THE CASDALTHES—THE FOSITIONS AT GETTYSBURG.

[From Our Special Correspondent.]

Gettyebarg, July 5, via. Winchester 11, Stanten 12, Sharmburg 13.—The most desperate battle of the war has been fought here. It commessed on the hvening of the 1st of July, between portions of Ewell's and Hill's commands and a theory Federal force under Gen.

Reynolds.

prayer of eyery good means too sand. And so the seemies of peace understand what they are talking about when they thus cry for war "to the bitter end." They see cant phrases without considering their meaning. The land has had enough of war, if it were possible now to bring conflictto an end and restore the power of the government. That end of war is to be leoked for with the most ardent longies. Peace is always the chieses of war if the war be just, and the American people are not educated to love war, for does the continuance of strife beget any more love for it. In every part of the land to day are monroes who remember the peaceful days of old with sorrowful amotion, and who look for the peaceful days to come with unsutarrable anxiety and impatience. The men who 'refuse to accept the first opening prospect of peace, who andeavor to prevent a peace, except only such a cose as suits their partiann objects, these men will not be able to enatian themselves in the presence of the people We have just fought to accomplish party ends, however much we may have been misled in the war by gartianns. Hat we have fought for the Union, and whenever the Union and beaved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved, by compromise or orbiterwise, then it must be saved.

The most wonderful piece of work in this sampaign, and what must render the slege of Vickburg among the great slegge of history, is the enormous amount of laber performed in the intrenchment and mining operations. Sebastol pol, to which this must bear alstrong naturaneemblance, may have been conceiting like the number of guns bearing upon it and the quantity of iron harled back and forward, but in the slaborateness of the engineering work we doubt if its equal has been seen on either side. The labor of the forts and pits is prodigious, especially if we consider that it is temporary for the piece. COFFEE.—There have been some small exies of fit 344 $350. $\Phi$ labor of the forts and pits is prodigious, especially if we consider that its temporary for the siege.

The enemy had lainer to select his position where all the advantages would inter to his side and where all the drawbacks would be to sours. His forts were on the best sites and well constructed; his pits overlooked chazma- and natural obstacles. His magasines and paths were all selected and bellt before we came. Now hisbatading all these samilest advantages, he has, by the superior force of our artillery, hees driven from poot to poot, until now he has not more than half a dotest guns which he can use, bearing on the laid forces, and these situated so far within the works that their efficacy is impaired. If the rebble had ammunition abundant (and they have stot), it would be difficult for them to fire, as every gun which we could see could be effectually silenced by a concentration of artillery, such as the world has rarely seen. We have gubs of all sorts and calibres, from the monster I lisch colsmbiads, under Captain Solfridge, U. S. A., to the captured iron 6-pounder. They have one 15-inch mortar, which hitberto they have fired with impunity, happily without much damage. We have six of the same calibre firing at will, but we suspect with similar results.

The other day we had a palpable proof of the immense advantage in which we are placed by our numbers and material, naise overbalancing the preponderance of the natural location. We were tempted to make an exploration in front of General Blair's division, iand in company with a fallow Behemian shells hardy Colonsi, were plotted out beyond or betteries, past first one knot of sharpshooters shad then another, until we wound in labyrinthries muses up to the huse of the robot for in front of us.
