Another Assessination We have again to deplore another one of th the frequent recurrence of which, must alarm The only account we have heard of the ovent, which happened yesterday, in Orleans street, as Mr Julien's, will suffice to make us feel the neces sity to maintain the integrity of our laws; and even to ameliorate them, if accessary, to arrest the horrible mono-manie which produces among us so many erimes which go uppus

Becretmics.

Yesterday, about four o'clock in the evening, Meann x esterdey, about tour o'crock in the evapung, mears
Ducournou and Barre direct together, at the restaurat of Mr Julica, when they were interrupted by a person who came and offered a glass of Chashpagne to Mr Ducornan. Mr Ducournan observed to him, that he was mill sating his soup, and therefore he could not was mill eating his soup, and therefore he could not accept his invistors. The effor was again repeated and insisted upon by him who mede it, until he became importunate to those upon whom he had intruded.—Mesers Ducournau and Barre thereupon left the table at which they had been sitting, and went together to the hilliand reson, where, ofter pumaining about ten minutes, and believing that he by whom they had been mobasted, had solved they returned to finish their recent.

They were again assested by the same person which renewal was considered a provocation. Barre, in order to wichdraw himself from such a molestation. observed to Ducornous..."With a view so avoid further dispute, we would do better to go away." But, just as he was stooping to got his hat, (which he had placed upon a chair near to the table where he was dining) he received a stab in the left breast, from the same individual who had interrupted him and his companion, Ducournsu. The wound is two inches wide, by six or seven in depth, which occasioned the immediate death of its unfortunate victim.

The measure being aurent

The assessin being pursued, was arrested at the distance of a few yards, and conducted to prison.—

Mr Ducournau was unable to name the perpetrator, but however recognized him as the same person who interrupted him and his late companion, at dinner; and who killed the unfortunate Barre. His name is Wm C Reynolds.

The draining company will to-day, at 18 o'clock, commence operations with the new wheel invented by Mr Commani. The public are respectfully invited to attend. The land to be drained, is situate on the continuation of Orleans street. The Lewer Fauxbourg. Two thirds of the shipping now in the port are lying in front of the third Municipality, and though the same advantage accrued last season, and will in all probability accrue for an indefinite number of years, yet we observe very little correspondent improvement in the ception of merchandise, and of dwellings for the acquarter of a town, for which nature has done so much and man so little, as the suburb of which we speak By means of a canal in its rear to connect it with the bayon Bienvens, and which sould be constructed for the trifling sum of two bundred thousand dollars, is would be placed within six hours sail of the Gull of would be placed within six hours sail of the Unit of Mexice. This measure which would be attended by sure and splendid effects, is a thing rather talked about than put in a train of execution. The rail road, to proceed from the Rue dos Champe Effects to Terre aux Bouffa, was commenced under the most favorable auxpices, and would have been completed in the course of next year, but it was arrested by a fatuitous decree of the council of the very manicipality which would have reaped the greatest benefit from it. The accomplishment of these two measures, that of the canal in pertiment of these two measures, that of the canal in parti-cular, would have been more beneficial to the lower suburhs than the great Nashville rail road will be to the super suburhs. As to the rail read to Tarre sax Baufis, we are unable to state its actual condition; we know not whether it has survived the blow from the council If these two measures were accomplished, and a basin dug as an outlet for the canal in the neighbourhood of Louisa street, the prosperity of the lower fauxbourg would be placed on a durable footing. All real cetate within its limits would be augmented in value at a rate which at present would be deemed incredible. It may be safely assumed as a fact, that three fourths of the shipping that visits New Orleans, would necessarily be obliged to enter and lie within the limits of the fauxlasses still continue moderate. The impetus was first given to the upper suburb The impetus was first given to the upper suburb twenty years ago, by two or three wealthy and enterprising merchants, who happened to reside and own property thers. The first example of the profit and riches to be derived from public improvements, was first exhibited there. The inshebitants there have not been slow to take advantage of their start. Why cannot a similar impetuse be given to the faubourg Marrigny? Its natural advantages are usfinitely supported to those preseased by its rival. These alone, with the aid of a small amount of capital, judiciously directed, would abundantly compensate for its tardy commencement in the mighterious work. Hen are not wanting, fit for this direction and leading, who are interested in the welfare of the lower part of the city. But they want combination, they want concert of action, they want in fact, the will to make a beginning: they are not destitute of the necessary capital, neither are they without sufficient intelligence, segseity and public spirit. The gentlemen who plasmed the rail-read to Terra aux Boule, who erected the cotton press, the paper mill and the ways refinery, who are new building those vast ware houses, which would be creditable to my port in the Usion—these gentlemen have demonstrated that they possess minds capable of devising and means adequate to the construction of improvements of the grandees and meat conty nature. The time is not the testing columna, by which it will be seen that the books of subscription to this great enterprocess minds capable of devising and means adequate to the construction of improvements of the grandees and meat conty nature. The time is not the testing columna, by which it will be seen that the books of subscription to the ignoral provides the control of improvements of the grandees and meat conty for the division of the control of improvements of the grandees and meat conty devices and then they will be found to exist in a transcendant degree.

such a estastrophe, and, not being able to re-attach the province to their empire, they desire to spread over it the reign of devastation and barbarism. They over it the reign of devastation and barbarium. They have already set on the most ferocious tribes of indians, assured that they shall never be able to snatch from them the prey which they pretend to have delivered into their hands. We sak, then, if the interests of humanity, of civilization and of commerce, do not require that Texas should be admitted into a confederequire last 1'eass mould be admitted mon a consider-racy, which offers all needful guarantees against the vengeance of a government, whose madices awould-no doubt precipitate measures as injurious in reality to to Maxico as to the rebellious province which they rould fain destroy.

Justice is invoked, and it is said we should violete Justice is invoked, and it is said we should violete it by extending our arms to a revolted province. We have already designed that these men took up arms to defaud their rights, their state government, the con-atitution they had sworn to support. Supposing that these men, better adopted to the labors of agriculthat these men, where another to the motion of ac-culture than to policical discussions, have deviated floors a strict observance of the laws of nations, is that a reason for their extermination, and for subject-ing them to the fate of the victims of Alamo and figures to the set of the victims and anneaty and act of amnesty could not be observed by a fanatical serion, that looks upon a Texan as an energy to religion, and a horetic. The inexorable desponsem of the sword, directed by the order of munks, would readily find beings in the shape of men to exewould readily find beings in the shape of men to exe-cite its vengeance. We can sonjecture what would be the fate of the conquered by looking back at the butch-eries of Tampieo, Alamo and Goliad. We have said that the separation of Texas from Mexico was indispensable on the score of humanity

Mexico was indispensable on the score of humanity and civilisation: we would add, that the L'nited States alone can accomplish this end: in profiting of a fortuitous event, the advantages would be participated by the two great commercial powers, who have been gratuitously supposed to have an interest in opposing it. We have recalled to the recollection of our readers the dispusion which took clare a few meaths are in the discussion which took place a few months ago is the English house of commons, on the subject of the aministic of Texas into the American Union: the attention of the ministry was uraw, solaly to the slave! trade, so far were they from considering the annexation itself as a cause of dispute. In admitting that slavery was established in Texas, and in recognizing the right of introducing slaves there from the other states, in case Texas should be annexed to the Union. they admitted nevertheless, as inviolable, the acreesion of this country to the convention entered into by slave trade.

This is the only view which the English ministry has taken of the supposed union of Texas to our confederacy. We are far from believing that there was sither fee bleness or timidity in this disposition of a government that knows its power, and has hitherto wielded it to autain its system of commercial policy, the benefits of which have resulted not to England alone. That country has long since perceived how much more advantageous commerce and the arts of civilization are, than the possession of burdensous colonies. We do not believe that there is a statesman in England who will not agree in the opinise which we have expressed, relative to the enormous advantages which that country, entirely commercial has derived and countinues to derive from its traditional that the United States. It will suffice to glance at the annual amount of exports to this country, and conjugate the United States. It will suffice to glance at the annual amount of exports to this country, and conjugate the united states. It will suffice to glance at the annual amount of exports to the colosies before the ravolution, adding to that the amount of importato ascertain the profits to England of our present intercourse, while she is exempt from the immerities and the profits to England of our present intercourse, while she is exempt from the immerities and the profits to England of our present intercourse, while she is exempt from the immerities. The enemy has the amount of exports to the colosies before the North American confederacy extends intercourse, while she is exempt from the immerities. The enemy has the intercourse, while she is exempt from the immerities at the strong holds and return from the total surface at the strong holds and returned to the Whilacoochee, and the return from the total surface of the Whilacoochee on the Whilacoochee of the Whilacoochee on the slave trade. This is the only view which the English ministry formerly gave rise to long and sanguinary wars, are now looked upon as absurd and ridiculous. We rank amous looked upon as absurd and ridiculous. We rank among those obsolete prejudices the hatred which has been gratuitously supposed to exist between two nations, who speak the same language and are distinguished by the same habits and manners, and above all, who see mutual commerce is immense. To swell this commerce each contributes its products—we bring those of our soil—the English those of their manufactures. Up to this day it has not appeared that this source of mutual riches has done harm to either this England to sever a connection on which her great prosperity in a considerable degree depends. The same may be said of France. Her moderation in the unfortunate quarrel for the indemnity, and her confidence in the mediation of England, sufficiently prove that she has adopted the English system, and is anxious to preserve indissoluble her alizance with the United States.

We conclude, then, that the annexation of Texas to

In the upper, nature has done nothing—man every thing. But we have this consolation in reserve, that a policy as that which would reject the petition of Texas. We must concede that France had powerful motives for rejecting a similar effect from Belgium.—
