Niceragua, and were just on the eve of setting out for Paler que. He describes the political condition o the country as horrible beyond expression. There is nothing like a government, and not the shadow on protection for life or property except what can be at forded by the strong arm. The factions are ro near ly balanced in power that scarcely a week passes with out a local revolution; and at each temporary triumph there is a dreadful scene of murder and piliage. On instance Mr. Stephens mentions, in which a military leader of some note, whose name our informant ceuli mot remember, was shot down as he was quietly riting along the street; and military executions, without rial of any kind, were of frequent occurrence.

We understand that after visiting Palenque, and devoting ample time to the exploration of its stupendous ruine, Mr. Stephens will return to the Uniter States, as there is not the slightest prospect of his being able to accomplish any thing in his diplomatic character, so total is the annarchy prevailing.

At the date of our last previous accounts General Morazan was marching upon the city of Guatemala then in possession of his rival Carrara.
