

OFFICE 28 CHARTRES ST.

THE DAILY BEE.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 5, 1860.

TO OUR READERS.

We stated yesterday that the Bee would not be issued this morning, on account of the glorious anniversary of the birthday of our Republic, but important dispatches have been received, we have concluded it is best to issue it before our readers.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Transmitted to the New Orleans Bee.

FOUR DAYS LATER

FROM EUROPE!

Arrival of the Vanderbilt.

THE ALLIES LAYING SIEGE TO MANTOZ.

DECISIVE BATTLE SOON EXPECTED.

Turks issued £1,000,000 Paper Currency.

GARIBOLDI'S MOVEMENTS.

S. VICTOR EMMANUEL DECLINES TO ANNEX THE PAPAL STATES.

OFFICIAL ACCOUNTS OF MAGENTA.

Bologna Pronounced for Victor Emmanuel.

THE POSITION OF RUSSIA IN THE WAR.

General Movement Throughout Italy.

Navy Canal Work Suspended.

IN CONSOLIDATION UNCHANGED.

Commercial Intelligence.

FURTHER BY THE BREMEN.

Hopson III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PROCLAMATION TO THE LOMBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.

FRANCIS JOSEPH.—"Headquarters, July 1, 1860."

"HEADQUARTERS, July 1, 1860."

"AN AUSTRIAN GENERAL RECOMMENDED FOR THE TRENTINIAN."

The Constitutional reproduces a facsimile of the memorandum transmitted from the French army at Magenta. It runs thus:

SPESIAL: THE LITERARY COUNCIL OF THE CONFEDERATE
DE CHAMBERLAIN.

VENICE, June 26.—Brevet Major-General Joseph III in Lombardy—His Address to the French Emperor.

PRINCIPAL PROCLAMATION TO THE LOBARDI.

The following is the text of the address of the French Emperor to the people of North Italy:

Italy—The fortune of war having brought us into the capital of Lombardy, I am anxious to tell you who I am. When I came here, I was a simple soldier, but I have served to support my ally, the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Savoy, and the Pope, who are also mine, endeavored to do me good, and for me and for the country are capable of doing me good.

It is the army in my own name, and the name of the country, and have given you the names of those who were the bravest and most heroic in the field.