POST OFFICE FRAUDS. POST OFFICE FRAUDS.

In proof of the atrocious corruption of the government, and the manner in which whig documents are disposed of by the post offices, take the following instance, mentioned by the Hon. Joun M. Borre, in a witter to the Richmond Whig:

stance, seentioned by the rion, John and the better to the Richmond Whig:

On the second day of February last, I sent to the pest office in this city (Washington) several hundred copies of say first appear on the New Jersey contested election, directed to the Richmond post office—on the 13th of the same month I went to Richmond myself, and had many applications from personal friends for a copy of the speech I had sent nearly a fortnight before. I repaired to the post office of that city to ascertain whether those documents had been stopped in Washington, or if they had been received in Richmond, why they had not been distributed. Nobody could give me any information on the subject; but in looking about the pffice, I observed a mail beg under the counter, filled with something, and the mouth of the bag united; I saked what it contained; one of the clerks said heddin't know; I looked in it, and found my frank on every paper in view; I then asked how long that hag had been in the office, but no one could tell; on emptying its contents, it was found to contain nothing else but my documents, by which it would appare that they had been separated from every thing else—whether in Richmond or Washington, I know not.

FROM OUR WARRINGTON CURRENT Washington, May 8th, 1940. The Convention times are over; and the vast con-course of patriotic young men, recently assembled it e, have dispersed to their respective homes. Bakinners, have dispersed to their respective nomes. I sent you full accounts of the proceedings of this mighty gathering of the people. For a day or two, this city was animated by the presence of many of the members. Meetings were held at the City Hall, made by distinguished members of congress. Yesterday, one of the most interesting and animate debates of the whole session occurred in the sensie;—

and the strangers who had the good fortune to be pre and the strangers with and the goes control to be pire. Benton, Southard, Calboun and Buchanan speak on the same day, in reference to the same subject. The discussion was upon the public expenditures. The administration party have been greatly annoyed by the effects on the public mind of the "printed leaf" containing the statements of the public expenditures from 1824 to 1839, furnished to congress by the sacretary of the Treasury. It has been desmed necessary by them to attempt semething to turn the tide of sopular indignation. Mr. Benton was, therefore, prompted to make a cail on the Secretary for the items which made up the aggregates that have been so appalling to the people. The answer of the Secretary was sent in yesterday; and immediately, before it was read, or printed, or any knowledge of it whatever was communicated to the scale, Mr. Benton moved for the exits printing of THURTY THOURAIN additional ceptics; and then followed up his defence of the Administration, and a violent assault on the Opposition. This possible and a violent assault on the Opposition. This possible and the followed up his defence of the Administration and a violent assault on the Secretary and could not know any thing of the Secretary's document, his suphistrics and mirrepresentations would be allowed to pass unanswered. He was disappointed. The leading senators of the opposition instantly joined issue who had attempted to play off this newlet expenditives of the administration on the guiltibility of the American people. It is fortunated that the prodiged expenditives of the administration outly not the moment of the designation and the prodige of the administration outly of the members both of the whig and loco-fococonventions. The impression will not soon be efficied.

If any join a rajid sketch of the principal points. If the prodiged expenditives, the wood of the measure of government. Have an about the prodiged expenditive of the administration of the goes of the side of the principal points. The preat fact to which the peop pocket, had passed into a law, there wesple have been none. The receipts from the lands word have gone forth to heartify and improve the country. But suppose the profective poricy weathe cause of the surplus, it was by no means necessary that it should lead to extravagance, nor would it have done so had the government been in wise and competent hands. This administration indeed might not be able to agoid running into extravagance; but no inferrence of general necessity should be drawn from their conduct.

Mr. Clay then turned from Mr. Calhoun, to notice the extraordinary attempts which have been stade to shift the blame for the waste of the public money from the executive and his partisans to the shoulders of the opposition. The kung and his ministers come down to Congress and proclaim that their opponents, a minority, are responsible for the expenditures of the administration! Is not the executive at the head of the majority party in congress I and when, within the last twelve years, have the opposition had a majority in both heuses? Do they pretend sow that the minority could control their course? Will they dare to assert that the opposition could compel Grn. Jackson to take less than he chose to ask for 1 No. No. The administration is responsible—the people are holding the men in power to their proper accountability; and no man, who reads the signs of the times, can doubt what their judgment will be.

What is it, (Mr. Clay asked.) that the publication of this new report from the secretary is designed to meet and conflute? What fraud, what deception has there been in using him thus;—in transmitting our constituents what we have derived from the secretary.

They show a state of things appalling indeed; but the money of the people is squandered, for the purpose of circulating the administrations demonstrations et its economy.

The proceedings of the federal office-holders' convention have given great dissatisfaction, in refusing to make any nomination of vice PREMEMENT. There is no doubt that the party in the southers and western states preferred other men to Col. Johnson. The vote in convention was 99 in favor of the re-nomination of Col. Johnson,—30 against;—and the subsequent addition of 43 votes, New-York votes against it shows how Mr. Van Burren pointed his finger.

Mr. Forsyth is indignant that he did not receive the nomination; and now informs his friends that he will be pained if his name is continued before the people as a candidate, and that, if elected, it would afford his little graitfaction. He declares that there is no hope for any man being chosen vice president by the people; and he would not desire the office when conferred by the senate.

There is no doubt that the ganagers hope, by running several candidates, to throw the choice into the menate,—where if that body remains 2 it now is, misrepresenting the states, they may have votes enough to elect the man of their choice;—and thus friumph over a cheated and betrayed people.
