Mr. Morgan replied that his only reason for withdrawal was, that Mr. Roseings has been selected as counsel by one of tha, defendants, the only one within reach of the pieces of the Court and that their interests would be better protected by leaving them in the hands of Mr. Reselfus.

The Court thereupon appointed as the curator of how, who accepted the trust from his willinguese to assist the Court in the prosedution of its business.

Mr. Mills asked permission to file interventions in the following confliction cases, viz. Lurked States vs. Adam Giffen. Intervention on the part of the Bank of New Orienne, claiming $64.087.57, the amount of thirty-six promissory notes, with the interest, and $21.10 to the prosession of the same institution, claiming $10.000 principal, with interest, and $2.10 to the composition of the same institution, claiming $10.000 principal, with interest, and $5.50 expenses of protest.

United States vs. Daniel W. Alsams. The opposition of Emile Marquer, as subject of France. For the amount of $1.000 principal, with interest, and $2.50 expenses of protest.

The Court declured to substraint the reading of these interventions, but said they must take the upun course of protest.

The case of Moucure vs. Whalen was resumed—Mr. Durant for plaintift, and Mr. R. zier for defendant. The said was on an account between the parties, resulting from a contract made by the agent of Mrs. Mincure with Whalen, who was to make the chire crop of her plantation anto sugar (200 hides for $10.000). The binshiff e claim was about $1.400, with a claim on behale of the side edicidant of the 100 hids, of egar which were made, and also for the seed case.

FROM OUR EVERING SDITION OF TESTERDAY

We find the following reports from the Army of the Potomac in the World of the 28th:

[From our Special Corresponded:]

Sloneman's Station, Va., March 25.—The reports from the enemy yesterday were to the effect that they were moving considerable before that they were moving considerable the control of Calepper. Ever since the cavelry fight at Kelley's Ford the enemy have been in a stew about our movements, and signs indicate that they have a strong idea that we shall move that they have a strong idea that we shall move upon Gordonville. The latest intelligence from Stuart is to the effect that he is again in the vicinity of Warrenuton, and that he has not given up his proposed raid on our lines, which was delayed, if not frankrated, by dur successful cavalry dash across the river last week.

Severionists living in the vicinity of Kalley's Ford, ontaids of the lines, have admitted which the peat few days that the rabel loss in the cavalry fight of the 17th was fully three bundred. This they admit among them-sives. I fing of trues west over to the semmy year-ended. They ecotion nothing of special importance in regard to hew war. They report Roberts and Scholm of the Cavalry fight of the 17th was fully three bundred. This they admit among them-sives. Patrick Long and James E. Brown, addiers, were arraigned on the charge of highway robbery. Peter Augustus, a reversed looking darkey, testified that it was in St. Peter street, between Roman and Derbiguy streets, at one o'clock in the afternoon, when he was stopped by three soldiers, two of whom held him while the other took the watch out of his pocket and ran away with it. Brown, one of the accused, testified that he had nothing to do with the robbery, but that he saw Long commit it, and that Bergasht Cofield, of Captain Bovay's eavairy company, was the other rook redder; but he was deserter from his company, and had not been arrested. The accused Long declared it was Brown who handed him the watch. The accuser, however, swore positively that it was Long who took the watch from him and ran away. In the lengthy description of this interesting occasion, we find the following which is described with a great deal of interest:

A NERVOUR MOMENT.

Slowly the bride reaches the hour put, and as she stops to bow to the Queen some of her fair attendants, who are apparently even increiour-tons than beneatly, attempt to kneel, but, finding their mistake, rise quickly and move on as if they did not mean it. Then, and then early, does the Prince turn, as if to receive her, but checks himself as he sees them all bowing to the Queen, and for the first and only time its essens irresolute as to what he ought to do. The long, keen scrutiny seems to have disturbed his components at last, though only for a second, and the anthein casea, and all retires tittle apert while the bride and bridgeroom are left standing in the middle of the keut pas, the latter alone, the former, of course, closely surrounded by her attendant brideemaide, so closely, indeed, that in that torgoons made of carries and purple and gold they were the only group on which the eye could turn with a feeling like rest from the verounding glitter.

The exquisitely noft music of this chant, at once solemn and sorrowful, was composed by a beat the late Prince Consort. Cincumati, March 25.—The Yaseo expedition has come to a staid still. The Commercial's special from Greenwood anys the Chilling the Commercial of the Commerc tious language, but was given time to procure his witcosses.

James Benton, Henry Rashder and M. Thompson were arraigned on the charge of smuggling. It appeared that Thompson had a permit from the Customhouse to peddle in the parish of Plequemine, and had the other two amployed as assistants. They were catght in the parish of St. Bernard, with their goods in secretary to a schooser which was in a bottomiese beyon near Late Lerty. A spy had been detailed from the Provos Marshal's office of ftt. Bernard to watch their inovements, and his observations resulted in the arrest of the party. It was shown, however, that Thompson had an invoice list of goods from the Customhouse, and had applied at the Provost Marshal's office of St. Bernard for a license to peddle. There seign po positive proof of intervestion to sangale, though there were some supplices siroumschasses around them. Thompson was fixed $25 for peddling without license, and the other two were displayed. Woel! Weel!! Weel!!!

light, and could nt save him from a fine of $2.5, nor his bread from conflication. Richard Falmer was charged by Capt. Crawford with mutiny. The amount of the case was that he had shipped with the Captain for six monties, but refused to do any work after getting inside the mouth of the river; he also struck the Captain and rabelled against being put in irons. For the defence it was shown that the accused had only refused to scrape the vessel because it was datagerous to do so by the frail staying he was required to stand upon, and that the Captain had first used violence towards him. This appearing to be the real complexion of the affair, the case was dismissed.
