the Spanish Government (Art. 11th). Many persons entertained the hope that the Mexican Congress would have rejected this law; we do not hesitate to say that it will prove highly impolitic, and is a grevious omen for the commerce of the counry, as the greater part of the large fortunes are in the hands of the Spaniards. However it appears that tranquility has been nowise troubled; which, certainly proves that the law is popular with the public generally.

We learn from Capt. Teel of the Po shontas, arrived on Saturday from Matanzas, that in consequence of the great excitement existing at that place on account of the recent atrocious pira cies in the mouth of the harbor. Ve Government had stationed a ship and two brigs of war off that port, and in the vicinity of the Double Head Shot Keys, and had offered a reward of $5000 for the copture of the leader of the pirates, $2000 for the vessel, and mounting 10 guns, and having from 80 to 100 men. On the day she captured the Attentive, she chased the Beaver. of Portland, within 5 miles of the shipping, and fired several guns at her. She had not however been seen since the arrival of the Erie.

> Sheriff Parkins formerly banked with Fauntlery, but it happened that one night the Sheriff had a dream that it was not right to leave his 20,000 Exchequer Bills there; he accordingly proceeded the next morning to demand his property but Fauntleroy made some evasive answer to the Sheriff, which threw him into a race and determined him to have his bills. Fauntleroy, finding that he was not to be got rid of returned him the amount, but, on the Sheriff's examining the bills, he found that they were not of the same numbers which he deposited with them. He was, however, contented with obtaining his property again with which he immediately proceeded to Child's. On having an interview with one of the principals of the house, he began to be ituperative against Fauntleroy, which the principal would not listen to. This again enraged the Sheriff who went off with his bills in his pocket.
