OHNERNOR. J. B. DAWSON. 🤫

From the Corner of yesterday. We there been requested by the Directors of the So ciety for the Relati of Destinite Orphin Bays, to re orn their most sincere thanks to the young gentlemen Whitterie, who performed last even og at the Orleans

Theatre, for the benefit of the society. The warm reception and great appliance with which they were greated by a crowded house, must have inch in the highest degree pentifying to the young gendlamen, whose benevolence prompted them to en-gage in this charitable undertaking.

The directors cannot withhold their thanks from Mr

Devis, who kindly, gentuitously, and at great expense and requiremente to be uself, opened his house after it we have been requested thus publicly to return the thanks of the society to Mr. Colsson, and Mr. Bolse, and to the gendernes composing the orchestra;—to Madome-St. Clair, Midame Clozel, Midame Paro al- I Midame Cholet, Madama Theodore, and Madam G.orgos, the ladies attached to the late company of Mr. Davis, whose kindness and important nil contribined largely to the pleasure of a delighted audience.

The moment the autient of the receipts are ascertained, it shall be domined to the public but we in under the impression that it exceeds 17,055 dollars.

We learn with much pleasure, that another company of amateurs intend to perform, in a fortnight, for the benefit of an unfortunate family. One of the pieces will be the admirable tragedy of Mahamet. COMMUNICATED.

This distressing eccident has spread a gloom over the city. Several valuable lives are lost—the three foundation 7 feet high, the whole elevation from the chirks and Mr. Brower have been cut off in the prime of usefulness and life, and many are left to deplore their untimely end.

We mentioned on Saturday that "no blame has been attached to any one -we had heard of none when our paper went to press, but blame has since been found —it is said that the building was not only insecurely that but the weight of goods in it, altogether too much even for the strength of a well built store—we will not however dilate upon this subject, till we receive more certain information.
