A Dilemma.

At the recent election, in the fourth ward of the Second Municipality, Mr Smith received the largest vote, and Mr Davies, the next largest. The latter gentleman applied to the Mayor for his certificate, contending that the ward was entitled to two Aldermen. Mr Mayor, however, declares that such is not the case and declines giving the certificate. His reasons for such a course are these. That the law giving additional Aldermen to the fourth ward was passed after the election, and accepted by the people with the understanding that only one Alderman would be elected. Now what is the fact? [illegible] Mayor, [illegible] Aldermen, [illegible] Aldermen would be elected, [illegible] Aldermen, [illegible] Aldermen, [illegible] Aldermen
