A GREAT EVIL We see it stated that while the country is being drained of the specie in our banks and from California, to pay our indebtedness to Europe, there are some Afty millions of precious metal entirely withdrawn from the business of the country, and this amount is being daily increased. The strong box of the Sub-Treasury is the receptacle for th the Sub-Treasury is the receptace for uni-searmous amount—a sum more than suffi-cient to give ease to the several departments of trade, and to move the mass of wealth existing throughout the Union in the shape of breakdatum and cotton to the different markets of the world. Yet, by the operation markets of the world. Yet, by the operation of law, these fifty millions are entirely withdrawn from circulation—safely looked up, and subject only to government drafts. That and subject only to government access. A con-such legislation is highly injurious to com-merce, especially in seasons of financial embarrassment, scarcely needs arguments

If Clington out State, contended, and we think justly, "that the government had no right to raise revenue except for constitutional and necessary purposes: "that whenever more money is collected than is necessive for the support of government, the lat-The evil is perceptible enough, but opin-Congress reduced the tariff to a revenue standard, and cut off, as they imagined, some twenty millions of dollars from the annua receipts of the customs. But their anticipa-tions proved illusory. Importation was en-couraged, instead of checked by the reduc-tion of duties; the revenues have been enlarged, and the Treasury continues of preased by a plethora of gold and silver. The expedient now advised is the deposit of

The expedient new advised is the deposit of the surplus revenue to the credit of the several States. Undoubtedly such an act would have the effect of keeping the Treasury free from engorgement, and densuring the circulation of the precious metals. A bill having this object in view actually passed the House of Representatives of Congress, but was defeated in the Senate. Had it become a law, the pressure of the influx in our markets of an immense amount of gold and suffer. The subject is well worthy the mature consideration of enhightened statesmen and pehitical economists, and we trust will be brought forward again during the coming session of Congress.
