(CIRCULAR.) CMARLESTON, S. C. April 11, 1533.

At a period of the Revolution of the .2ccordada, which compelled the Congress of Mexico, to reverse the election of Pedraza, and place Guerrero in the presidential chair, the city was taken by assault, and the army of Guerrero atsched and plundered the licuses of the European Spanlards, who are peculiarly odious to the native Mexicans. Many of these persons had taken refuge in the house of the American ambassador, and it was pointed out to the exasgerated soldiery as the asslum of their engines. They rushed to attack it, and in a few minutes would have massacred all within its walfs. At this moment, when hundreds of muskets were levelled at the windows, Mr. Potnix, threw themselves into an open halcony which overlooked that all-persons in his house, should be protected, while the flag of his country waved over them. The scene changed as hy enchantment; and the very men who were about to make the attack, cleared the standard of our mions, and placed sentinels to goard it from outrage. The history of the world presents no parallel to such a scene; and its motal beauty and grandeur should be equally preserved on the page of the historian, and the canvass of the painter. It is therefore proposed to raise by subscription, a sufficient sum the high of the suffrages of his biothers have, for two deep the original of his such as senier and its motal beauty and grandeur should be equally preserved on the page of the historian, and the canvass of the painter. It is therefore proposed to raise by subscription, a sufficient sum to have this illustrius triumph of our National Flag, represented on canvass, and afterwards engraved. The painting will be presented to some public institution of the state or United States.

The minute particulars attending the unfuring of the Uhited States flag at Mexico, fusnish materials for a splendid national painting. The sectional excitements, st. present existing among the states, are obliterating national feelings. These must be revived. The arts are powerful in their appraisant, and lasting in their influence. We must be excited and perpetuate national enthusiasm. DANIEL E. HUGER, BENJ. F. PEPOON,

A LATE INVENTION .- Mr. Stephen Ustick, of Philadel phia, has recently obtained letters patent for a Sais, which he has invented, and which, from the evidence we have seen of its capabilities, we are inclined to believe a most important labor saving machine. This invention consists of pairs of knives, or side custers, which project a very short distance below the points of the common teeth in the saw, so that as the saw is moved to and fro, sither through a log or across it, the knives or cutters penetrate the wood with great facility, and are followed immediately by the common teeth, which rip out the wood 'eft between the knives with a degree of despatch and quickness which is truly surprising. We believe a cross-out saw can never be used by portant labor saving machine. This invention consists one man eaty in cutting a log for a saw mill, but that two are necessary; and even then the labour is slowly and pain-fully performed. But with Mr. Ustick's improvement, one mak will, with the atmost case, cut through a two foot button about half the time required for two men with the common cross-cut saw. We have seen this done, and of course mos cross-cut saw. We have seen this done, and or course speak from personel knowledge. The fact of itself proves that instead of two men being needed, one only will do double quantity of work, making in fact, the labor of one man with this saw, equal to the labor of two men with the ordinary tool. Basides this, its other advantages are so numerous, that we shall endeavor to arrange them under pro saw, thus enabling persons who desire the improvement, to procurs it without sacrificing a good saw already on hand. The cost of altering a common saw would be very small, while its capacity to turn out work would be increased two

2d. The knives, or side cuttors, when used in cutting up green timber, cut with as untch keenness and regularity as to leave no furze on the board, which furze all lumber men know to be a great disadventage. The surface of the boards are delivered from the mill so uniformly smooth, as to be fit for finoring, without any farther planing, beyond what is usually given after the floor is laid. Seasoned logs are almount equally well, but not quite so rapidly.

2d. The teach of the saw are made much after the fashion shiesel, by which a ripping operation is given to the winder machine, accounting for the rapidity of its movements, as well as for the facility with which one man only can drive it.
