CITY INTELLIGENCE.

Grand Inauguration of the United States District Court—Judge E. H. Durell—Agreeably to the announcement, this Court was formally opened at 11 o'clock yesterday, in the room formerly occupied by the old Supreme Court of the State. When this reporter arrived at the scene of action, Mr. Roselius was making an address congratulatory, not only with regard to the appropriate, wise, and altogether fit appointment to the presidency of this Court, but also that this occasion was a proof of the return to the civil administration of justice, in the place of the chaotic condition which had been prevaling.

been prevai ug. The address of Mr. Roselius was very impressive, and was listened to by a large array of judges and members of the Bar. Invoking the blessing of the Most High, the learned gen-lieman concluded his address.

Judge Durell made a few feeling remarks in response to the address of Mr. Roselius, and announced that he wound accord to every member of the Bar in this Court their rights with French Intervention.

[Correspondence of the New York Dally News.]

Paris, May 1:00, 1863—The presence in Paris
of an envoy Extraordinary, sent by the Couderate Government to England and France, with a mission of demanding either a mechation of American staffair or the recognition of the loath, has created a certain sgittation in cliplemails drelas and produced a warnive of rumors.

matic cricles, shul produced a variety of rumors, some of which are certainly shilled to consideration.

According to the most trustworthy of these rumors, the Confederate envoy had an interview with the Emperor of the French, in which topics of the highest importance were reviewed. The Southern emissary having sarphaned his mission, the Emperor replied in substance that he had entirely given up the ideal of mediating in American affairs. "When I did so," said he, "it was upon the assarance of the support of the Peace party in America, which was said to embrace the impense majority of the members of Democratic faith, and in consequence of the pacific symptoms manifested in sany parts of the North at the last fail elections. It turns out, however, that all the information I received on that subject was not scatained by facts. Half of the Democratic leaders who were represented to be so from their own words, soon after advocated a war policy, and caused the rejection of the armistics propositions I had sent to Washington. Here the Confederate agent remarked that, if it was true that his Majesty had given up all hopes of bringing the Administration in Washington to peaceful measures, there was another means left to do so, and that was by recognizing the South. To this the Emperor rapided that the peces
