The Sentiment of Europe.

| Correspondence of the Journal of Commerce. |. | New York, September 4 -- A friend of mine just returned from a six months tour in Europe, has given me a few particulars which I think worth printing. He says that the people Mex. York, September 4—A friend of mine just returned from a six months' tour in England in the proper has given me a six months' tour in England in this worth printing. He says that the people to for proper has given me a six months' tour in England in one are friendly to this sonatry, and supported in inaugurating a war with America. As to Itsly and Germany, they are, to all appearance, unanimous in their friendly feelings asked by the Prince of Wales for the North. But the opinion of Eugland is that the Government and people are bitterly beautiful to the United States. He has always been a defender of England, with which he has been do much to do) but he now returns to his native land with this opinions all changes, the existing rebellion, and those who are in favor of laddes riding on out catasted by a spirit of cupidly, are bitterly hostile to the beautiful of cupidly, are bitterly hostile to the beautiful of the English are making fortunes out of the existing rebellion, and those who are almaded to prey upon our commerce. He speaks at the company of doubt in his mind that the two iroused data which have just been bailt in England, and which are vessels of great power, are in out a shadow of doubt in his mind that the two iroused data which have just been bailt in England, and which are vessels as far more firmidable than the way are to the course herestofore pursued by our able Miotster, and says that latterly his deportment has been a man of rare experience and great speaks of free to work as far more firmidable than the course herestofore pursued by our able Miotster, and any Archbishop?
