

The New-Orleans Daily Bee.
Wednesday morning, Aug. 18, 1847
For Congress—Second District.
H. G. THIBODEAUX.

The Union and the Bee.
The Union does us the honor of replying somewhat detail to a recent article in which we endeavored to prove the Locofoco and Whig.

The organ considers our guilty of "audacity in insinuating upon the democratic voting for a man who repudiated their political principles," and further of "an impudent assertion."

Our opponents are invariably ladies. The Queen it shall be so.

Douglas.—The Merchant's Pilot Boat, Nestor, left with 20 miles to the eastward of Monroe, on Saturday morning, 7th inst., bound for the Cape, in search of a whaler which was last seen off the coast of Michigan, and the Union recites her arrival at the port of Douglas, where she was received with a hearty welcome.

It is a day passes without some Democratic accomplishment in his favor. Look at Pennsylvania, with her Democratic Corresponding Committee, and her calls to Democratic Conventions to promote the success of old Hegel. Look at Maryland, where the Democracy, in some places, has got the upper hand. Look at the Whig enthusiasm of Boston, and let the Union read its own correspondence from the city of Detroit, and it will not fail to perceive what the Democracy are doing. And it is other proof were required, point to the course pursued by the official journal itself, and derive from its pages the opinion of its editors, that they are anxious to preserve their organization, and from its elaborate and constant efforts to exhibit General Taylor as a thorough going Whig, ample confirmation of the fact that it is, indeed, and despite the popular movements now in progress, a Whig paper, and appears willing to do all that the members of its family are spontaneously manifesting their intention to sustain Zachary Taylor, and thus, in spite of the desperate exertions of the political black to keep them rigidly in restraint.

But it is not the first time because we endeavor to explain, the motives that induced Democrats to shun their organization, and to come out for the Hero of Buena Vista. It is highly disconcerted at our remark that the election of General Taylor will annihilate the noble practice of proportion for opinion's sake, and that the result will be to give the Whigs a clear majority in the most important districts.

It is a fact, however, that the first great State in the Union, and most populous, Mississippi, has now declared for Major General Taylor.
