DINNER TO MR. CLAY. 32833 The dinner which it was announced some day ago was proposed to be given to the Hon. HERR LAY, by his personal friends in Congress, on the ccasion of his retirement from public life, took place as Saturday last at Brown's Hotel. There was a very general attendance of the whip members of both houses of Congress, together with a few private gen demen, who were received as guests, the origin and at agements of the entertainment not contemplating or mitting an extended participation beyond the me bers of Congress. The dinner was sumptuous and elegantly prepared, and did great credit to Mr. Brown's establishment. The entertainent was altogether what t was designed to be, simply a social meeting, prompt ad by feelings of personal respect and kindness for the distinguished guest, and a grateful sense of his long nd eminent public services. In his own feeling and pressive response to the complimentary loast which alled him out, and in all that followed both of toast ind addresses to which the occasion gave rise, there was a marked abstinence from all unkind allusion to personal or party differences, or to incidents which have lately embroiled and embittered our political af irs .- National Intelligencer. AWFUL FIRE IN COLUMBIA, S. C. The flourishing little town of Columbia, S. C. has seen nearly desolated by a destructive fire which comnenced about I o'clock on the morning of the 12th and was not extinguished until day light. It begar in a blacksmith shop on Main street, and destroyed venty-nine stores and dwelling houses, with numer one out buildings—the whole comprising the most va-tuable property in the town. The loss cannot fall short of $300,000. About one half of this amount was covered by insurance. The principal auffere were Col. Pemberton, A. Alexander, J. D. Mordecai Baker & Truesdale, L. Of twenty-one Councilmen, only size are re-elected. Three-fourths of the Council ar whigs, though no political feeling operated in the elec-tion. The working men's nomination for officers seems to have had very little effect. The tickets were mixed up in all possible ways, and the voters seem to have paid little attention to anything but their indivilual choice. On the 3d some burglars entered a jew store on Washington street (Boston) and took from the deak about $150, when they were interrupted in their work and escaped. They, however left behind

there, in exchange a black bag containing severs gold watches worth about $1000, and another fille LLOYD.- The defauling collector of New York vithout stint or discrimination. To us, after a ul perusal, it appears to be as replete with the ac mowledged excellencies, as it abounds in the promi-nent faults of the author. Mr. Bulwars has akifully lected a mystical and most fascinating subject, and the has invested it with all the dreamy concessor, wild and vague inspirations and gorgeousness of dic-tion which his teening imagination could command. The mysteries of the Resyrucians—a theme acarely touched by the pen of the masters of romance, are attempted to be unfolded in these volumes, and linked intense passion carrying us to and fro from a rate to the supernatural world, they are woven into a fiction of such irresistible attraction that the reader is absorbed, spell bound and breathless until he coalcules the work. But mere interest of narrative is but a secondary merit—the endowment of an inventive fancy—a gift shared by the author of Creighton and Jack Sheppard and other writers whose works have no claim to exalted consideration.

cludes the work. But mere the endowment of an inventure fancy—a gift shared by the author of Creighton and Jack Sheppard and other writers whose works have no claim to exalted consideration.

There is much in these volumes of beautiful and graceful sentiment, something of occasional sublimity and grandeur, and one or two characters delineated with the most delicate and exquisitely treatful limining. The episode of the nuceitan is equal to anything in the book, and Viola is a bright creature, a conception of guilelessness alketruth, and free from instipidity and markishness. There is little of the fresh and healthful sourally about those volumes which in "Night and Morning" redeemed so many of Bulwer's errors; but there is a scene in the second the appaling hideousness of the Reign of Terror—The portrait comprises a group of the principal per sonneges in that ghastly drams of blasphemy and death, and the private feelings and secret motives of Roberpierre, Couthon, Henriot, and other actors in Roberpierre, Pourthan, Henriot, and other actors in Roberpierre, Couthon, Henriot, and other actors in Roberpierre, Couth The potrait comprises a group of the principal per-sonages in that ghastly drama of blasphemy and death, and the private feelings and secret motives of Robespierre, Couthon, Henriot, and other actors in the internal tragedy, are laid hare with a remorseless scalpel, while their awtil retribution is described in language of real power.

In this brief notice we are unable to do justice either to the beauties or defects of the work. Of the style we can simply say it is Bulwer all over. Man-nerism so marked that a single line betrays the au-thor: a squerfatterness of diction that frequently

We are pained to learn that on Thursday evenin last, a most horrible transaction took place in thi oounty, nine or ten miles from this place, which re suited in the death of David Jarregan, e.g., and th ounty, nine or ten miles from this place, which resulted in the death of David Jarnegan, saq, and the wounding of several other persons. The circumstances of the affair are not sufficiently known to justify a detailed statement. The general facts we will state as we have heard them. It appears that a Mr. Morgan had arranged a matrimonial elopement with a daughter of the deceased, which, with the aid of friends, was accomplished on Thursday; the parties having repaired to a house in the neighborhood where the marriage ceremony was legally performed. Upon learning the fact of the elopement, Est, Jernegan became very indignant, and determined to go in pursuit. Taking a few friends he soon reached the house where the marriage party was assembled. We learn that he forced the door and entered, when an attack commenced, in which the deceased received sundry wounds, which produced his death early yesterday worning. Some others were wounded; among them Mr. J. F. Simmons, who we understand is seriously in not dangerously injured. We have not heard further from the matter. With the deceased we were well acquainted. He was a wealthy planter, and possessed many fine points of character. His untimely end is much regretted by his numerous friends. The affair will no doubt be investigated, when the whole of the facts may be given to the public.—La Grange (Tenn.) Gatherer.

"A few days ago, as two boys named McConne were playing on the shore near Gull Point, they discovered from behind a thicket a huge serpent which they described to be about the thickness of a man'body, and with a head proportionably large and very glossy, the eyes about the size of a horse's, and very glossy, the eyes about the size of a horse's, and very glossy, the system of the size of a horse's, and very form that they had seen, who having no gun sent for Mr. John Church with his rifle, and they were conducted by the boys to the spot. There they discovered him baring in the sun, his head about four feet out of the water. They judged him to be about 39 or 40 few long, a dark brown color, and a broad ring about hody. Mr. Church alarmed him in endeavoring the got a favorable position for a shot, and he put out in deep water, but soon returned, and they followed him from Gull Point to the light house, a distance of the truth of this from undoubted sources, and we furth learn that such a monster has been frequently seen by the people along the lake shore."
