WEST INDIA TRADE.

A short time only has transpired since our shipping interest and exporters of lumber and sawed stuff, were flattered with the expectation of high profits from a free trade with the British West indies. It was a natural expediation, and I as one of those who, as a friend to the prospericy of my country, was solicitous that it might cuttzed. But every rational hope is met wit'. to bitte est disappointment. The wily politi cions of Great Britain, perceiving the solie tude which prevailed in this country respecting a commerce with their colonial possessions in the W. Indies, h vaby a new imposition of duties on articles most sargely exported by us to their Wesi I do Islands, with an exception in favor of such as shall pass through their North American provinces, most effectually promoted the three intere-is of Great Britain, of her Canadran possassions, and the West Indies. Under this new Briti h Tariff, our trade can only be profitably chrried on through Canada to the great injury of our shipping, a direct trade in our own ships being subject to the payment of intolerable du-ties. This, then, will have the twofold effect of making Canada a great commercial depot for the productions of the U. States, and of giving beged to explain the business. Nay, they even omploy to the English vessels in carrying thence find it necessary to draw up the resolutions: and English salt we paid an average price of 15 cents per bushel, while we paid only an average of 9 cents per bushed to all other governments for their salt. The course which England is now pursuing, shows us, the humiliating fact, that we have been overreached in legislative foresight. Having our eyes now opened to the fact, it is to be hoped that some efficient countervailing regulanons will speedily be adopted. Sic utclere sui ut alienum non cetus, will not avail us in legisla-

Salt may be brought even as ballust, and the reduction of dution to reduce the bounty on pickled tish exported, is predicated upon the reduced duty on salt. Thus is made manifest the danger of disturbing system of trade and business carefully built up by experienced and practised men. The danger is greatly mercused when the innovations are undertaken by men of little practical knowledge and of much presumption, seeking to subserve local prejudices, or to catch a temporary ap-plause. The policy and the institutious of the ountry are alike threatened by this reforming or the fact that K. was seen, by a man who liv- administration. It is time for considerate med The same house with Mrs. D. in company to look seriously at what is doing. Passengers of the late ship Robert Fulton. So many passengers have sailed hence for Liverpool in the ship Robert Fulton, that doubttess their friends feel much anxiety in regard to their situation on the Western Isles, and their departures thence, that we embrace with pleasare the opportunity offered to us by Mr. Fintan count, to state from his journal the whole parii.uars.

by the assistance of the inhabitants of the is time of her the George Washington and sunk laud of Flores, the passengers were all safely landed at 9 p. m. on the evening of 25th October. The place was a small stoney beach about thirty feet from the water's edge, bounded by a high and perpendicular rock, rising about 350 feet above the level of the sea.

THE LEARNED BLOCKHEAD. Of all the wretched beings that degrade the character of man, the learned blockhead is the most contemptible. This creature will affect a superiority over men of intelligence and discern nent, merely because they are not classical, although his own insignificance is manifest in the commonest angument, except it turn upon some unimportant grammatical quibble. Ask him what advantage he has derived from Latin, and it forced to give some other answer besides the unmeaning pedantic smile of ignorance, he will probably say that no one can know grammar without it, nor can ever be an orator. Yet he is the worst speaker and writer that can be imagined. Is a public meeting to be attended? He a c'expected from him. He cannot express intedigioty what he means, and plain men are oomploy to the Registresses in carrying the to the West India Islands those productions of our own country, of which we had hoped to be the only duty that may be assigned for him is, the only duty that may be assigned for him is, the correct any grammatical inaccuracies therein. Thus, the uneducated or illiterate man, as he the foresignt of rangusu pointerains una caugus discrimination and sound sense, while no expect from this regulation of their fit is a mechanical part of the work; just as the protessed scrivener is employed to make a fair copy in an elegant hand.
