NEW-ORLEANS.
TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 30, 1844.

THE AUGUST ELECTIONS.

Several important State elections take place in the early part of next month. Their solid vote will be deeply felt in the great contests of November. Should the result exhibit any thing like the vote of 840, the locofoco party may as well ground their arms at once and give up the contest. On the contrary should that party make heavy accessions, the struggle has now to the close of the battle will be rendered doubly fierce and doubtful.

The first on the list of States which we in August is North Carolina. The candidates for Governor are Wm. A. Graham (w) and Michael Ore (Polk)—The present Governor is a whig, but in the last Legislature was located by a very large majority. The canvass has been conducted with great animatic and industry on both sides. The two candidates are easily men of influence and popularity, and the issue all be a tolerably fair test of the political sentiments of the State—North Carolina has been looked upon b locofocism as one of the States to be driven from whigery by the Texas question, but since the bursting t the bubble here, we entertain less apprehensions on that score—Our belief, founded on enquiry and information, is that Graham will be elected Governor by a respectable—perhaps a heavy majority—that the whig will carry the popular branch of the Legislature, and by a revolution—the Senate—the latter is more doubtful.

In Alabama the election is for the Legislature, except in the Congressional District lately represented by Dixon H. Lewis and now vacated by that gentleman's election to the United States Senate. he district in opposition was a whig in 1840, but usually goes for the Locofocos. Both parties have nominated a strong candidate, and the contest will doubtless be close. It is not best to expect nothing from Alabama. The State seems hopelessly wedded to Locofocism, and all the efforts of the gallant Whigs of South Alabama appear one than counteracted by the blind, indomitable, unquestioning Locofocoism of such counties as Jackson, Madison Blount, &c. in the northern part of the State. We presume that as heretofore, the whigs will be in a minority in Alabama.

Kentucky votes on the 5th first Monday of August. The election is for Governor and Legislature. The candidates for Governor are Owsley (whig) and Letcher (locofoco) The whig candidate is a man of very high standing and great purity of character, but he is aged and cannot "stump" it through the State. This circumstance, and the unbounded personal popularity of Major Butler, have inspired the locofocos with a hope of carrying the State in August, though it is conceded that Clay will get Kentucky by 20,000 majority. The locos are making most desperate and unheard of exertions. Every possible means is used to win a victory in Kentucky for the purpose of encouraging the grand whig army of the Union. The excitement on both sides is intense. We have taken some pains to ascertain the probable result. We consider Owsley's election near at certain, though by a majority of course far smaller than the real whig preponderance in the State. The whigs will carry both branches of the Legislature, leaving but a corporal's guard of locofocos in each. The vote for Governor and Governor will be a better party test than the vote for Congress.

Illinois votes on the same day as Kentucky. The election in that State is for members of Congress and the Legislature. The canvass has been spirited and the whigs are wide awake. In the last Congress the whigs had but one member, in consequence of the infamous gerrymander perpetrated by a locofoco Legislature—This year our friends hope to carry two, and possibly three districts. The heavy Mormon vote alone secured the election of one locofoco last year by a small majority. This the whigs believe they can wipe out. At least they will try. The Legislature will probably be locofoco.

The election in Indiana takes place on the 5th of August. The contest is simply for members of the Legislature. The last Legislature was locofoco. The next will probably be whig. There are not appear to be much excitement in the canvass, but we rely upon Indiana, as she is whig whenever an important issue is at stake and her vote needed.

On October 1st, which votes at the same time, it is needless to say much. The whole of the contest there is pretty well foretold by the correspondence of the Bee. Gov. Wright, the present democratic candidate, is a pliant politician, who has accepted the nomination, and sends the following gallant reply:

FRANKFORT, July 7th, 1841.

I have and the honor to receive the letter you have been pleased to address to me requesting that I would attend the "Whig Young Men's Convention and Mass Meeting," to be held at Nashville on the 21st of the next month.

Your request is a command which shall be obeyed. My only despondent which Whigs can acknowledge and glory in that of your sex. Your natural claims to their allegiance is confirmed by the favor and assistance you have so often extended to them in their political struggles. Their cause, brightened by your smiles, become more precious to the hearts of Whigs. To their homages you and your sex have a peculiar claim, and I shall, in this instance, endeavor to show myself a true Whig by the ready obedience I shall render to the request you have been pleased to make.

Very sensible of the honor you have done me I beg leave to offer, you the assurance of the respectful acknowledgment of Your obedient servant.

J. J. CRITTENDEN

Mrs. John Bell Mrs. M. P. Berry, Mrs. Catherine Stout, Miss L. Caswell, &c. &c. &c.

P. S. The signatures to the letter with which the ladies have honored me, are so numerous that I am proud to say they could not be transcribed on this sheet of paper, and that must be my apology for addressing to you of the first named this answer, intended for all.

J. J. C.

Louisville Adv.—The leading Locofocos of Ohio are already preparing to surrender at discretion. The Chicago Journal contains an extract of a private letter from a prominent Locofoco in Ohio, which speaks the real thoughts of the great body of the party, not only in Ohio, but throughout the Union. The following pas goes the substance of the letter —

C—— directs me to say to you that you may assure your friends that the Locofocos in this section of country are so much they will devour Polk terror, etc. and all. The Whigs calculate to carry the State by an immense majority, 30,000, though this is evidently overrated. It must be that the vote of Ohio will be cast for Clay. Very great dissatisfaction prevails in the Democratic party in this State as to the nomination of Polk. Several of the most intelligent and influential men in the city openly declare that they will rather not vote at all, or if they do, vote for Clay, consequently, if this does extend to the whole State, it is manifest we shall carry it. In fact, there can be no question of an entire and certain defeat of the Polk electoral ticket. Tyler, besides, has his personal friends, and they will hold on to the last.

"I spent a day at Cleveland, where the same state of feeling is apparent prevails. For of course the Democratic party is divided, but very little observation might long since have enabled us to perceive that the whole party was pursued by the miserable intrigues, who have for years served on the ruins of the party, and attempted to ride into power on the back of iron, would include the party in irretrievable ruin."

A Fearful Accident and Narrow Escape.—On the 10th instant, at 6 o'clock P. M., an extra coach left Baltimore, Md., for Burlington, (the regular coach having left there an hour previous) containing six persons, two ladies from Burlington, Mrs. Whitney and daughter, a gentleman and his lady from Boston, and the driver, Mr. Ballard, master of the first Baptist Church in Burlington, and himself. They had been running some days of the day, but at the time the coach left Mold efours the rain had entirely ceased. In a short time, however, the storm began again in desperate fury. The Burlington Free Press says that "it was the severest and most terrific storm which has occurred here for many years. It commenced with torrents of rain, accompanied with terrific thunder and lightning, and by the sudden rise of the streams, which soon overflowed their banks, and carried away bridges and huge masses of earth, with almost an instant." When the coach had arrived within two miles of Burlington, one o'clock at night, where a small creek empties into the Delaware, the bridge over the creek having been carried away by the sudden rise of water, the coach passengers and horses were precipitated into the stream, and were carried down by the force of the current, some distance, when the horses were extricated and running with great violence. Two of the horses were drowned. The driver, Mr. B. swam ashore, and succeeded in rescuing from the coach with his assistance, and assisting to the opposite shore. He plunged upon into the stream and rescued Mrs. Whitney, who had fought against the rising flood which was rushing over the bridge, and also saved the daughter of Mrs. Whitney, and the gentleman and lady from their perilous situation. He then returned and rescued the boy, and endeavored to save Mrs. Whitney, but failed in the attempt; the log breaking away was instantly carried down the stream, and the night being quite dark, disabled him to ascertain her exact position, therefore her fate was to find a watery grave. Finding it was out of his power to render her further assistance, and seeing that his own life was in imminent danger, he leaped from the log into the stream, and with great difficulty reached the shore, being somewhat bruised and very much exhausted. The driver escaped unhurt.

"The Bloody Man."—A locofoco editor out in Ohio, who is quoted by the Globe, arraigns Mr. Clay before the people as the "Man of Blood." He charges Mr. Clay in the first place, with having been born in the year 1777, a bloody epoch in the history of the country; he charges that Mr. Clay challenged a gentleman in 1809; next, he was challenged in 1826, and next, he challenged Mr. Randolph in 1825, but no injury was the result, resulted from the three duels. Next, Mr. Clay is charged with having been consulted by one of the parties in the Kentucky duel of 1826, and that in all these affairs he conformed to the laws and assistance you have so often extended to them in their political struggles. Their cause, brightened by your smiles, become more precious to the hearts of Whigs. To their homages you and your sex have a peculiar claim, and I shall, in this instance, endeavor to show myself a true Whig by the ready obedience I shall render to the request you have been pleased to make.

Very sensible of the honor you have done me I beg leave to offer, you the assurance of the respectful acknowledgment of Your obedient servant.

Louisville Adv.—The leading Locofocos of Ohio are already preparing to surrender at discretion. The Chicago Journal contains an extract of a private letter from a prominent Locofoco in Ohio, which speaks the real thoughts of the great body of the party, not only in Ohio, but throughout the Union. The following pas goes the substance of the letter —

C—— directs me to say to you that you may assure your friends that the Locofocos in this section of country are so much they will devour Polk terror, etc. and all. The Whigs calculate to carry the State by an immense majority, 30,000, though this is evidently overrated. It must be that the vote of Ohio will be cast for Clay. Very great dissatisfaction prevails in the Democratic party in this State as to the nomination of Polk. Several of the most intelligent and influential men in the city openly declare that they will rather not vote at all, or if they do, vote for Clay, consequently, if this does extend to the whole State, it is manifest we shall carry it. In fact, there can be no question of an entire and certain defeat of the Polk electoral ticket. Tyler, besides, has his personal friends, and they will hold on to the last.

"I spent a day at Cleveland, where the same state of feeling is apparent prevails. For of course the Democratic party is divided, but very little observation might long since have enabled us to perceive that the whole party was pursued by the miserable intrigues, who have for years served on the ruins of the party, and attempted to ride into power on the back of iron, would include the party in irretrievable ruin."
