SIMPSON'S,

The shirt sewers (women) had a large meeting in New York on Tuesday week.—
Their object was to devise measures to induce their employers to give them better wages, or, as they themselves more graphically expressit, "wages a little higher than the starvation mark." A New York letter says:

One lady, a shirt sewer, stated that she had been making for the California trade, shirts for two firms, Maiden Lane and William street, (which she named) at 6d, and 94. a piece per dozen. They were to be well stiched in every way, and all that she bed not extent any kind of meet in three weeks but once, when she was two dozen weekly, and to work day and night. She further stated that she had not exten any kind of the by a friend, of, whom she got a good dinner.
