THE CELEBRATION.—The hundredth anniversary of the birth-day of George Washington was solemnized in our city, in a manner which shows the patriotism of our fellow-citizens, in bold relief.—The day was most auspicious, and even the "skey influences" seemed to conspire in throwing splendor on the solemnity of the pageant. Soon in the morning, the peals from the batteries of the battalion of artillery harbingered the day, sacred in the recollection of America; at an early hour multitudes thronged the streets, while pleasure and excitement were reflected from thousands of merry faces. Previous to the te deum, and delivery of the orations, in the cathedral of St. Louis, the Louisiana Legion performed military evolutions, on the place d'Armes, with the precision and discipline, which amiably characterise their manœuvres. At noon, in accordance with the arrangements of the committees, the members of the Legislature, of the Judiciary of the bar, and the corporate associations of the city, escorted by the beautiful corps of the Louisiana Guards, began their march from the hall of the Legislature to the church, where, after the masterly execution of a piece of sacred music, the audit ry were addressed by the Rev. Mr. Anduze, in the French language, followed by the right Rev. Dr de Necker, Bishop of Louisiana, in an English address. The distance between us and the pulpit prevented us from hearing the address of the former reverend gentleman; but having succeeded in obtaining a more favorable position, we were highly entertained by the Bishop's able panegyrick of our hero's virtues It is a matter of regret that we are unable to publish his very apposite remarks, in as much as they were improvised. They were succeeded by the orators of the day, Messrs. CONRAD and CANON in the English and French languages; both discharged the duties imposed upon them, with a zeal and ability, which reflects the highest credit on their acknowledged talents: their eulogies of the sage of the revolution teem with the effusion of warmest patriotism. Sorry we are that want of time prevents us from presenting Mr. Canon's oration to the perusal of our readers, in an English translation. We have been favoured with a copy of the original, which we publish on the French side of our sheet.

During the day a countless multitude circulated along the streets, and, at night, when millions of tapers had mimicked the light of departed day, and metamorphosed New Orleans into a vast fairy city, a stream of population overflowed the most inhabited parts of the city; the Place d'Armes looked like the courses of Athens, for the race of torches, in the fairest days of Greece. The adjacent streets, Chartres, Condé, Royal, Canal and Camp, the cross streets, Orleans especially, were alive with the rush of promenaders; we probably fall short of truth, when we rate the number at thirty thousand. The illumination was really magnificent; the place d'armes, especially, was conspicuous; in the centre towered a lofty obelisk, gorgeously illuminated, and topped with a full length portrait of Washington, while the iron railing and trees were hung with innumerable party-colored lamps. As a counterpart, the gothic front of the cathedral flashed a blaze of into enable light on a beautiful allegorical transparency, placed over the arch of the main door, leading to the nave of the church—Religion crowning the bust of Washington, with a wreath of stars, and Victory waving the palm of conquest over his head, with this appropriate motto: LIBERTAS, TUTO AUSPICE DEO The City-hall, the Exchange, Custom-house, the Theatres, and private dwellings were richly decorated and studded with light. In many faces, transparencies, among which we recognized Mr HANNINGTON's peculiar style of execution, presented the bust of the hero of America, with allusions to his eminent civic virtues.

Moving along with the crowd and reflecting on the occasion of the public rejoicings, which, probably, at that moment, swelled the hearts of fifteen millions of freemen, we lapsed into a train of pleasureable reflection. We felt, in the enthusiasm of the hour, that the glory of a great man is the patrimony of his country. In the categories of glory, however, there are distinctions to be drawn. The renown of the ambitious conqueror more garish, but less durable, glares for a while, and then is palled in relative obscurity. That of the best of monarchs disappears with the changes of political systems, and the Lethean wave of oblivion sweeps their memory away. The reputation of the artist, when uncorroded by envy, barely outlives the colorings of the canvass, in which he has infused animation, while on the tomb, which encloses his remains, the wayfarer reads but an useless epitaph, which the unsparing finger of time shall one day erase. But the fame of the hero of freedom—the integrity of the incorruptible magistrate—the apotheosis of the saviour of his country—these shall pierce the shadow of ages, and soar above the shock of revolutions—these shall eternize the remembrance of the god-like WASHINGTON—these imperishably enshrine his virtues in the hearts of a grateful posterity!

The undersigned having undertaken to have badges stamped for the centennial celebration, and sold for the benefit of the ORPHAN BOYS, inform the public that the sale gave an amount of $132 87½ cents, for the benefit of that charitable institution. They hold said sum in readiness, subject to the disposal of the directors.

COMMUNICATED.

Whilst every class of society, rich and poor, illuminated their respective houses, to pay a small tribute of gratitude to the memory of the illustrious man, to whom are so greatly indebted the people of the United States, for their liberty and public institutions, we could not restrain our indignation in viewing the indifference of the monied institutions of this city, the Banks, in not partaking of the public manifestation of gratitude. We think it will be advisable for the legislature, hereafter, in granting charters to such institutions, to insert such a clause in them, as will prevent their administrators from being ungrateful toward the benefactors of the nation. The sloop Kensington, capt. Carpenter, arrived at this port last evening from Attakapas. On her passage she boarded the british barque Zetes, from Wategford to New Orleans, which was lying at anchor in 6 fathoms water, near Barrataria, deserted by her crew. The Kingston took from the barque her chain cables, standing and running riggins, sails, hawsers, &c. and brought them to this port. Mobile Com. Reg.

The steam boat GLEANER, Wright, from Alexandria, ran against a snag on the 5th inst. in Lafourche, and sunk.

THE CHOLERA.—At the sitting of the Academy of Sciences at Paris, on the 28th Dec. a letter from M. Scomettes, of Metz, was read, detailing some unsuccessful experiments made at Berlin, in the hope of effecting a cure of the cholera by the transfusion of blood from a healthy to a diseased patient. A singular fact grew out of these experiments; it appeared, that, in the case of individuals laboring under the cholera, the arteries at the extremities may be entirely exhausted of their blood a long time before death occurs. This fact explains the want of pulse, which is so frequently characteristic of the cholera. Athenæum.

Execution of the Assassin of Capo d Istrias.—Extract of a letter from Napoli di Romania, dated Nov. 31st.—"We have been present at the trial and execution of the assassin of the late President, who took refuge in the hotel of the French Ambassador, and have since witnessed his execution. He was sentenced to be shot. The proceedings in the court and the last scene were rendered most impressive by the calm dignified manner and intrepid conduct of the criminal up to the last moment. His rich and elegant costume, his noble and haughty attitude, the coolness with which he addressed the people, protesting that he died a victim to his love for his country, and recommending union and concord—his affecting tokens of farewell to his father, who, a prisoner in a part of the fortress which overlooked the place of execution, had sufficient resolution to witness the last moments of his son—all these circumstances made a deep impression upon the spectators, which was rendered still more striking by the calm and dignified conduct of the sufferer, who opened his arms to the soldiers, giving them the word to fire, after recommending them to take deliberate aim. This act of justice being accomplished, we yesterday attended the funeral obsequies of the late President, whose body had been embalmed, and was conveyed upon an open bier, with his face uncovered, followed by all the authorities, the troops of the garrison, all the foreign residents, the officers of the several navies, and a long train of private individuals. An idea may easily be formed of the imposing nature of this procession, but none can ever be conceived of that which was still more affecting—a whole nation convulsed with grief, calling upon their departed Father, the females in the windows uttering cries of despair, and even the poor in the topmost garrets presenting, as a mark of their veneration, vases smoking with incense and perfumes, and throwing down flowers upon the hearse as it passed solemnly along."

The following singular occurrence took place lately at Plaisance:—A young man of that parish, who had been married a few days before at the Mairie, was to meet his spouse to proceed to church. After having made some preparations and dressed himself in his best clothes, he told some young men who were to accompany him, that he was going to the adjoining farm to put some fresh straw into his wooden clogs. (The roads are so bad that they are impassable without that precaution.) It was not yet light when the young man went out. As he did not return, his companions called out and went after him, but to no purpose, for he had disappeared. Ever since then nothing has been heard of him. The strictest inquiries have not been able to discover the least trace of the young man. The bride and the persons who attended the wedding waited a long time; but finding themselves disappointed in their expectation, they sat down to the copious dinner prepared for the numerous friends of the new married couple. After dinner every one went away marvelling at the adventure.—Galignani.

To the Editor of the Charleston Courier.

POST OFFICE,
PETERSBURG, Feb. 9, 1832.

Dear Sir—I notice a remark in your paper of the 4th inst. in relation to the unusual irregularity of the mails. I am very sure you would not have th own upon his office any censure, if you had been correctly informed upon the subject. If my office is to blame for the approach of the comet, which Astronomers tell us about, and if I am to be held responsible for the consequences which must ensue, if this visiter should but touch our earth with the tip of his tail, then I ought to be held responsible for all the failures which occur from Boston to Charleston, and the failures, from Charleston south in no instance has a single package been detained in this office—let at ever we have in the office when the Southern stage departs, is always sent off. All the failures which have occurred, and of which you complain, are to the north of Petersburg. There are three New York, Boston, &c. mails, and two Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, &c. mails, due this afternoon. It has been my practice to make a memorandum on the Post Bill to Charleston, of every failure, which Mr. BACOT, your worthy Post Master, will shew you. If application had been made to him, he would have satisfied you that the fault was not at this office. Our citizens are without mails as often as the citizens of Charleston—about ten failures have occurred since the 23d January. The road from Washington to Fredericksburg, via Occoquan is in a horrible condition. I am dear sir,

Very respectfully, your obt. servant,
THOMAS SHORE, P. M.

P. S. Sometimes, nay often, we received New York and other papers of the latest date, while those of a previous date are kept back. If a contractor should put a bag of papers by, because his stage is too full, Post Masters ought not to be censured. This possibly may happen sometimes—and sometimes Post Masters may detain them—it has in no case been done here. T. S.

A correspondent of the Wilmington Journal, states that Calvin Edson, the living skeleton, has been arrested for debt by an individual of that town, and put in prison. The correspondent says:—"This act (the imprisonment) is one of the most wanton, barefaced pieces of cruelty and inhumanity that has ever disgraced our town and state. He (the person who had Edson arrested) attempted the same thing in the city of Philadelphia, but I understand the sheriff would not commit him, and brought or sent him here on his own responsibility, to endeavor to compromise with this vile person; but alas! the humanity and noble conduct of the sheriff was but little appreciated, or remunerated; this man, or rather friend, arrested him here, and actually sent him to jail, where he now remains, and I understood that the person who took him shrunk from the task, and said, "I am afraid he will die before I get him there."

French Claims.—The convention of indemnities recently negotiated with the French government by Mr. Rives, has been ratified by the senate of the United States. It follows of course, that a commission must be appointed to act upon the claims, and make just distribution of the funds. Upon this subject, the New York American says:—"This will be the most important commission which ever sat at Washington, regard being had to the latitude of discretion that will probably be confided to it, the amount of the sum to be divided, and the much greater amount of the claims upon it. New York is largely interested in those claims, & will undoubtedly furnish one commissioner. Could not such a man as James Kent be incited to take that place?"

SALES AT AUCTION.

300 Lots of Ground.

Sale of three hundred lots of ground, situated in Faubourg Washington, forming a part of the property which belonged formerly to the state, and offering in this respect every guarantee as regards the validity of title. Situated in Faubourg Washington, and adjoining the side of Mr. David Olivier's distillery.

HEWLETT & RASPILLER.

WILL on Saturday, 25th instant, at 12 o'clock, the above mentioned lots, as per plan executed by Joseph Pilié, Esq. city surveyor, and exhibited at the Exchange coffee-house for the inspection of the public.

TERMS—One, two and three years, for notes bearing mortgage, and satisfactory endorsement required only in the first payment.

The rapid increase of business and of the population, which draws almost daily from the centre of the city, several branches of industry, a fact from which the lots now offered for sale as being of suitable dimensions, already derive an importance. Those facing the Levee offer a most desirable position for the erection of saw-mills, for a depot of staves, firewood, &c. and the breaking up of flat-boats. The lots situated in the rear are all very elevated, and one desirous of a pleasant country residence could not select a better site.

The project of establishing at a short distance from the river, between the city and Mr. Montgomery's plantation, a rail-road on a new plan, admitting at all times every description of vehicle, and the projected canal from the city to Lake Borgne, which will pass through these lots, are advantages which will give an increased value to the property, by drawing to this quarter a large proportion of the trade and industry, and thus developing the resources and facilities of a section of our city, bids fair to rank amongst the most flourishing. To those persons of enterprise who have realized such handsome profits in the upper faubourgs, and who have a confidence in the continued stability of our city, a better opportunity than the present to acquire further benefits, cannot be offered. feb 22
