Adderssen, in bearing generous testimony to Morphy's powers, says he is too strong for any living player to hope to win more than a game here and there. He never makes a mistake, but as soon as his adversary committe the slightest blunder, his game is gone. If a player makes a more "approximativement" correct, but not "exactement" the right more. Morphy is dead certain to win. Anderssen has also given his opinion that Morphy would have beaten all the three great triumvirate—Philidor, La Bourdonnais and McDonnel.

This significant fact tails the whole story, especially when connected with the position of the Democratic majority in the Senate.
