NOTICE.—Our letter the third week in May last, Hon. P. S. Biron frequently offered to resume the whole power of the Bank (late Whig), which I accepted. Not having given me, however, a formal exemption, I will contest the payment of two notes given by Mr S. K. Barron and myself on or about the 15th of February last, for 1500 and odd dollars—one due in November 1834, the other in 1835. But, I will agree to settle all matters by by any two disinterested persons or gentlemen in the city; to avoid litigation, which I abhor. The facts being inconvertible, all may be arranged in ten minutes.

Meanwhile, I forewarn all persons against taking said notes; and I equally forewarn all subscribers against paying any account for subscription or advertisements to said Biron or his collector, until further notice, without a receipt signed by R. IRVINE.

New Orleans, October 18, 1834—3t

NOTICE.—I read in the Bee of yesterday, a notice signed B. Irvine, declaring that the course of May last, I offered to resume the whole property of the Argus (new Whig). I might have stated the other time, but as I have nothing the power or the intention of doing so. The public will perceive by the said notice, that Mr B. Irvine is and has been my partner; for it can be seen, that in virtue of said right he forewarns all persons to pay any subscriptions or advertisements to me or the collector of the office, of which department I am especially charged.

I may declare that Mr Irvine is responsible for all losses incurred from his advertisement, and that he is also responsible for his part of all debts and expenses contracted for the use of the paper.
