

New Orleans Makes It 3 Straight From Mobile; Kroh Inevitable

New Orleans stands alone at the head of the Southern League procession this morning by virtue of the feat of making it three in a row from Mobile. The score yesterday was 9 to 2, Floyd Kroh holding the bats at his mercy at all times and getting brilliant support from his team mates. Chattanooga was defeated by Atlanta and dropped out of the tie with the Pels.

Superior hitting, better team work and steady pitching accounted for the result. Pich twirled unsteadily and met his Waterloo in the third, when the Pel attack netted four tallies and made the count stand 5 to 2 in favor of the home guard. After that session, it was only a formality to make it three straight.

Manager Dobbs used Kroh because of the fact that there are six southpaw batters on the Gull lineup and the success Kelly had against them in the opening game here indicated the strength of the perside twirling against this combination.

Kroh had them eating out of his hand after the third round, when they scored their only runs of the game. Mobile will be the victim again today and in view of the fact that New Orleans and Gretna fans have been howling their heads off to see New-Cow Miller heave a game, Prexy Heinemann is looking for a bumper crop of fans at the turnstiles this afternoon, when the popular favorite will be given the mound assignment. This will conclude the Mobile stand here for the present and those fans who like to see the Pels maul the visiting crowd certainly should turn out this afternoon.

For a Saturday, it surely was poor as only one thousand attended the game. It looks like all the baseball fans have joined the army.

Ahearn Will Take Darcy's Place In Bout With Jeff Smith

Convincing with the request of Gov. Pleasant, made by wire late Friday, the directors of the Louisiana Auditorium yesterday held a meeting and by unanimous vote, called off the fight scheduled for April 23 at the Auditorium, Young Ahearn, more inclined to applaud than who two years ago won the middle-weight championship of England and France, has been substituted.

offered his services, but was not accepted. He also denied that he had left Australia to avoid military service. Smith also was a bit surprised, but had no kick coming, being more inclined to applaud than to criticize. He says that he would not have accepted the match if it had not been made before war was declared and that he is not the champion he claims to be, thereby destroying his drawing power. Smith also said he is ready for the service when the call comes, despite that he has a wife and two children dependent upon him. Young Ahearn will make a worthy substitute for Darcy and there will be a legitimate championship involved, when they meet. The Auditorium management has cut the price by the news and claimed that he is being made the victim of a misunderstanding. He claims that he has served his time in the army and probably as good a fight as any that when the war broke out he would had Darcy met Smith.

Why Universal Service is Both Necessary and Desirable in U. S.

When the European war began in August, 1914, Congressman Augustus P. Gardner happened to be in London. He lived there through all those stirring times while Great Britain was throwing her little army against the Germans and striving to create a larger force. He witnessed the confusion, the hesitations, and the heart-rending delays of a nation whose military system was more like our own than that of any other people.

before sending him into the first line trenches. I understand, of course, that in many a war soldiers have been marched into battle with far less training than is thought necessary today. If we go far enough back in history we shall probably find that the young cave dweller was fitted for warfare in the length of time which it took him to gather a sufficient supply of stones. When siege artillery consisted of catapults and mankinds, an ordnance officer was not obliged to spend long years in studying the chemistry of high explosives, nor was the artilleryman's brain surmised by problems in ballistics. Furthermore, when families were large and life was simple, boys were taught obedience and self-denial. Discipline came easily to them.

By Augustus P. Gardner, Representative from Massachusetts. (Written for the International News Service.)

Military discipline does not consist in learning to maintain a straight line in marching, nor in thumping the army floor with your rifle butt in unison with your neighbors. All that sort of thing is military drill, not military discipline. I have seen a company of young women on the stage who could make you marvel, but I have a good deal of doubt whether their minds had been trained to that obedience which prevents the disintegration of armies exposed to hunger and thirst and cold and heat, and holds human nature in check during the awful ordeal of battle.

Modern wars are fought with huge bodies of troops and those troops must be trained. The Japanese, the Germans, and the French give to every young man 4,000 hours of intensive military training, spread over a period of two years. Under our National Guard system we give to a very few of our young men 576 hours of training, spread over a period of three years. How can we expect them to be adequately prepared for war? Yet every company commander in the National Guard knows that young men cannot be persuaded voluntarily to sacrifice more of their time to military training than they already give under the National Guard system.

Most of us hate to obey even more than we hate to work, and yet I believe that every one of us ought to be given a good, stiff dose of obedience for a full year of our lives. I do not mean the obedience of the factory or the obedience of the school, or even of the home. I mean a subordination for twenty-four hours a day, such as the West Point cadet is subjected to. Of course, I am quite aware that many good people believe that to require implicit, unreasoning obedience breaks the boy's will. Well, of any fond mother dreads the effect of military discipline on her boy's will, let her take comfort in the thought that Ulysses S. Grant and William T. Sherman and Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson were taught subordination at West Point and yet their will power seemed to survive.

Condition of Friendship. "If you want me to feel friendly to you, you must talk to me," says Doc Frank Crane. If you want us to feel friendly to you, you must let us do some of the talking.
