MESSRS. PLEYEL & Co., of Paris, anxious to preserve the confidence which has hitherto been placed in the instruments manufactured in their establishment, have sent one of their principal workmen to our city, in order to have altered and repaired all those pianos called piccolos or pochettes, in the construction of which they have applied iron tubes.
Mr. Pierron, who arrived here in the Alexandre Tousaint, will repair all such pianos, at the expense of Messrs. Pleyel & Co. in such a manner as to protect these instruments against all accidents arising from the effects of this construction in this climate, and particularly so as to guarantee their keeping well in tune.
All persons in possession of Pianos of this description will please apply to Messrs Randall, Preyer, 79 Bienville street, who will give them the necessary information, and where they may also examine a piano sent for this purpose, as a model, showing all the improvements which are to be introduced by Mr. Pierron.
