Levi Platt, jr., vice Levi Platt, deceased The Debts due by Fereign States to British Subjects. The following circular has been addressed by Viscount Falmersion to her Majesty's repre-sentatives in foreign States, respecting the debt due by foreign States to British subjects:

seniatives in foreign States, respecting the debts due by foreign States to British subjects:—

Foreign Office, January, 1849.

Her Majesty's government have frequently had occasion to instruct her Majesty's representatives in visious loreign States, to make exames and friendly, but not authorize representatives in visious loreign States, to make exames and friendly, but not authorize representations in support of the unanified claims of British subjects who are holders of public bonds and money securities of those States.

As some insendenception appears to exist in some of those states with regard to the just right of her Majesty's government to interfere authorizatively, if it smould think fit of do so, in support of those claims, I have to tiforin you, as the representative of her Majesty in one of thise states against which British subjects have such claims, that it is for the British government entirely a question of discretion, and by its means a question of international right, whether they should or should not make this matter the subject of diplomatic negotistion I the question is to be considered simply in its bearing upon international right, there can be no doubt whatever of the perfect right which the government of every country possesses to take on, as a matter of diplomatic negotistion, and well tondered compaint which any of its subjects may prefer against he government of another country, or say wrong which from such threating and it the government of another country, it is also that the appear of the perfect of the prefer that which the government doesn't country of any wrong which from such threating and it the government of another country, it is another country of any wrong which from such the discount he discount here there is no there there is no interdual among its subjects and here age an other country, the right so to require referes cannot dred there been one money dust claiming a comparatively small cretion turns entirely upon British and domestic considerations.

Thes intherto been thought by the successive governments of Great Britain undestrable that Britain subjects should invest their capital in Lain to horizing governments, instead of employing it in probable underrakings at home; individually a wew to discourage hazardous loans to foreign givernments who may be either unastering my vernments who may be either unastering in the British government.
