An arist named Seymour was, a few years since, dragging out, in poverty, a miserable, desponding life. It is sketches were, in the midst of all his privation, at range to say, of a homorous character, and one day having conceived the idea of depicting, in a series of sketches, the adventures of a benevolent Knight Errant, he made the four drawings which accompanied the first number of the Papers. Having thrown there sketches by he thought no source of the matter, and again lell into despondency. His wife was an energetic woman, and one evensing, used by want, she took these drawings and proceeded to the stop of Mr. Spooner in the Brand, who is a publisher of eariest tures, for the purpose of disposing of them, in order wenable her to meet the same of the passing house treatming home with breast gaints, where, happening to pass these the in a very small way of business, she west in and defend of the control of the state of the same of the same of the same of the in a very small way of business, she went in and effort in acc, myrhing this control gain.
