A TOWER OF STRENGTH OF GOVERNOR.

Governor Warmoth is about to go to Cincinnati to take part in the great Reform Convention, called to assemble there on the 1st of May next. Before his departure on this mission, he desired to give our people an earnest of what he intended to do for them in the way of reform. And the method adopted we think will convince the community that the Governor is a model reformer. The action of the City Council yesterday in the matter of an extension for Fiscal Agent of the City, taken doubtless at Gov. Warmoth's dictation, is a specimen brick of the edifice which His Excellency has begun to construct in Louisiana. It will be seen by our report of the proceedings of Council yesterday, that the Fiscal Agency has been withdrawn without case assigned from the New Orleans National Banking Association and transferred to the Louisiana Savings Bank, of which Mr. Van Norden is President and John S. Walton is Cashier. Mr. Walton is the Treasurer of the City, at the same time, which of course does not lessen the convenience of the arrangement to him. We suppose this is the reward promised to Mr. Van Norden and Mr. Walton for their little service to the Governor in the matter of that tinbox affair in which a man of the name of Dr. Southworth and another of the same stripe, named Lewis, were concerned. Our readers will remember the habeas corpus proceeding in the case of Van Norden before the District Court a few weeks ago, which exposed to the world his connection with Warmoth and the associates of the latter. This connection consisted in his being a stockholder for Gov. Warmoth and Senator Lewis of the sum of $80,000, or thereabouts, which was the price of Senator Lewis' adherence to Warmoth's cause at a critical moment when Warmoth's political fortunes were trembling in the balance. We are not surprised that the Governor has taken this early opportunity to manifest his gratitude to those who performed for him an important service at a perilous time. It is part of the scheme which Governor Warmoth is now carrying into execution, a scheme which looks to the creation of the Liberal Republican party in this State. We suppose this is one of the evidences of the change which is said to have come over the Governor, and which has led him to cut his connection with the Republican party, and throw himself into the hands of his personal friends, with the view of setting on foot a movement looking to the creation of the branch—the Liberal Republican party of Louisiana.

We commend this action of the Governor to three of the Democracy who are willing to follow him in this new movement, and would ask them if they are disposed to countenance a proceeding so high-handed as this is. We refer to our report for the debate in the Council on this matter.

LLADO'S DRUG STORE.—An elegant drug store has lately been established at the corner of Commons and St. Charles street, under the St. Charles Hotel. Its proprietor is Mr. Joseph Llado, so well and favorably known for many years as a druggist in the Second District, corner of Chartres and Dumaine streets. His new store has been filled with an entirely fresh stock of drugs and other goods in his line, just imported from Europe, and is one of the most complete retail establishments in the city, entitling it to be ranked as "first class." Competent and careful chemists will always be in attendance for the compounding of prescriptions at all hours of the night or day.

DUTCHER'S LIGHTNING FLY-KILLER sweeps them off and clears the house speedily—TRY IT—Sold by dealers everywhere. tj625

RAILROAD AFFAIRS.—The gentlemen composing the party of railroad managers which made the round trip to Atlanta, Selma, Mobile and New Orleans, in the special car furnished by the St. Louis and Iron Mountain Railroad, have, upon their return, passed unanimously the following resolutions:

Resolved, by the Western members of the Western and Southern Railway Association, attending its first quarterly meeting, that they tender their warm and sincere thanks to the managers of the St. Louis and Iron Mountain, the Mobile and Ohio, the Nashville and Northwestern, the Nashville and Chattanooga, the Western and Atlantic, the Rome Railroad, the Selma, Rome and Dalton, the Alabama Central, the New Orleans, Mobile and Texas, the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern, and the Mississippi Central Railroads, for the many courtesies received and facilities extended for the inspection of their railways, and methods of transacting business while on their way to the meeting at Atlanta and on their return from the same.

And more especially are their thanks due to Mr. Thos. Allen, President of the St. Louis and Iron Mountain Railroad, and of this Association, for providing a special car, in which they have been enabled to make so extended and pleasant a trip over the Southern railroads above named, without fatigue, and with great profit to themselves.

Resolved, That the thanks of the members are also due to the citizens of Atlanta, to Mr. E. G. Barney, of Selma, and to Mr. L. O. Fleming, of Mobile, for the especial courtesies and attentions received at their hands, and for the opportunity to observe those improvements in their several cities, which indicate, as we all hope, the dawn of returning prosperity for the South.

Resolved, That the Secretary be instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to each of the parties from whom the above favors were received, and to furnish them to the press for publication.

The Result of a Trifling Misprint.

Two or three years ago lawyer Mr. Grant in his "History of the Papacy" gave a startling illustration of the results of a trifling misprint occurred in a speech by Mr. Marshall, in which he said:

"But I deny altogether that the rich alone are qualified to legislate for the poor, any more than the poor are qualified to legislate for the rich." The word "not" was given in the report which appeared in the Times as follows: "But I deny altogether that the rich alone are qualified to legislate for the poor, and more—that the poor alone are qualified to legislate for the rich."

The Parliamentary Review accepting the report of the Times as correct, made a furious onslaught on Mr. Bright for saying that the poor were not qualified to legislate for the rich. Mr. Bright with his usual temperance, severely chastised the Parliamentary Review for its gross perversion of what he had said, declaring that he had not having stated that its supposed enemies were generally on the side of that particular space in society. The Times, in its characteristic vein, took the matter took place, when it was found that the substitution, not of a word only, but a single letter, had changed all the meaning. Mr. Bright had said "any more than the poor," whereas the reader has substituted the letter "r" for "n" making the word "and" instead of "any."

INFANTS.—The most irritable and restless of these tender little household gods, are charmed as to sweet, intelligent and refreshed repose by using Mrs. Winslow's Syrup.

The Mechanics' and Agricultural State Fair.

Third Day.

The weather was very inviting again yesterday for outdoor exercise and enjoyment, and the attendance at the Fair, though far from being as numerous as on Thursday, was large, considering all things, as large as could be expected, particularly in view of the universal impoverishment resulting from the oppressive taxation of city, State and National Governments. We should say that about two thousand visited the grounds during the day. In the earlier hours ladies and children predominated in numbers, but as the resting hour approached the masculine element began to flow in, many of whom spent some time in examining the chicory, agricultural implements, vehicles and other exhibitions of interest to them, while the ladies and their escorts promenaded themselves in the building for the exposition of objects of art, furniture and machinery, Whichever direction is taken one is sure to find something to arrest his or her attention, particularly in the building referred to.

The Exhibition.

Messrs. A. B. Griswold & Co., successors of Hyde & Goodrich, whose splendid establishment is at the corner of Royal and Canal streets, have a show table filled with articles of beautiful productions of American art is a silver shallop, inlaid with gold, intended for a fruit and flower stand. The design illustrates a passage in Longfellow's Hiawatha. An Indian prince is at the stern, equipped with spear and a quiver of arrows, with a paddle steering his bark; the silver sail of which is bellying before a favoring breeze. Surrounding the boat are some faithfully formed representations of American vegetation and American reptiles. We have not space to mention all the specimens of plate Messrs. Griswold & Co. have on exposition, but may say that the articles prove a very great advance during the last fifteen or twenty years, in the taste and skill of Cisatlantic gold and silversmiths. The Messrs. Griswold & Co. have also a variety of the celebrated American watches made by Howard of Boston, by machinery, which are beginning to rank high as time keepers. There are, too, some very costly brilliants over which the admirers of such things—and who, if he speaks truly, and has the means to indulge his tastes is not an admirer of them?—love to linger and look at them again and again. The price of a necklace there is $15,000 and, by the way, it is creditable to the workship of this firm that they can give so beautiful a setting as the necklace has. The specimens of masonic jewels, guard chains, ladies sets of diamonds, corals and cameos are in the highest styles of art. We also notice some very handsome bronze statuettes. The silver ware of this house comes from the Gorelsan Manufacturing Company, of Providence, R. I.

Mr. E. A. Tyler, the famous jeweler and watch dealer on Canal street, is the ris-a-ris of Messrs. Griswold & Co., and it would be a very difficult matter to say which has the more attractive exposition, if a choice could be made at all. Whoever will stop at Mr. Tyler's table once, will find a silver representation of "King Arctic" drawn in a sleigh by a pair of reindeers, which is exquisitely beautiful. It is designed for a fruit or flower stand and is lined with gold. The figures of "King Arctic" and the reindeers are wrought with marvelous skill, and the representations of icicles and all the surroundings bring vividly before the imagination the rigors of a winter under the sign of the bear. Another very beautiful object is a silver cruet set upon a race course, over which two silver horses and jockies are coursing. The workmanship of this is most admirable too; so is the manufacturing of a silver ice boat with an immense sail at one end and the figure of a polar bear at the other, and so likewise is the work on a fireman's trumpet. The visitor will besides find some splendid Masonic jewels and Odd Fellows' jewels; the finest medicine chests, &c., &c., of the English and Swiss manufacturers and the finest stationary. For personal ornamentation, there are two superb lady's diamond setts, the price of one of which is $5,000, and that of the other $7000. Very handsome coral setts and cameos are also on exhibition here. The lessening demand for cameos shows a rising taste in the arts, for the carving of a cameo, in high style, requires a refined taste as that of the sculptor. Mr. Tyler's silver ware comes from the Whiting Manufacturing Company of New York.

Sewing Machines, &c.—Mr. J. P. Cross, on No. 62 Camp street and No. 15 Dauphine street, has an extensive display of wares in his line, which are worthy of more than a cursory examination. The wares is substantial as well as handsome. He has a hunting lamp which is intended to be worn by Nimrod, on the head, for night hunting. It burns any sort of oil and illuminating all about the hunter, being on his head it does not interfere with him in the use of his gun. It is an ingenious but simple contrivance. Every thing exposed here is manufactured by Mr. Cross in this city, except an extraordinary lamp, for which he is the agent, and which is called "the Union Safety Lamp." The virtue guaranteed in this lamp is that whatever fluid may be used in it, the hotter the flame the cooler the oil.

Stoves.—Messrs. Rice Bros., of Camp street, have a splendid assortment of stoves and ranges at the Fair. The celebrated "Charter Oak" of all sizes is there, and a Warren range draws the attention of every housekeeper to examine it and find how comple and economical a culinary apparatus it is.

Furniture.—Mr. P. Mallard, furniture dealer and upholsterer, corner of Bienville and Royal streets, has some surpassingly fine articles in his line, open to public inspection at the Fair. The also fine carving of a fox that has succeeded in making prey of a fowl, which carving is to be seen in black walnut book case, is, in its way, a very remarkable specimen of the wood graver's art. The splendid articles of household furniture exhibited by Mr. Mallard are well worthy of examination. His tables and a rose wood bureau are in the finest style of the cabinet maker's art.

Lace, Hic.—Mr. D. H. Holmes, the Canal street dry goods merchant, has a small section of his exposition, in which he has a display that challenges the attention of every lady passing. We are ignorant of the names of most of the things and of the value of any of them and must content ourselves with a mention of the circumstance that we heard numerous exclamations of delight from fair ones as their eyes fell upon the foam-like samples. The Sportsman's Depot.—Mr. Charleville, No. 55 St. Charles street, has the most extensive exhibition of the forms of every description that has ever been presented at any of our fairs. He has rifles, fowling pieces and pistols of all kinds now in use, including the latest improvements in both breech and muzzle loaders. Besides he has the most complete magazine for the disciples of Sir Isaac Walton that has ever been submitted to public inspection here. His stock of fishing tackle, in variety and in quality, is fully equal, perhaps excels that of the famous Guion in the palmy days of the South. Everything that a lover of hunting or fishing can possibly need is to be found in the large and varied assortment of Mr. Charleville.

Gentlemen's Furnishing and Children's Clothing.—Mr. Blaney T. Walshe, No. 110 Canal street, has a compact show-case, in which he presents for public inspection some of his leading articles, among which will be found the shirts, gentlemen's collars, socks, and boys' and children's clothing for the excellence of which his establishment has become famous. No less than thirty-six medals, together with a silver goblet, are arrayed before the spectators, awards to Mr. Walshe for superiority of his goods exhibited at different Southern Fairs during the last five or six years. Besides the articles mentioned, crockery ware suffice to establish reputation for Mr. Walshe, as a fashionable purveyor.

The Following Awards were made in Machine Department A, by Superintendent Thomas A. Fenner, at the mill known as Odeon, No. 15 and 19 Camp street, where the articles can be seen by visitors who call at the exhibition at that place. These specimens, which consists of general men's clothing and boys' clothing, are of the finest quality for the durability and neatness of the material and the elegance, elegance and finish of the work.

Carpets, Rugs, &c.—Messrs. Elkin & Co., No. 16 Canal street, have on show a few specimens of very beautiful and substantial carpets. The colors are fast and exciting. The carpets on the floor in the exhibition room are remarkable for the tasteful and design and workmanship.

Optical and Nautical Instruments, &c.—Messrs. Ed. Hill & Co., Canal street, have a very large assortment of the articles above mentioned, and which have been famous as a depot of the kind and in no part of the world could more such professional instruments and valuable implements to be found in greater profusion.
