The Courier de Saint Elienase states, that "the strike at the coal mines still continues; but it is easy to see that the influence employed by the snoot windens prevents the mass from returning to work. I semently (Monday) morning, at Cose-Thioliters, the workman were going to descend the pits, when numbers of the refractory came and took them from their work."

The Courier de Lyen adds—"At the moments we are going to press, we are informed that the directors of the mines are taking measures to restore confidence to the miners, who have believed, without any foundation, that their wagss were to be reduced.

A Marseilles journal has the following:

"We have received from Algiers, April 1; news of

The General had received a sort of challenge from a new Khalifa, who was desirous of trying his strength against the French. The Khalifa fixed the day and place. On the day appointed, the SM, General Cavignac left Tlesnoca very early in the morning with a body of cavalry and his column, and marched towards the appointed spot. A letter from Berne of the 3d inst., quoted by the Presse, states that the Bishop of Soleure had addressed a letter to the Constituent Assembly of Berne, which had produced a deep sensation. The prelate protested against any oath that might be imposed on the Cacholic clergy of the canton of Berne with regard to the elergy not considering itself relieved from the oath, which it had taken, with the authorization of the Holy Nee, to the constitution of IRSI. The Bishop concluded in his letter by entreating the Assembly to attend to the prayer of the Catholic districts of the Jura, and soleming quaranteed by a special article of the Jura shot of the Catholic Charch, such as they were stipulated in 1815, in the act of annexation of the former diocese of Basie to the canton of Berne.

The returns thus far show a nett whig gain of nine members. The whigs have done nobly under the cir-cumstances, and might have easily carried the Legis lature, had they made such an effort as distinguished will be them at the Spring elections of 1844. As it is they have reduced the strength of the opposite party if they shown in the strength of the opposite party if they were unable to leave their tamilies subject to be narassed and disturbed by inexorable craditors.

Mr Farrar fully concurred in the reasons assigned by Mr Nawrort for the adoption of the bill. He believed the House had full power in the matter. It had been objected to the bill that it tambed to impair the obligation of contracts, but this he could not conceive to be the case, it being merely a remedial measure, called for by considerations of public justice and public safety, and was such an act as he looped the Legislature would not heatast to pass without delay. Mr Campract, was willing to have the bill taken up to be discussed on its merits, and the House would then sucertain if it were prepared to pass it.

Mr Tuoraty was opposed to its consideration, as the Judiciary Commuttee had not yet had time to investigates it matterly.
