavens.
