

THE MEE
PRINTED AND PUBLISHED DAILY BY JEROME HAYON.
STABLE STREET.
TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 16, 1891.

For the President's Message, see the Supplement.
We are requested to call a meeting of the managers of the Democratic Ball, on Wednesday evening next, at 8 o'clock, at Davis's.

We are indebted to Captain Vancay, for an extra of the Mobile Patriot, containing the President's Message. We are also indebted to a gentleman who came passenger on the steamer Orro for a copy of the same document.

Congress met on the 3d, on which day the President transmitted his Message to both houses. No business of importance was transacted. Five thousand copies of the document were ordered to be printed for the use of the Senate, and ten thousand for the use of the House of Representatives.

THE DRAMA.
It is a trait in the human character to select out all the good points of our countrymen, and to ignore their faults, however much they may be in accordance with the "old error," so in the common occurrences of life, we will carry to the full extent of our power, the performance on Saturday evening was every way calculated to redress the managers' pride to the public, and in conjunction with our brother critics, take up the cause of the author, and to make the play a full success. Mrs. Pritchard acquitted herself as Helen M. Cropper to the full satisfaction of the audience, and we would say such characters are her forte. Person as she was, it was a pity that her figure is admirably adapted to the role, and that she is a natural actress. Her performance in the play of "The Hero" was a masterpiece. Her performance in the play of "The Hero" was a masterpiece. Her performance in the play of "The Hero" was a masterpiece.

At a meeting of the Ball Committee, convened at Davis's on the evening of the 11th instant, Doctor James H. McFarlane was called to the chair as president, and J. H. McFarlane as vice-president, W. A. R. Crawford and James H. McFarlane as members.
