RECENT IMPORTATION.
The Hydrocarbon, or Rain Bath.
 EVERY thing connected with the cleanliness of the body; every thing, which may not be a preventative of disease, belongs to the province of Hygienic medicine, which Mr. Schmidt has lately enriched with the precious discovery of his Hydrocarbon.
 The importation into France by Mr. Walz, of the apparatus necessary to the application of this new mode of baths, has obtained for him the approbation of the society of practical medicine, in Paris, to whom he has submitted his process, and secured him, from the public's general use of this new apparatus, a just reward for his services, which has rendered to humanity a great benefit.
 These baths, the usefulness of which is generally acknowledged in France, both in a medical and a domestic point of view; in that of public salubrity, present advantages so numerous, that it is particularly mentioned, in order to recommend to the notice of New-Orleans, the apparatus recently imported by Mr. Guequel.
 The liquid contained in a reservoir above the bath, and yielding to its weight presses against the sides of a variety of ways, so as to issue through a great number of capillary apertures, which project in the form of a water spout on the surface of the whole body, or on one, or the other of its parts, according to the direction of the capillary aperture.
 Simple or composed, natural or artificial waters, decoctions, aromatic liniments, spirituous distillations, can be made and used in the hydrocarbon, and the apparatus may be employed not only in a bath, but also in shower baths, which are taken with a liquid or with steam, as applied to the head, trunk, or limbs of the body.
 The practical medicine, the use of this bath, from the various modes of its application, has produced the happiest results; physicians have already obtained signal success, in a variety of cases, such as gouty obstructions, glandular affections, contractions of muscles, neuralgia, rheumatism, stiffness, extension of every sort; together with an extensive affection of eruptions of every species, even to the most kind, nervous weakness, and a number of diseases, in which it is equally necessary to daily annual economy.
 Considered in the light of a powerful hygienic auxiliary, the use of the hydrocarbon is not only salutary, but produces a salutary vigor, a development of strength, which by no means results from the bath by the immersive process; the perspiration, the different parts of the body, by the means of the capillary sprinkling; the excitement, produced on the skin, by the constant sprinkling, the general tone and activity, which are the consequences of it; the agreeable sensations, which it creates; the faculty of transmitting the steam into the former; each and all of those are qualities of hygienic, too well known to require further explanation on the subject.
 The rain bath differs from the immersive bath, in this respect; that in the use of the latter, the pressure exercised by water on the body frequently produces a very great difficulty of breathing; a tendency of blood to the head, and lower headaches and vertiges.
 The bathy asperation, on the other hand, produces quite a contrary effect: the water, falling on the whole surface of the body in small drops more or less tepid, assists perspiration; a gentle infiltration is excited in every part of the body; the process of respiration is regular; it gradually expands, the pulse acquires liveliness without losing its regularity, and if the expression be allowed, the articulations become more vigorous; for that feeling of weakness, ever attendant on the bath by immersion, is never experienced. In conclusion the discovery of the hydrocarbon may be considered as an additional luxury in domestic life, as well as account of the pleasurable sensations, which it creates, as the immense advantages of cleanliness, so very salutary to the body.
 Baths, with Mr. Walz's apparatus, can be taken warm, cold, or cold; as also medicated, mucous, alkaline, essential, or steam and shower baths; the usefulness of which is very great, though generally disregarded on account of the high expenses and infinite care attending the establishment of steam baths at home.
 This new apparatus independently of the little space, which they take up in a room no ways interferes with the service of a household; and if the more trifling details are taken up, consideration offers a saving of time, fuel and water. Manufactured in the shape of sundry moveables, this apparatus can adorn a dressing room, a parlor, or the most modest tenement, in the form of a book case or a press; it may be found an indispensable desideratum in a household.
 Initiated into the secret of the process, Mr. Guequel will take upon himself the setting up of the apparatus after the form and manner, which may be pointed out to him.
 The public will be admitted to an inspection on the 1st of May next, at the establishment of the hydrocarbon bath, Bourbon, between St. Anne and Maine streets. April 28.
