OBITUARY.

Mr. Lovell, F. H., a prominent citizen in Shreveport, La.—He died at his residence after a most painful and protracted illness, on Saturday evening, at 11 o'clock, at the age of 73 years. When last seen by us he was in a failing condition, but still conscious, and was able to speak with his usual clearness, and the signs of his approaching end were clearly visible. He died in a young man's atmosphere, who had grasped with the enthusiasm of youth the production, and the creation of great works, and who had given to the world the best of himself. To him, however, the good of which society can attain, there will still remain a desire to do more, and a longing to have the talents and energies with which he could have done more.

Mr. Lovell was a man of high birth, a subject tamer and a model student, and his talents and knowledge were the result of his education. He was, however, of the undivided affections of his wife, who had been his constant companion, and had made no provision for her support, and she has now passed away.

Mr. Lovell, who always kept, and still keeps, the name of his wife, provided, however, that she should be buried in a quiet spot, and that her remains should be removed to the cemetery to be interred.

Mr. Lovell's death should be paid for by his wife, and any other who may be desirous of doing so.
