with astification, in the present anxious state of public affairs, of the advice of my 'Parliament, which I have summoned to meet with the least possible delay.

I have directed that papers shall be laid before you, from which you will learn how earnest and unceasing have been my endeavors to preserve the peace of Europe. Those endeavors have unhapply failed, and war has been declared by France and Sardinis on one side, and Austria on the other. Receiving assurance of friendship from both the contending parties, I intend to maintain between them a strict and impartial neutrality, and I hope with Golds assistance to pre-perce to my people the creaming of continued peace. Considering, however, the present state of Curope. I have deemed it necessary to the security of my downinions, and the knon-only or yerown, to increase my naval forces to an amount exceeding that which has been sand-uned by Parliament. I rely with comfedence renew my diplomatic infercourse with the Court of Naples, which had been suspended during the late reign.

All my other relations continue on a perfectly astifactory footing.

The rest of the speech is devoted to matter of local interest. Attention is directed to the bill to carry out the recommendation of the commissioners in regard to the best mode of manning the navy, and in respect to the Reform question the Queen simply says that she shall have pleasure in giving her sanction to any well considered measure, and that should matters of more urgency relating to the defense and financial condition of the country necessitate a postponement, she hopes that the queetion will have attached to the defense and financial condition of the country necessitate a postponement, she hopes that the queetion will have attached.
