The question of an Islamic lunar calendar has been for a long time a very controversial one and until now, it seems that most of the available Islamic calendars produced by individuals or organizations, show discrepancies. Local disagreement is still common and sometimes, scientific predictions of Islamic dates could differ with that sighted by witnesses.

Wrongly predicted dates of calendars based on astronomical calculations could be presumed to be as a result of inaccuracy of applied method or instrument or both that is used in predicting the actual starting date and number of days of a month as scientific suggestion. Generally, faultless scientific/technological methods have proved many times to be very reliable in accurate predictions. These include determination of synodic period of one orbital lunar circuit; time, place and duration of eclipses; time, place and entry point of returning space shuttles, made possible by knowledge obtained from reason.

It is observed that Islam is a strong proponent for the use of reason to get knowledge, because the evidence by which the Quran draws people's attention to belief in Allah is based on reason and inner consciousness or intuition. The rational evidence for belief in Allah is based on Islam's call to ponder and get knowledge on the nature of the Universe- the earth, the heavens, the mysteries, the natural laws, the harmony and the unity of the universe. Therefore, Islam accepts and encourages seeking for knowledge, including in sciences, then it follows that application of acquired accurate know-how in its affairs could be acceptable. However, accurate physical sighting of new crescent by using naked eyes or optical telescope appears to be the only way to prove astronomical calculation as correct, but then, faultless scientific method could be applied to verify claims of using naked eyes.

I was interested in optical instruments since 1983 and in 2006, I considered it necessary to develop a telescope that could be used to study the amount of movement in degrees of the daily gain in eastward direction of the moon as noticed at sunset and its relevance to Islamic Calendar was noticed. Subsequently, obtained data are used to draw what appears to be a more reliable scientific reference lunar calendar, the 'Standard Islamic Lunar Calendar', to guide in solving the problem of Muslims and others on lunar dates where applicable.

In the course of this project, empirical observation of lunar movement supported by universally accepted theories suggests that- the Islamic year has 12 months, alternating between 29 and 30 days. In every 33 months, and as a result of cumulative effect of fractions of days (which is .03 days, the value of second decimal place of one synodic period), one day is gained on one of the months with 29 days, which automatically converts it to 30 days. From there, the alternating pattern will continue in such way that the sum of the number of days of two Islamic months will be 59 days, a consequence of two synodic period of one decimal place (which is $29.5+29.5=59$). The month where a day is gained could be considered a reverting point from where months that were previously of 29 days would revert to 30 and those of 30 would become 29 till the next reverting point in 33 months time. In other words, every Islamic month has 29 or 30 days for a period not less than 2 and not more than 3 Islamic years before reverting. It also suggests that there is only a pattern of 11 years which has two Islamic leap years of 355 days, one of it in 5 years and the other one in subsequent 6 years. The pattern of one 11 years is expected to repeat itself three times, making a total of 33 years. Then after that, on the 34th month, the Islamic dates which drifts backwards by 11 and 12 days against the Gregorian (solar) year, will return and coincide to its previous position against the solar dates spectacularly e.g. 1st Muharram, 1429AH was equivalent to 9th January, 2008 and in 1462AH, 1st Muharram would also be 9th January, 2040.

Then, it follows that the Islamic calendar is of 33 years period which repeat itself accurately against the dates of solar calendar after every 33 years for an indefinite period of time (see hundred percent similarity of dates on Standard Islamic Lunar Calendar 1429AH=2008AD and 1462AH=2040AD).

Using the findings of this project for predicting Islamic dates, it has been observed for the past four years to have accurately predicted the dates of Islamic festivals and other events than that of other relevant websites. Regardless to declared dates which are most of the time a subject of controversy, the dates of STANDARD ISLAMIC LUNAR CALENDAR could also be proved to be more accurate by scientific judgment and common sense for use in guiding the Muslim.

Below is the 11 years pattern used for the project. For an example, the first horizontal row represents 1429AH which show that the first Islamic month Muharram is of 29 days and Dhu al-Hijjah the last month of the year ends with 29 days instead of 30 because the eleventh month Dhu al-Qidah was empirically observed to have gained one day which automatically reverted the last month from 30 to 29 days and still retain 354 as total number of days in that year. The second year 1430AH started with 30 days, alternating to 29 throughout the year. The year that started and ended with 30 as number of days for each of the first and last months are suggested lunar Islamic leap years of 355 days-

These findings strongly suggest that the Islamic lunar calendar has a pattern that could be judged intelligently, which I suppose is Islamic, because it shows element of harmony bound by a certain natural law and all natural laws are the will of Allah, against the general believe by most scholars that it has no pattern.

Note.
