Mr. Charles J. Ingall, of Philadelphia, a gentleman and a scholar, has published a long letter on the subject, which has been so warmly discussed in Philadelphia, which the author directed to the people of the South, to read, and to consider, in view of the conventions of that state, to ascertain their constitutional right, to demand their charter.

The author frequently speaks a very edifying language of the dignity of the press.
