GOVERNOR.

J. B. DAWSON.

We are requested to state that James Workman is not a candidate for the next legislature.

Mr. Editor—Every improvement in the arts which tends to enlarge the amount of labor and multiply the productive labor of a nation, directly enhances the general aggregate of wealth in a community.

Assuming this principle to be correct in all its details; as we have examined, and been present at the experiments made by the Ditching and Canaling Machine of Mr. Graham, with no small measure of satisfaction. The principles of its structure, and its east and object are already too well known to require minute explanation. Propelled by steam, it is only another illustration of the thousand useful purposes to which that strongest of the physical agents may be trained.

Some modes less expensive than that of slave labor, by which the wet lands of the state might be drained from superabundant water, and others reclaimed from waste, has been a desideratum with the planter; this end, the ever machine which forms the subject of these remarks, most effectually accomplishes both in principle and practice. That there is no room for improvement, in the adjustment of the machinery, is untrue. It is seldom that perfection crowns first efforts.

In the instance before us a great deal has been accomplished; and it is truly a matter of self-gratulation to the inventor, that in the first effort, which is generally experimental, he should have so far succeeded. Conceding this much to the patentee, it is, however, manifest to every one as well as himself, that the carriage on which rests the machinery, is entirely too cumbersome;—and therein lies the secret of the intended improvement. Less materials will be used in its construction, and hence less will be expended; besides a surplus of power will be gained. When last in operation, it easily advanced from five to eight feet per minute, excavating a ditch two feet in depth and the same in width. With the necessary diminution of weight, there is not a doubt, but that the work of three hundred working hands per day could be performed. However comparatively small might be the cost of this suggested alteration, the work is at a stand, as we are informed, for want of funds on the part of the proprietor. That such should be the fact, is a matter of no small surprise, when the immense advantages of the successful operation of the machine are so easily calculated. To the candor and generosity of the community these remarks are submitted.

THE BANK INVESTIGATION.

We understand that the bank committee concluded the labors of their investigation, so far as relates to an examination of witnesses, accounts, &c. on Saturday last. Several of the committee will, however, remain in the city a few days longer, in order to give their report regularity and form, as well as with the object of receiving from the bank several documents necessary to a full understanding of the affairs of the institution. We trust and believe, the rumors of the day to the contrary notwithstanding, that the report will prove satisfactory to a majority of congress—to a majority of the people, and to the friends of the bank generally.

NEW YORK, April 17.

FROM TURKEY.—The brig Palmer, recently arrived at Boston, we have received our regular files of the Turkish newspaper published at Constantinople, from which, and our private correspondence, we make the following extracts:

The Hakim Bash, or inspector general and physician in chief to the court, presents the following report of the five military hospitals of Constantinople during the month of December:

Received.	Deaths.	Discharged cured.	Convalescent.
2,148	28	1,985

This offers a proportion of cures we believe unexampled in the history of [illegible] and speaks much in favor of the [illegible] ed by the Turkish physicians.

The experiment of publishing a journal at Constantinople in Turkish and French, has succeeded so well that arrangements are now making for publishing another newspaper in Arabic, Persian, Greek and Armenian. The Greek Patriarch has issued a circular to his countrymen, warmly recommending it to their patronage.

Latest intelligence from the new volcanic island reports it as somewhat diminished in size. Since its appearance, Etna has been quiet, which has led to the supposition that this new volcano is connected with it. A steamboat was about to sail from Naples with a party of pleasure to visit the island.

The arrival of Stratford Canning, the English ambassador, is announced, and warm hopes are entertained that his presence will be advantageous to the interests of both countries.

Our private letters speak in high terms of the many important improvements which are daily introduced into Turkey. They are fairly to be attributed to the [illegible] activity, the zeal and the intelligence of the Sultan Mahmoud. Under his auspices, Turkey bids fair to be placed on an equal footing with Russia, the most inveterate and the most formidable of her enemies.

Our Minister, Commodore Porter is assiduous in the duties of his new station, and by his courtesy and frankness has secured the esteem of all classes.

Greece—We have been favored with the following extract of a letter from Smyrna, under date of Feb. 10th:—

"Greece is unquiet. A civil war has commenced, and some blood has been shed. A powerful opposition has arisen to the Russian party, and the best men in Greece are at its head. The anti-administration party are in force at Megara, about nine hours" (twenty seven miles) "from Athens. They have chosen Colitti, Gondurittis and Zaimi a commission to direct their affairs. Aug. Capodistrias, brother of the late President, has been chosen by the Russian party to succeed his brother. It is at Napoli di Romania, the nominal seat of government; about three days from Athens. Athens is quiet; and it is neutral."

Most of the facts above stated are already known here, but the friends of the Missionaries in Athens will be pleased to learn that they are prosecuting their labors without immediate interruption. Neither have we before seen the names mentioned of those who constitute the provincial Government of the anti-Russian party at Megara.

CENTRAL AMERICA.—A letter from Omoa, dated Feb. 8th, to a merchant of this city, communicates the following information:—"On our arrival here, on the 1st instant, we found every thing in great confusion. Another internal war has broken out between the present government and Gen. Arias, who came upon them from Mexico. Arico has possession of all the sea coast and ports—there is no communication with the interior—all communications are stopped, and the Gulf trade is put an end to for the present. The town of Trujeel is broken up, and the inhabitants moved to the mouth of the river. There has been no intelligence from Guatemala for three or four weeks. At the first breaking out of the revolution, they shut all their cochineal and indigo to Belize. In two or three weeks time, it is believed Arias will have the command of the republic, and all will be quiet."—N. Y. Mere. Adv.

From the Marietta [illegible] Republican.

Expedition West of the Rocky Mountains.—We have been informed that during the session of Congress for 1820-21 an act was passed authorising the raising of a company of 42 men to explore the Rocky Mountains, and north from the Mexican line, the Behring straits, and 83 degrees north latitude. We have endeavored to lay our hand upon the act, but have not succeeded in so doing; although assured by many of our citizens that it is within their recollections. From the long time the company have been absent (nearly 11 years) all hope of their return was abandoned, as it was supposed they had either fallen victims to the savages or the severity of the climate.

On Wednesday evening, the 18th, one of the party, William Clawson, stopped at the house of a gentleman in Fearing township, in the county, on his way homewards (Northumberland county, Pa.) who kindly furnished us with the following particulars obtained from Mr. C.

The company consisting of Col. Henry Leavenworth, commandant, from near Albany, N. Y.; Sipoo Miller, a native of France, Topographical Engineer; James Watson, [illegible] Baltimore, Md.; Professor of Chemistry; Dr. [illegible] Williams, from [illegible] Physician; [illegible] Private [illegible] left Washington City, [illegible] there in July 1831; from thence they proceeded to Erie, where they went on board the topsail schooner Captain Birdsal, landed at Green Bay and wintered—went by Prarie du Chien to St. Anthony's falls, Mississippi, went up St. Peter's 300 miles in search of lead mines, where they discovered several very valuable mines—wintered there; went down same river, and down Mississippi to the mouth of the Missouri; thence up the Missouri to the foot of the Rocky Mountains—wintered there, and continued to the middle of August; then crossed the Mountains, and were west eight years. While travelling by the French Ocean, and having been over into Asia, south towards the head of Columbia river, they were overtaken by a storm, and compelled to build houses and stay there nine months, six of which the sun never rose, and the darkness was as great as during our nights. The snow, part of the time, was 14 feet deep, and the company were compelled to eat 4 of their pack horses to prevent starving, whilst the only food the horses had was birch bark, which the company cut and carried in them by walking on the snow with snow shoes. Each of the company was armed with a double barrelled rifle, made for the purpose, a brace of pistols, a sword, butcher knife and a tomahawk with an edge and three spikes. Added to these they carried on a horse a small brass piece of ordnance taken from General Burgoyne in the Revolution. After passing the mountains, they passed 386 different Indian tribes, some perfectly white, some entirely covered with hair (denominated the Esau Indians) who were among the most singular, and so Indians who were among the most singular, and so that the company were compelled to run them down with horses to take their dimensions, which was part of their duty, whilst others evinced the most friendly disposition.

While west of the mountains, they fell in with a tribe denominated the Copper Indians, who receive their name from owning extensive copper mines; 300 of them armed with bows and copper darts, copper knives and axes, attacked the company in day time; a severe action ensued, and only about 30 of the Indians escaped, the rest were killed or wounded, with a loss of two of the company, and several wounded.

Among the various discoveries made by the company we have only room to mention those of extensive beds of pure salt, the largest of which was 18 acres, several inches deep, on the borders found to be pure and wholesome; also, innumerable beds of alum, iron, lead, copper, gold and silver ore, the gold almost pure. Among the animals, Mr. C. describes the grisley grey bear as the most ferocious, and lord of the forest. The weight of several killed by the company varied from 60 to 125 lbs. Their strength was surprising, and tales told of it were almost beyond belief.

The remains of the company started for home in August, 1831. They re-crossed the mountains on to the heads of the Missouri river, there built a boat, and those who were lame went on board, the rest on foot. Capt. Leavenworth, being lame, rode on horseback with those on foot, and is supposed to be now in Washington city by Mr. C. Of the company, five died by sickness, one by breaking a wild horse, one by the fall of a tree, and fifteen were killed by the Indians—total 22.

Dr. Williams, was killed by the Black Foot Indians, three miles from the Rocky Mountains on the way out. He was found by the company shot, tomahawked, and stripped naked. Three of the fifteen were never found, supposed to have been killed near the head of Columbia river. Ten of nineteen of the survivors are lame, some by the Indians, and some by accident. Capt. Leavenworth is among the number. He was on horseback, half a mile distant from the camp, when he was shot by an Indian, which broke his thigh and dropped his horse—the horse fell upon the injured leg and broke it again below the knee. The horse continued to hold him thus, whilst the Indian ran up to scalp him, when capt. L. seized a pistol from his saddle, and shot him dead; after which he was got safe to camp.

We are aware that the above sketch is very imperfect, and far from being satisfactory, but it will at least prove interesting. The notes taken by the company will be published, and we look with anxiety for a notice of their arrival in Washington. It cannot fail of being gratifying to the citizens of the country to know that even a part of the company have returned, besides the joy it must give their relatives and friends.

NEWARK, N. J., April 14.

A case of considerable interest and importance to dealers in negotiable paper, was tried in the Circuit Court yesterday. A note drawn by one individual for the accommodation of another, and endorsed by the payee, was dishonored by a third person, he charging one per cent. in addition to the legal rate of interest. The person for whose benefit the note was made, failing to pay it at maturity, an action was instituted against the drawer, who resisted the payment on the ground that the holder obtained the note by an usurious contract, which being void by statute, he had no rightful title to the instrument, and could not, therefore, maintain an action upon it. This state of facts was clearly made out by the endorser, who was admitted by the Court as a competent witness, after he had first been released from all liability, as to the costs which might accrue against the defendant in the action. After an elaborate and able argument, by the Counsel on both sides, the Court charged the jury, in affirmance of the general principle maintained by the defendant's counsel, but drew a distinction between the transfer of a note by way of sale, and as the means of obtaining money. In the former case, the Judge was of opinion that such a contract was not of an usurious character: in the latter, that it was; and that the nature of the negotiation in the present case, was a question of fact, and determinable by the jury under the evidence adduced. The jury returned a verdict for the defendant.

We understand that the case will probably be brought before the Supreme Court, and their opinion taken upon the point of law involved.—Daily Adv.

Law Decision.—In a late case in the Supreme Judicial Court of Rhode Island, it was declared that interest should be allowed in that state, in the accounts of wholesale dealers from the time of the expiration of the credit, according to the usage of the place where they reside. In Rhode Island the usage is to give four months credit, where there is no agreement about the terms.

IDOLATRY IN INDIA.—John Poynder, Esq. long a director of the East India Company, and withal a most excellent man, has addressed a communication to the editors of the London Times, in which he says—

"The governor general of India has recently abolished the nefarious system of burning between 600 and 700 widows every year, under the absurd name of religion; but in a late attempt, at the East India House, to convince the general court that it was encouraging idolatry in a far more extensive, and not less sanguinary form, I have not experienced similar success. This attempt had for its object, not the direct abolition of the worship of heathenism, but simply, the renunciation, on our part, of a gross and disgraceful tax on its worshipers, by which I have publicly proved, on incontestible documents, that the East India Company has received in 16 years, about one million of money from only four temples in India, viz:—Juggernaut, Gya, Allahabad, and Trippetty. This, sir, is so much clear receipt, after payment of all the outgoings of repairing these temples, paying their priests, and keeping up a constant supply of prostitutes. What, then, must be the profits of the East India Company of all the remaining temples of India? Now, however execrable and indefensible might have been the murderous system of suttees, there are two features of atrocity in this direct encouragement of idolatry which never attached even to female immolation. The one is, that the India Company derived no pecuniary advantage from the burning of women, since the Brahmins alone were benefitted by it; while the pilgrim tax is filling the coffers of our professedly christian government, by a direct tax on the temple worship; the other features of aggravation is, that while the practice of suttees had no influence beyond its own peculiar evil, the tribute levied on the general idolatry of India supports and perpetuates all that awful and revolting mass of profligacy and pollution which is absolutely inseparable from the heathen worship which has been so forcibly and feelingly described by those eye witnesses of our own time, Dr. Buchanan, the Rev. Mr. Ward, and the Abbe Dubois. Do we see, then, owe a further reparation to our outraged christianity, if, as a joint stock company, we are so many partners in an unhallowed concern, flowing from the most impure and indefensible source?

COMMERCIAL RECORD.

By the arrival of the ship Othello at Savannah on the 23d ultimo, the factors of the Georgian have been put in possession of Havre dates to the 10th. From the following extracts, it will be found that the cotton market continues favorable and looking up:

Extract of a letter to a respectable commercial house at Savannah, dated,

Havre, March 9.—As things now stand we entertain a favorable opinion of cotton, and think it likely the prices may improve gradually as the season advances, particularly if, as we are led to anticipate, supplies should come but scantily to our market for the remainder of the year. The demand for cotton during the last ten days has been moderate, owing in a great measure to the heavy arrivals, amounting to about 15700 bales—prices of American sorts have improved fully 1 centime; buyers submit with greater reluctance to the pretentions of holders, who remain very firm in the expectation of small imports for two or three months to come. Our stock comprise about 28000 bales.

P. S. March 10.—We have a good demand for cotton, and the sales yesterday and to-day amount to about 2000 bales at very full prices.

Havre Market, March 9.—Cotton—The arrivals favored by the westerly winds which have set in, since our last report have been considerable, they amount to 15499 bales; received as follows, viz.

Notwithstanding these supplies our prices for United States short staple (which are now nearly the only class existing in the market) have experienced an advance which, at an average, may be estimated at 1 centime per kilog.

The sales consist of 4627 bales as follows: 1443 B. Louisiane at 86½ to 100; and 3085 B. Uplands, Alibama or Tennessee at 80 to 90 (this last price for a choice lot of 100 B. 'Singleton,') the whole duly paid. [illegible]

BOSTON MARKET, April 14,

COTTON.—Favorable advices from Liverpool continue to be received, and holders in our market are more firm, particularly for choice qualities—ordinary descriptions are more sought, and in request.
