The Management and Staff wish all our patrons a warm welcome to the Royal.

The Theatre was opened in 1902 as a live theatre featuring many repertory stars. Over the years cinema was introduced with only an occasional live show mainly by amateur societies. In 1972 Royal Two was opened as the second screen which occupies most of the original stage area. This continues to be used as the cinema, with the old Royal 1 available for other use.

We hope to continue as a cinema for many years to come and we thank you for your support. Please come again.

What if someone you never met, someone you never saw, someone you never knew, was the only someone for you? It's Christmas Eve, and on this night psychologist Marcia Fieldstone has asked her radio talk show audience what they are wishing and dreaming for during this season of hope. A little boy hears her in Seattle and reaches for the phone. He's got a Christmas wish, he tells her, a really big one, except it's not for him. It's for his dad. Jonah wishes his father could find a new wife because dad has been so sad and lonely since mom died a year and a half ago.

Across the country, punching buttons on her car radio as she drives from Baltimore to Washington, D.C., Annie Reed hears Jonah and is immediately captivated. Like thousands, maybe millions of others listening to the show, she can't help being moved, especially when Sam, Jonah's dad is persuaded to join in the on-air phone conversation. And when, in this funny, sweet, sad way, he begins to talk about how much he loved his wife, something happens to Annie, something she's not really aware of at the time, something that's never happened before in her life.

Something like... magic. Tristar Pictures' Sleepless in Seattle stars Tom Hanks, Meg Ryan and Ross Malinger in this romantic comedy.

DRAGON

The Bruce Lee Story

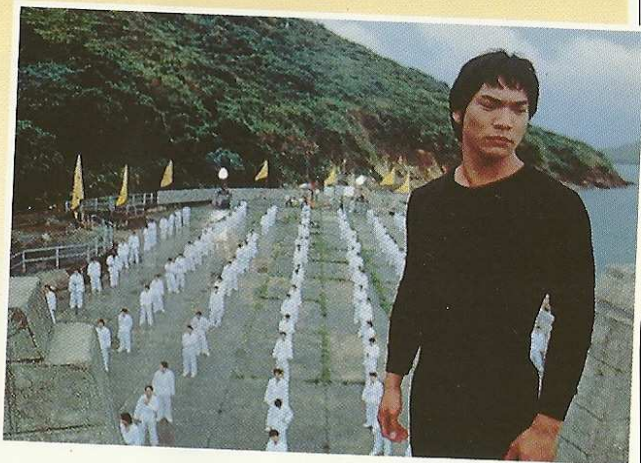

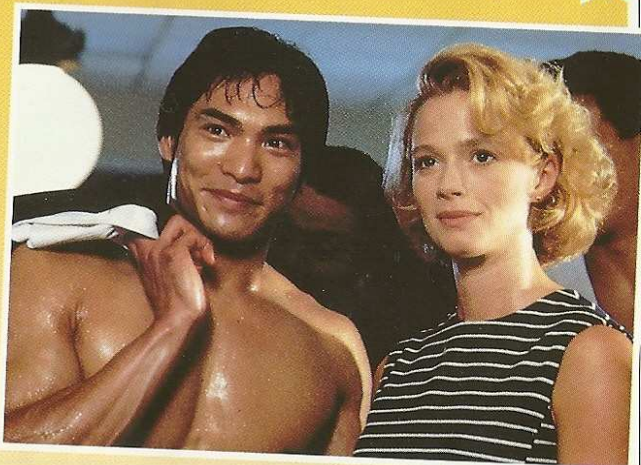

"Simplicity is the last step of art and the beginning of nature".

Bruce Lee was a master of the most dynamic art form of all. The martial arts. Relentless in the pursuit of mental and physical perfection, he created a revolutionary new approach to the ancient fighting forms and triumphed over the fate that pursued him from birth – to become a legend for all time, both in the worlds of motion pictures and self defence. As Lee himself said shortly before his mysterious death in 1973 at the age of 32: "The martial arts are ultimately self-knowledge.

A punch or a kick is not to knock the hell out of the guy in front, but to knock the hell out of your ego, your fear, or your hangups". During his lifetime, he overcame the barriers of fear and prejudice to inspire a generation of action film heroes.

Now, two decades later, Bruce Lee's extraordinary life is captured in 'Dragon: The Bruce Lee Story', starring Jason Scott Lee, Lauren Holly, Nancy Kwan and Robert Wagner.

The screenplay is based on the book Bruce Lee: The Only Man I Know by Lee's widow, Linda.

Tom and Jerry frolic on a magical mystery tour that takes them through dangerous twists and comical turns while they mix them with a collection of eccentric characters along the way.

Tom and Jerry's comfortable life turns topsy-turvy when a wrecking ball demolishes their home, scooting them out on the streets to fend for themselves. And fend they do – against an army of villains, while making new friends along the way. While not the kind you readily imagine, these friends and foes present varying degrees of fiery madness and cool personas. Their names say it all – almost: Puggsy, Frankie da Flea, Robyn, Aunt Figg, Ferdinand, Lickboot, Captain Kiddle and Squawk. Tom and Jerry are making cartoon history with their first full-length speaking and singing roles since their creation in 1940 by MGM animation pioneers William Hanna and Joseph Barbera.

HOT SHOTS

PART DEUX!

In 'Hot Shots Part Deux!' Topper Harley (Charlie Sheen) returns to action at the behest of President of the United States Tug Ben (Lloyd Bridges), who is deeply troubled by the nation's newest crisis. After three failed missions, the Commander-in-Chief turns to Topper to head a commando team into enemy territory to rescue the men who went in to get the men who went in to get the men . . .

TEENAGE MUTANT NINJA TURTLES

The place and the time is the Shingu Province in 17th Century Japan. Four mounted samurai warriors pursue the young Prince Kenshin (Henry Hayashi), son of the evil Lord Norinaga (Sab Shimono). Kenshin is captured and taken back to his father. In the castle courtyard, Prince Kenshin accuses his father of being a ruthless invader who's waging an unjust war against the neighbouring province.

Just as Lord Norinaga raises his sword to strike his son, a shot rings out, announcing the return of the mercenary English trader, Captain Dirk Walker (Stuart Wilson) and his buffoonish sidekick Miles (John Aylward). The captain offers Lord Norinaga all the cannons, gunpowder and armaments he needs to win his battle.

As the two men make their deal, Kenshin is excused to the castle's temple chamber where he discovers a golden scepter, crowned with a crystal hourglass.

In present day New York City, TV reporter April O'Neil (Paige Torco) descends into the sewer to visit her friends, Leonardo, Donatello, Raphael and Michaelangelo – the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles (played by Mark Caso, Jim Raposa, Matt Hill and David Fraser). April shows the Turtles a curious item she bought in a second-hand store, a magic scepter. The beauty of which is hidden by what seems to be 400 years of tarnish.

For trial lawyer Gordon Bombay (Emilio Estevez), life is a competitive aggressive, fast-paced game and he's an enthusiastic player. Outwardly he has plenty to show for his addiction to winning. But when a judge slaps him with a community service sentence, coaching pee wee hockey, Gordon finds himself skating on thin ice.

To Gordon's horror, he is assigned to District 5, the A-team of hapless hockey players, including Charlie, Averman, Jesse, Peter, Connie, Terry, Goldberg, Guy and Karp. A clumsy crew of misfits, these triple-threat kids can't skate, can't score and can't win. Unavoidably drawn back to a sport he has come to loath, Gordon is reluctant to get involved. But once committed, he determines to turn things around.

CHAMPIONS

Winning isn't everything... but losing stinks!

Sliver

'Sliver' reunites Sharon Stone and screenwriter Joe Eszterhas following their collaboration on the international box office phenomenon 'Basic Instinct'. Also starring William Baldwin and Tom Berenger, the psychosexual mystery is based on the best-selling novel by Isa Levin, the author of Rosemary's Baby and The Boys from Brazil.

Carly Norris (Stone) is a woman looking for some excitement in her life after ending an unhappy marriage. For her new home, she chooses a 'sliver', what New Yorkers call the lofty, narrow apartment buildings unique to Manhattan. It is one where a succession of mysterious and deadly accidents have occurred.

Among Carly's new neighbours are Zeke Hawkins (William Baldwin), a wealthy young bachelor, and Jack Landsford (Tom Berenger), an author of true crime best-sellers who seems intent on investigating the recent fatal events that have occurred in the building. Carly, who has a career as a book editor, becomes romantically involved with Zeke and rejects Landsford only to find herself being seduced into a mysterious and clandestine world that tests the fragile boundaries between reality and her deepest fantasies.

THIS BOY'S LIFE

REVIEW

An awkward adolescent youth with an unstable mother and sorely in need of a father's restraining hand can be a difficult person to be around. When Toby (Leonardo DiCaprio) finds himself more and more out of step with life, his mother Caroline (Ellen Barkin) takes steps to save her son from himself and finds him a father. But Dwight (Robert De Niro) is not all he appeared to be, and Toby's life becomes a struggle for survival in the strict and confining world of Concrete, Washington.

Adapted from Tobias Wolff's acclaimed autobiographical novel set in the 1950's, This Boy's Life stars Robert De Niro, Ellen Barkin and Leonardo DiCaprio.

Dave

Producer/Director Ivan Reitman directs Academy Award-winner Kevin Kline and Sigourney Weaver in a contemporary romantic comedy set against the background of the American presidency.

Dave Kovic is a nice ordinary guy who runs a small employment agency in Baltimore. Dave does have one unusual quality though: he looks exactly like U.S. President Bill Mitchell, who is presently serving office. When the Secret Service discover his existence Dave is presented with a unique opportunity to serve his country by doubling for the President. But when President Mitchell is suddenly stricken by a debilitating illness, Dave finds himself in the hot seat at the Oval Office, while the First Lady (Weaver) can't understand why her husband is suddenly so much more appealing.

Sarah Matthews (Goldberg) is a capable, independent black woman who wants to have it all, Sarah owns a thriving African-American bookstore in Oakland, California. When her husband died before they had children, she discovered she still wanted a family, on her own terms. So she went to a sperm bank and "asked for the best they had... smart, black, not too tall", which resulted in her beautiful daughter Zora (Nia Long). Sarah adores her accomplished child, but she's never revealed Zora's unconventional beginnings. Zora discovers she's not related to Sarah's late husband after all.

Outraged and confused, Zora demands to know more about her father. And once Sarah explains, Zora and her best friend, Tea Cake (Will Smith), do a little illicit computer research at the sperm bank, hoping to find the intelligent, distinguished black man who helped give Zora a genetic heritage.

Only, according to the computer, her father is Hal Jackson (Danson), the idiotically demonstrative used-car dealer who dominates the cable-TV airwaves.

And what's more, he's white.

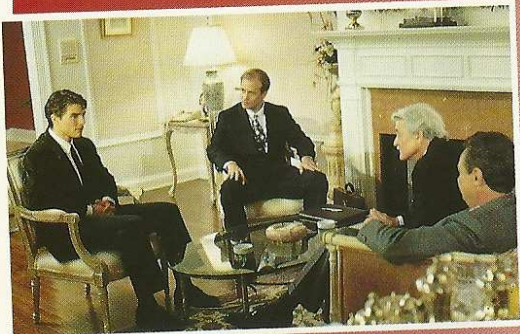

What has parenthood come to in the high-tech, fast-track Nineties? Whoopi Goldberg and Ted Danson put an outrageous new spin on the meaning of family values when they star in 'Made in America', a romantic comedy directed by Richard Benjamin.

Made in America

THE FIRM

Tom Cruise stars as Mitch McDeere, an honors graduate of an Ivy League school who forgoes offers at top big city law firms and accepts a position with a small yet wealthy partnership in Memphis, Tennessee. The firm leases him a Mercedes, pays off his student loans and arranges a mortgage for his first home. It doesn't take long for Mitch to discover that the firm is not what it appears to be. What seemed like a golden opportunity could cost him his life. The lawyers of Bendini, Lambert & Locke are tax specialists - 'the best and the brightest' recruited over the years to present a legitimate facade for what turns out to be a law firm for organised crime.

The Firm chronicles youthful ambition amidst a maze of intrigue. Enticed by the wealth and promise of power, gifted young lawyer Mitch McDeere is embraced by his new firm only to discover that nothing is free.

Tom Cruise stars in this film with Gene Hackman, Jeanne Tripplehorn, Ed Harris, Holly Hunter, Hal Holbrook and David Strathairn.
