EXECUTIVE RESPONSIBILITY. We are frequently told by the administration pres with fiendish joy, cry "stop that ball," as desolation rells rutilessly over the merchant, the nd mockery to insuk. The war is to be relentless! arried on against the great interests of society, untivery vestige of fermer prosperity is swept away. Under such circumstances, is it not amozing the here can be found persons, who mitigate the atrocity of the president's offences against the netion and at-empt to stay the arm of retribution? Not only do they empt to stay the arm of estributions. Into only to do this; but they go further and are endeavoring to do this; but they go further and are endeavoring to cat the vangeance of the people against the very men who losses w and forcioid the consumnation of the eloquence and by prayer to save them. If the Poople, withing beneath the usurped are isdirected power of the executive, shall still cling to him, if they permit the sophistry of the ingenious or the false-mode of the deprayed, to blind their judgments, or lead astray their passions, if they persevere n doing homage to their oppressers and in conferring emoliment on those who despitefully use them, will be a commentary of fearful orden upon popular forms of government. It will prove that the doctrine of " official responsibility" has no force in this cour try; that the idol of the day may trample upon the ights of the people with impusity; that there is no constitutions. I restraint upon the chief magistrate; is fine, that the president has nothing to apprehens rium the starm of the people when he usurps power or their indignation when he wields that powe against their happiness. The president and his co djutors are confessedly the authors of the disaster which have come upon us—then hold him and his party responsible for them. Let the people beware ow they pass over offences of such grave magnitud nat policy of tour rulers, and strove by argument, by is have been communited against them. They should enteraber, that Leniency towards offenders in high uses is misapplied—that impunity emboldens publi functionaries in wrong doings—that an omission to punish, is taken as a justification of the usurpation of power; that an acquiescence under oppression 'e-p wpon their wrongs, for " liberty is roucheafer unto. mankind upon the condition of ETERNAL VIC LENGE."

In allusien to the discouraging news of the approaching harvest in England, received by the Great Western, the correspondent of the New-York Courer and Enquirer writes as follows :-

we ettern, the correspondent of the Ivew-Lork Coursier and Enquirer writes as follows:—

"In the midst of this unfavorable change of the prospects of the harvest, it is not to be supposed that there is any thing very cheerful to report of the state of general monetary and mercanille affairs. During the last five days an increasing gloom has prevailed in the Stock Exchange, every description of security has fallen in price; Consols and Exchequer bills being lower this afternoon, and the spaculative business in the share market, recently so extensive, has so passed away that the shares of the Lendon and Birmingham railway have fallen 10 per cent. within the last ten days. The accounts from the manufacturing districts are without the slightest improvement, and according to the present prospects of the harvest, the ensuing autum and winter are about to find us in the same or worse condition than during the last two deficient and melancholy years. The accounts from Ireland are of the most painful description this sorning, the weather being there more rainy and colder that in England, and the stocks of even potators so much reduced that large quantities of outs and wheat are being shipped from Liverpool to the vanous Irish ports. An early and favorable change in the weather may yet however remedy the difficulties which are beginning to be so much apprehended at the present time.

We trust sincerely that the next accounts will be nuch apprehended at the present time.

We trust sincerely that the next accounts will be nore favorable. The failure of the hirvest for the hird time would inflict incalculable injury on the com.
