THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

The report of Mr CONRAD is comparatively brief, not exceeding two columns of the National Intelligencer. It is a matter of fact document, and is very clear and comprehensive.

The aggregate strength of the army is 12,927, but from sickness, death, discharges and other causes the number actually in service and fit for duty, falls short thirty or forty per cent of that number. Over one-half of the army is stationed in, or is under orders for Texas, New Mexico, California and Oregon. The military establishment of the country is inadequate to its wants.

The reports refers at some length to the necessity of protecting the Texan frontier. The troops sent thither, who will reach there in the Spring, will yet be insufficient for the object in view. Cavalry is the only description of force that can put an effectual of stop to Indian forays. This subject is considered somewhat elaborately, and Congress is recommended to provide for raising one or more regiments of mounted men. It is further suggested that in New Mexico, the inhabitants, including the Pueblo Indians, might be organized into a kind of militia, under the direction of the officers of the army, and might aid in protecting the country against the sudden invades of more savage tribes. But, says the report:

These are only temporary expedients. It is obvious that some other means besides the terror of our arms, must ultimately be employed to restrain the Indians. Hemmed in as they are on all sides by the United States, by Mexico, and the Rocky Mountains, as our settlements advance the scarcity of game will compel them to fall back on our weaker neighbors, whom by the treaty of Guadaluxe Hidalgo we are bound to protect against their incursions. Both policy and humanity would therefore seem to dictate that some system should be adopted whereby the whole of the unfortunate race might be induced, as a portion of them were by the Spaniards, to abandon their wandering life, to live in villages, and resort to agricultural pursuits.

The Chippewa and Sioux Indians of Minnesota are again at war in violation of a solemn treaty and a binding pledge to the United States. It is deemed advisable that a small force be sent against the Sioux, as they are the aggressors.

The board of military and naval officers appointed to examine the Pacific coast of the U. S., and designate suitable points for fortifications and naval depots, have concluded their labors. Sites have been selected, but more detailed surveys are necessary, before the works can be commenced. The region in the vicinity of the Great Salt Lake has likewise been explored, but the result is not yet known. The survey of the Delta of the Mississippi, with a view of deepening the channel at its mouth and preventing overflows, has been entrusted to Major Long, Capt. Humphreys and Mr. Charles Elliott.

To put an end to the conflict of authority between the civil and military governments of New Mexico instructions have been forwarded to the officer in command in that territory, to abstain from all interference in the political affairs of the country.

The report recommends the establishment of a retired list of officers of the army, and an asylum for disabled and desolate soldiers. Authority is asked to enlist instead of hiring teamsters, and to allow them a higher rate of pay than to the privates in the army.

The estimates for the army are higher than those of the last few years for various causes. The Sioux war has for the present not yet visited the battle-ground, the rank and file of companies on the Western frontier has been increased, the pay of officers and men serving in California is enhanced, the expenses of the Quartermasters' Department have been augmented. The estimates for the current year amount to $4,950,000 —exceeding the expenditures of the last year by a million of dollars.

THE WEATHER, CROPS, &c.—The Madison La Journal of the 1st inst. says

With the exception of a few days last fall we have had most delightful weather for nearly a week. Never, since our residence in Louisiana, have we seen the roads in finer condition than they have been during the entire fall, nor have we ever seen a more favorable season for securing, in good condition, the late crops. Nearly all, if not the entire crop has been picked, and that too without ever having received a wetting. It will consequently go to market in fine order and command a good price. Unfortunately, however, most of our planters had but short crops. The disastrous overflow of last summer cut up an early frost reduced the yield, which would otherwise have been a bountiful one. Never, since our residence in Louisiana, have we seen the roads in finer condition than they have been during the entire fall, nor have we ever seen a more favorable season for securing, in good condition, the late crops. Nearly all, if not the entire crop has been picked, and that too without ever having received a wetting. It will consequently go to market in fine order and command a good price. Unfortunately, however, most of our planters had but short crops. The disastrous overflow of last summer cut up an early frost reduced the yield, which would otherwise have been a bountiful one.

"Now, Hugh Latimer, bethink thee, thou art in the presence of thy earthly monarch—thy life is in his hands, and if thou dost not suit his fancies, he will bring down thy gray hairs to the grave; but, Hugh Latimer, bethink thee, thou art in the presence of the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, who hath told thee, 'Fear not them that kill the body, they can do no more; but rather fear him who can kill both body and soul, and cast them into hell forever!' Yes I say, Hugh Latimer, fear him!"

He then went on, and not only repeated what he had before advanced, but, if possible, endorsed it with more emphasis. After he had finished, Henry went for him and said: "How dare you, monk! the monarch so." Latimer replied, "I thought I were unfaithful to my God I could not be loyal to my King." The latter replied, "Go, proud old Bishop, exclaiming, There is yet one man left bold enough to tell me the truth."

A gambling case has occupied the Circuit Court for two or three days past, and was decided this morning. It was to recover back $3,000 from the stake holder, which was staked against $2,500 on a race between Addy Suffolk and American, four or five years since. It was tried before, and a verdict rendered for the plaintiff, but the Supreme Court reversed the, on the ground that he had consented, after the race, that the money should be given up; the decision was again reversed by the courts of appeals, and the case came back for trial. The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, for the $3000, but without interest.—New York Ledger.

GOOD HIT AT ABOLITIONISM.—The following jeu d'esprit, perpetrated by a lawyer in Delaware, of the name of Ward, appears among the proceedings of the Common Council of that city. The matter referred to is the purchase of the freedom of a slave which was claimed under the late law of Congress.

The petition of S. Stevens, S. Zug, Sam. T. Douglass, P. Homan, and 41 others, show that the Senate and House of Representatives of these United States, in Congress assembled, have, in conformity with the wishes of the people of the country, abolished the trafic in human flesh within the District of Columbia, where slavery is a cherished institution, dores and sundry of our fellow-citizens in this free State of Michigan have, within the last few days, notwithstanding all the light that has been thrown upon that subject, and in direct contravention of the glorious principle of our constitution that "neither slavery nor involuntary servitude shall ever be tolerated in this State," purchased the body of Giles Rose, a slave, from his former master.

In view of these facts and to avert from our State the disgrace that must attend the repetition of this retrogression toward the dark ages, we humbly pray your honorable body, in its wisdom, to take measures for the "suppression of the slave trade in the city of Detroit."—Laid on the table.

ANECDOTE OF LATIMER.—It is related of Latimer, that when he once preached a sermon before that tyrant, Henry VIII., he took a plain, straight-forward text, and in it sneaked those very sins for which the monarch was notorious, and he was stung to the quick, for truth always finds a response in the worst man's conscience. He would not bend beneath the authority of his God, but sent for Latimer and said: "Your life is in jeopardy, if you do not recant all you said to-day when you preach next Sunday. The trimming courtier were all anxious to know the consequences of this, and the chapel was crowded. The venerable man took his seat, and after a pause, began with a soliloquy thus:

He then went on, and not only repeated what he had before advanced, but, if possible, endorsed it with more emphasis. After he had finished, Henry went for him and said: "How dare you, monk! the monarch so." Latimer replied, "I thought I were unfaithful to my God I could not be loyal to my King." The latter replied, "Go, proud old Bishop, exclaiming, There is yet one man left bold enough to tell me the truth."

A GOOD ONE.—The Cleveland Herald of the 29th ult., is responsible for the following first rate story:

The Tax man in a Printing Office.—Every business has its unpleasant duties, and none more than that of the tax gather. One of these, a gentlemanly, unobserved individual, a few days since entered a printing office in the city, took in hand, and politely accosted the proprietor with—"Paid your poll-tax, sir?" "No," was the answer, "I don't pay; I'm one of the city protectors." "How's that?" "Why, I'm a fireman, and runs wid der masheen." "All right," said the collector, as he passed to the next man, who answered—"I serve my country and belong to the squad." Of course members of the "Squad" are exempt. The third was a minor—the fourth trained with the Hibernians —the fifth declared himself merely a passenger, without even a codfish or any other visible means of support, and the sixth and seventh were Dutchmen, making temporary steam engines of themselves at the fly wheel of an Adams' press. The only answer, "yaw," soon satisfied the collector that they didn't know the difference between a poll-tax and a poll parrot. The eighth man declined paying, because in the event of a suit he should win. The collector's eye brightened. "Young man," said he, "I'll sue you, get judgment, take out an execution, and then where are you?" "Why, as I'm a day boarder, sleep in the office, hain't got any coat and carry my household furniture—a tooth brush and a wooden comb—in my hat, I 'spose I'd beat you on an execution." The man whose duty it is to collect for "Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's" left reflecting that he stood as much chance of being struck by lightning as of collecting a poll-tax in a printing office.

A MURDEROUS DESIGN PROVIDENTIALLY FRUSTRATED.—A somewhat bitter neighborhood feud existed for some months past between several families of this city. The bone of contention was a few inches of ground, or rather the precise locality of the division lines of the block of lots. The fire waxed hotter between Mr. Ritter and a Mr. ——, the first a carpenter, whose shop was erected upon the line of but as claimed by him, and the other a grocery keeper, who contended that the shop was partly upon his ground. Much crimination and recrimination was the consequence. At one time the shop was found on fire and much of it destroyed before the flames could be extinguished. Charges of incendiary guilt were hinted and thus fuel was added to the personal hatred. An aggravated law suit followed. In this ——— was defeated, shortly after which, he closed his business and sold his stock—leased his tenement, and started upon a journey to Germany, sometime during the past summer. Since that time things have been comparatively quiet.

One day during last week the well bucket of Mr. Ritter's well became accidentally detached, and he proceeded to fish it up by means of a hook. Instead of drawing up the buet it at the first trial, as he expected, to his surprise, he drew up something wrapped in woolen cloths. Surmise of foul play was of course immediately suggested. Intanticide was shunned at by one! But when the package was unfolded it was found to contain a beef's bladder, and within the bladder, a pound or more of sordigris. The deliberate design of poisoning the water was immediately apparent. Who done the deed? Oh, that is not my inquiry. This can now only be conjectured from the train of facts connected with the matter. That it grew out of the feud which is noticed above, there can be but little doubt. The deadly intent has evidently been in the well for some months past. The manner in which it was put up shows the design that no poisonous effect upon the water should result for the immediate, but at a future period, when the verdigris as was supposed, would find its way out of its encasement. Fortunately, the discovery was made before the covering of the poison gave way. It should be mentioned, in order to show the mature deliberation with which the plan was concocted, that an iron screw was put within the neck of the bladder, which the perpetrator no doubt supposed would corrode in due time, and thus open for the ingress of the water and a consequent mixture of the solution formed by the verdigris with the water in the well. An iron hinge staple was also tied to the bulk with the design of keeping it sunk in the bottom of the well.

We have not learnt that these various substances have as yet given any clue to trace the hand which placed them as found.—Belleville Republican.

MINUTE CALCULATIONS.—A Queen bee will lay 200 eggs each day for fifty or sixty days. A single queen is stated to produce 100,000 in a season. A season of bees consumes from fifteen to 20,000 lbs. of honey. There are about 9 cells to a square foot of honeycomb; 7 feet bees weigh a pound. A wasp's nest sometimes contains from 15,000 to 16,000 cells. Some females lay as many as 2,500 eggs. 32,000 sick worms produce one pound of silk; but it would require 27,000 spiders, all females, to produce one pound of web. There are six or seven generations of gnats in a summer, and each one 260 young ones. A cow will live on green food in every twenty-five hours and yields five quarts or 10 lbs of milk. Every pound of cock nest contains 70 800 insects boiled to death. Ants have their slaves. Fifty thousand are annually taken away for sugar and crimson dyes. Lewenhoek reckoned 17,680 divisions in the cornea outer coat of the eye of a butterfly, each one of which, he thought, possessed a crystalline lens. The spring of a watch weighs 015 of a grain; a pound of iron makes 50,000. The pound of steel costs 2d, a single spring costs 2d, so that 50,000 produce marketable value of £416 13s. 4d. examined at three miles, and the Pacific at four miles deep.

We would call the attention of our readers to the several single negroes, comprising Mackerel, Flour and House Servants, by Maj Beare at Harrison. See advertisement.

AMERICAN THEATRE.—To-night Mr. NEAFIE appears in Mr. Baker's beautiful and highly dramatic tragedy of "Mohammed." This is a piece of very decided and unquestionable ability, which has to-night a placed the ordeal of both literary and dramatic criticism. Mr. Neafie sustains the principal character, and will, no doubt, from his peculiar qualifications, render ample justice to his role. This is the last night of Mr. NEAFIE's engagement, and the first representation of Mohammed. Both circumstances should secure a crowded house.

PLACIDE'S VARIETIES.—To-night we have the new farce of the "Cabinet Question," in which Holland and other laughter-moving comedians appear. To be followed by two Divertissements, the elegant vaudeville of "Chaste Salutes," and a musical trifle, in which Mr and Mrs Lewis and Mr. Reeves will sing. The whole will conclude with the amusing farce of "Separate Maintenance."

THE FAIR, for the benefit of the Orphan Boys' Asylum, continues nightly at the St. Louis Ball Room, and we are happy to observe that the throng of ladies and gentlemen has in no wise diminished. The Fair will be held nightly until Saturday, inclusive. We hope every one will materially attest the benevolence and liberality of our citizens.

ORLEANS THEATRE.—The magnificent opera of Robert the Devil will be produced at the French Theatre this evening, for the first time during the season. Independently of the gorgeous scenery and glorious music, an additional attraction will be presented in the appearance of M'le. Baron, well known as an accomplished danseuse, in the character of Helena, the resuscitated Abbess.

FIRST DISTRICT COURT.—Judge Larue.—The Court was engaged yesterday in the trial of a few petty cases. Michael Kelly was tried on a charge of larceny and convicted.

FOURTH DISTRICT COURT.—Judge Strawbridge.—The case of Paradise, Lawrason & Co. ex. the Sun Mutual, Nashville and Ocean Insurance Companies, was continued yesterday. It will occupy the time of the Court for some days to come.

FIFTH DISTRICT COURT.—Judge Buchanan.—His Honor decided yesterday that the Baltimore executors of the McDonogh Estate were not bound to give security, in entering on their trust. Accordingly Gen. Howard and the Rev'd. E. S. Gurley qualified themselves yesterday as Executors of the Estate.

SWINDLING.—The sharpers, with which our city is infested, have invented a new mode of carrying on their peculiar vocation. On Tuesday evening a young man with a prepossessing countenance presented a letter to Judge Nisbett, bearing the signature of Cyprien Dufour, and soliciting a loan of $60. The missive was written in bad English, and the Judge at once detected the genuineness of the signature, handed it to Mr. Dufour, who at once pronounced it a counterfeit. As others might be defrauded by the similarity of the signatures, we would caution the public to be on their guard.

RELATIVE RATES.—A man named J. B. Jacquet was arrested yesterday in the First Municipality, on the charge of having stolen about 4000 bricks from Oscar Lavaudais, at the premises on Toulouse street, between St. Philip and Main streets. He was sent for trial before the First District Court.

SCALDING COFFEE.—Such a case of Mr. Perillot was arrested yesterday in the First Municipality on the charge of having stolen a quantity of coffee. The case was remanded for examination.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.—An affrayment was made yesterday by J. Sarragiun charging J. H. Martin with having assaulted and beaten him. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

SERIOUS CHARGE.—A man named C. Scherzer was arrested yesterday in the Second Municipality on the charge of having caused the death of Henry Mandeville, the facts of which we mentioned yesterday, by fracturing his skull. The accused was remanded for examination.

THEFT.—Pat Hart was brought up yesterday before Recorder Caldwell on the charge of having stolen some tow or article, amounting in value to $18, from J. Mahoney. The examination of the case was postponed.

CHARGE OF RAPE.—P. Murphy was charged yesterday before Recorder Caldwell with having committed a rape on the person of Ann Delray. The examination was deferred.

PETTY ITEMS.—A quantity of trifling cases came up before the Recorders yesterday but the particulars are not worth noticing.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Mr. Neafie's Benefit.

MR NEAFIE respectfully informs his friends and the public that his benefit, positively has just upon deck. He will appear for the Last time, in his great character of Mohammed, the 13th instant, when will be presented for the second time on any stage, the new prize tragedy, written by Geo. H. Miles, Esq., for Edwin Forrest, called "MOHAMMED." To be followed by a grand Divertissement, and concluded with the celebrated comedy of "DON CÆZAR DE BAZAN," in which he will sustain his original character of "Don Cæsar" for the first time in six years in this city.
Box Book now open. d12

Orphan Boys Fair.

☞ The Ladies will hold at the St Louis Ball Room, for a few days, commencing on Monday next, the 9th instant, for the benefit of the MALE ORPHAN ASYLUM, the FAIR which has been in contemplation for many months past.
This Asylum, the only one in the City of New Orleans that receives boys, is constantly crowded with children many of whom are of very tender age.
In a City like this, Asylums being indispensable, the Ladies respectfully solicit a liberal community to cooperate with them in their efforts to relieve the interesting institution in question. d9tf

IF CONSTANTINO VERITO, a native of Athens Ionian Islands, be now in this City, he will please make himself known to the undersigned.
